A good fair means much to Norwich and the 1928 fair will be good and then some. Ask those who have seen the midway what they think of its size and the number and variety of entertainment offered. Forget your worries for three days and take a leap back to kid days and see the splendid track attractions. Stupendous and nerve thrilling acts have been secured for the fair this year, something new to the Norwich fair. More horses than ever before, promising better and faster racing, are now at the fairgrounds.

Banner side attractions of many kinds are being offered, including the best automobile show ever booked for the fair, the largest exhibitions of live stock, poultry and farm produce ever shown on the grounds. Then there is the Old Fiddler's contest, something well worth hearing.

Remembering their own kid days the management of the fair has provided for the kiddies on Saturday. This day is known as Kiddies day and children accompanied by their parents are to be admitted free on that day. Of course this offer holds good for the kiddies whose ages range under 12 years.

Oh, yes, before we forget, let us tell you about the night attractions. Norwich fair this year includes a night fair, when in addition to the hundreds of exhibits and show attractions around the grounds, a complete vaudeville entertainment and a stupendous exhibition of fireworks will be put on.

Plan to make Norwich your home for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Everything possible has been done to make the fair one which will please you. It simply remains for you to visit the Norwich fair this year and be pleased.

All roads lead to Norwich Thursday, Friday and Saturday and there is no need of leaving the family car at home. Plenty of parking space is available at the fairgrounds this year, several acres having been set off especially for those who attend the fair after driving to the grounds.

All together the fair is bound to be a success this year unless you fail to do your part. The attractions are there and in large number. Let us hope you fair-going people help Norwich to break all previous fair attendance records. Let "We'll see you at the Norwich Fair," be your slogan during the next three days.

Palace Theatre.

The man who for years guarded the life of the Czar of all the Russias is now an American citizen. He is General Theodore Lodi, once general of the Imperial Guard. He acted as technical expert in the filming of John Gilbert's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle, "The Cossacks," now showing at the Palace theatre. General Lodi who came to America after the Bolshevik revolution, commanded the troop of Cossack riders brought from Europe to stage sensational riding thrills for the picture, many of the riders being, before the war, among his enlisted men. Their sensational horsemanship promises to be the year's sensation of the screen.

The new picture, directed by George Hill, is a vivid romance of old Russia with Gilbert as a shy, poetic youth who evolves into a swashbuckling soldier under the effects of his grim environment. It was during its making that General Lodi obtained his citizenship papers.

Renee Adoree is the heroine, and Ernest Torrence, Mary Alden, Dale Fuller, Nell Neely, Josephine Borio, Paul Hurst, and others of note are in the cast. Hundreds of extras, the Cossack riders and Russian refugees, recruited from their villages in California, also appear in the picture, adding authentic color.

The story, a red-blooded, lusty tale, thrilling with adventure and romance, was screened from an original story written by Frances Marion.

Happy Music Lessons.

Musical education of the present day child is very different from that experienced formally. By changing the means of approach from technical exercises, to music itself, and bringing it down to the child's own level, we have awakened a joyous and happy response—a love for it—and a desire to continue—laying a solid foundation invaluable for future study. Phebe H. Brewster will be very glad to give any further information.

Norwich Music Association

Miss Berty Jenny, mezzo-soprano, who is to open the series of seven recitals to be given before the Norwich Music association in Slater Hall annex during the current season, is one of the great lieder singers now in this country. She is said to possess a voice of rare beauty, and an artistic and charming personality.

Miss Jenny's recital will be given on Wednesday, October 3rd, while all the remaining recitals are to be presented on the first Monday of each succeeding month.

Membership tickets for the seven recitals can be secured from Mr. William H. Collins, 63 McKinley avenue for $3 each.

Chandler Automobile Sales

"That Chandler has tuned into a wave of popular buying favor, with its new line of Sixes and Eights, is clearly indicated by the big gains which is being made in Chandler sales right now over corresponding periods of last year," states Sid Black, vice president of the company.

"Immediately following the announcement of its new Six at $895 and an entirely new Eight at $1295 f. o. b. factory, the factory receiv such an avalanche of orders that it surpassed all previous records as far as the public's response to new models is concerned.

"This healthy buying trend for Chandler is reflected by sales records of the company, which show that September will register a 128 per cent gain in sales over the volume booked during the same month in 1927.

"It has been generally proven true in the automobile industry, that the greatest buying trend has been shown during the first six months of any year. Nevertheless, this does not prove true with Chandler this year. So great has been the buying interest in the new Sixes and Eights, that Chandler's sales for July, August and September will far exceed the entire volume booked by the company for the first six months of 1928.

"Statistics of the company reveal that these gains are evenly balanced over the entire line of new Chandler cars, and are not centered chiefly on any one of the Six or Eight series.

"Not only is the demand for new Chandlers being stimulated here in this country, but sales abroad are reaching new peaks," further remarks Mr. Black. "In view of the fact that Chandler is represented in approximately 102 countries throughout the world, it is reasonable to expect that export business for the company will prove a big influence from present indications, in further stimulating the company's strong sales position.

"Although the factory production schedule at the Chandler plants is being stepped up each week, in an endeavor to keep up with rapidly increasing orders, it is very apparent, further states Mr. Black," that with the number of unfilled orders on the books, and the way new orders are literally pouring in each day, the factory will be obliged to work day and night for months, before production of the new Chandler Sixes and Eights will catch up with sales.

GREENEVILLE

WEDDING

Lewis-Godreau

A very pretty wedding took place Monday morning at St. Mary's Memorial church when Miss Louise Godreau, daughter of Max and Delima Godreau, and George Lewis, son of George and Elizabeth Lewis of 189 North Main street, were united in marriage by Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor. The bride was attractively attired in a gown of white satin with Spanish lace and wore a flowing veil of tulle caught up with coronet of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Zoel Despatny, who attended the couple, are sister and brother-in-law of the bride. Mrs. Despatny was handsomely gowned in pink chiffon and her bouquet consisted of assorted chrysanthemums. Following the church ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's parents on North Main street, where covers were laid for 35 guests. Among the guests present were people from Moosup, South Windham, Baltic, Willimantic and New Bedford, Mass. Mr. Lewis holds a responsible position at the Thermos Bottle Co., while his bride was employed at the Baltic Cotton mill. Later in the afternoon the newly-married couple left for a two weeks' wedding trip, which will take them to New York city, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. On their return they will occupy a newly furnished apartment at 87 Penobscot street. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Their many friends in this vicinity wish them happiness in their newly married life.

The newlyweds left later in the evening on a two weeks' motor trip which will include visits to New York, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Washington and Richmond, Va. On their return home they will reside at the home of the bride's father on Central avenue.

REVALUATION PREVENTS SELECTMEN FROM RECOMMENDING TAX RATE NOW

In making their annual report this year, with recommendations for the annual town meeting, the selectmen of the town of Norwich are unable to make any recommendation as to rate at which the town tax is to be laid. The same holds true of the town school committee, both situations arising from the fact that the revaluation of the grand list of the town is underway so that there is no basis upon which to fix a rate of tax to meet the necessary expenditures.

Accordingly the town tax rate will not be known or fixed until the adjourned annual town meeting in the spring which will be held after the completed list has been turned in by the board of assessors.

According to the annual report of the selectmen, the sum of $34,500 has been paid on the indebtedness of the town in the past year, $20,000 of which was in bonds and the balance in town notes. Two new voting machines have been purchased and will be available for use in the coming election. Their purchase was made necessary by the increased number of voters in the town.

Selectmen's Report

The following is the report made by Selectmen William S. Murray, Charles P. Bushnell and Patrick T. Connell:

General business conditions throughout the town during the past year have continued to be somewhat below normal and have been to some extent reflected in the affairs of the town, the calls for town aid having been larger than usual. Your board has made every effort to keep the expenses resulting from these calls at a minimum, but necessary aid has been given in all deserving cases which have been brought to their attention. The alms house which still continues under the care of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis has had about the usual number of inmates and has been kept in good condition. The size and age of this building make it necessary to expend a considerable sum each year for repairs unless it is to be allowed to deteriorate. The principal items of repairs during the past year have been the completion of the work on the roofs and the laying of a number of new floors.

The work on the highways during the year has consisted mainly of the usual surface repairs, graveling, tarring, oiling, etc. The unusual number of heavy thaws during the past winter made it necessary to do somewhat more work of this nature than usual. Over one thousand feet of new culvert has been installed, the largest amount of which was placed on the Norwich Town end on the Gallows Hill road. It is believed at the present time that our highways are in satisfactory condition.

The special appropriation made at the last annual town meeting for the care of the trees bordering the highways of the town has been expended for this purpose, a total of 134 trees having been trimmed or patched and the elm trees carefully sprayed. Several trees which were either dead or dying were removed. Your board feel that this money is well spent and approves of the request for a further appropriation for this purpose for the coming year.

The usual repairs have been made on the bridges of the town and they are now believed to be in good condition. The work upon the Laurel Hill Bridge has been completed and the share of the expenses due from the N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad has been received by the town. The share of the Connecticut company has not yet been paid but it is hoped that it will be received at an early date.

Owing to the national election the election expenses for the coming year will be larger than for the year past. In connection with this your board has purchased two additional voting machines of the type now used by us which have been delivered and will be used at future elections. Your board believes that it was very fortunate to procure these machines as this design is no longer manufactured and it is therefore very difficult to procure new machines. Owing to the increasing number of voters more machines were necessary and as the use of two types of machines would cause much confusion the town would probably have had to abandon their present machines and purchase a different type at an expense of several thousand dollars if these two machines had not been procured. The cost of the new machines was paid from the regular appropriations.

Owing to an act passed by the last general assembly a complete re-indexing of the probate records has been necessary and this expense amounting to approximately $5,400 must be borne by this town. The work is now in progress and your board is informed that it will be completed during the coming year.

The reappraisal of the taxable property of the town which was directed at a special town meeting is now being made under the direction of the Manufacturers Appraisal company. This work has progressed excellently, to date practically all of the land and buildings of the town having been measured and tentative values placed thereon and it is believed that the work will be finished so as to become effectual during the coming year.

During the past year the sum of $34,500 has been paid on the indebtedness of the town, $20,000 of bonds having been retired and the balance having been paid on town notes. An appropriation of $20,000 will have to be made this year for the sinking fund as this amount of bonds will come due, and must be paid.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM S. MURRAY,
CHAS. P. BUSHNELL,
PATRICK T. CONNELL,
Selectmen of The town of Norwich.

COUNTY FARMERS LOSE 30 HORSES BY POISON

Fungus growth developed by the recent heavy rains has poisoned 30 horses on high grade farms in the New London and Norwich sections of New London county, Dr. George E. Corwin, deputy state commissioner of domestic animals, reported Monday.

Dr. Corwin, fearing greater losses from the current epidemic, has advised farmers throughout the state to take their horses off the pastures. He expects more cases to be reported to his office. The deputy commissioner describes the poison as mycosis for which no medicinal cure is available. He said the victims of the epidemic cost the farmers from $6,000 to $10,000.

34 MOTOR CARS PER MILE IN CONNECTICUT

In Connecticut there are eighty-four motor vehicles being operated in the state for each mile of state and federal highway, according to the report made in Washington of a survey just completed by the American Motorists' association. The District of Columbia, which leads the states in this respect, has 184 motor vehicles for each mile.

SPEED WITH CARELESSNESS MAKES ACCIDENT HAZARD

Unreasonable speed as a major factor in causing highway accidents was vigorously flayed Sunday, by the American Road Builders' association in its national drive for safety on the highways. "Speed, when rationally used, is not always a great hazard," the association declared. "It is speed tempered with carelessness which causes accidents."

The association stated that 1706 persons were killed in 1927 as a direct result of unreasonable speed. Next to inattention, speed exacted the greatest number of fatalities chargeable directly to motor vehicle drivers.

"It is the degree of courtesy and caution used while driving which contributes to safety on the highways," the association pointed out. "There are places where a reasonably high speed does not create a hazard, and others where a similar speed verges upon reckless driving. It is the application of courtesy and caution to the gauging of speed which is desirable, rather than the adherence to a series of rules for the speedometer."

The organization urged drivers to observe the speed laws under all conditions. "Mere observance of legal speed limits, however, does not indicate safe driving. The conscientious use of courtesy and caution should temper the speed used by a driver to fit the conditions of traffic and roadways."

The American Road Builders' association pointed out the futility of unreasonable speed as a means of gaining time in travel. "A Chicago taxi cab company started two cabs simultaneously, destined for a point nine miles distant, over a main thorofare of that city. One travelled at top speed and the other at a reasonable speed. The speeding cab arrived at its destination but four minutes prior to the arrival of the "safety cab." Dozens of hazards were created, lives were endangered, property imperilled and laws violated — all for four minutes time."

FOUR SUITS RESULTS FROM AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Jean Counihan, a minor, through Anna Counihan, of this city, has filed suit in the superior court against the Luxor Cab Co., of Norwich and Joseph McCormick of East Providence, claiming damages of $5,000. According to the complaint on July 10th last, about 5:15 p. m., the plaintiff was riding in a Luxor cab on Laurel Hill avenue. A large motor truck with trailer attached, owned by Mr. McCormick and operated by his agent, approaching from the opposite direction, attempted to pass a wagon which was proceeding in a southerly direction. In so doing the truck crashed against the cab and the plaintiff was injured.

Anna Counihan has also brought suit against the Luxor Cab Co., and Joseph McCormick, claiming damages of $10,000. She was riding in the cab at the time of the accident and was seriously injured. Her left side was paralyzed and she received cuts and bruises about the head and chest and is still suffering from nervous shock.

A third suit is brought by Sara Cochran of Norwich. She also was a passenger in the cab and was painfully injured. She asks damages of $5,000.

Mildred Counihan, a minor, has also brought suit against the cab company and Mr. McCormick. She asks damages of $5,000. She was riding in the cab at the time of the accident and also was injured. The latter suit is brought through Anna Counihan.

As the result of a raid at No. 43 North Main street, about 9.30 o'clock Tuesday night, two men are under arrest on charges of violation of the liquor law. About 35 cases of homebrew a barrel and a half of mash, a couple of copper boilers and drinking glasses were seized in the raid. According to the city directory the place is occupied by the confectionery store of Angelo Chioda.

Armed with a warrant, a squad comprising Sergeant Matthew Delaney and Officers P. F. Shahan, Clifford Crary and Peter Driscoll paid a surprise visit to the North Main street place. They found two men in the place and seized the wet goods which were transported to police headquarters.

Michael Diodato, 27, and John Fallon, 31, found in the place, were arrested on charges of violation of the liquor lay. They were booked at police headquarters and held in bonds of $1,000 each. Diodato said at police headquarters that he was the proprietor of the place. Fallon denied that he had anything to do with it, although he admitted that he had been given a key and had been requested to open up the place.

It required two trips to transport the beer, mash, etc., to police headquarters.

Both men secured bonds later in the evening.

JURY FINDS LALONE AND RAYMOND GUILTY OF SECOND DEGREE MURDER

Jury Returned the Verdict at 9 P. M. After Having Been Out Since 2.40 P. M. Yesterday—The Convicted Men Received the Verdict Without Emotion—Mrs. Raymond Sobbed Pitifully, While Mrs. Lalone Retained Her Composure and Prayed Silently—Sentence Will Be Pronounced Next Tuesday Morning.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 26—The jury returned a verdict of guilty of second degree murder against Albert J. Raymond and Roland G. Lalone at 9 o'clock tonight, following six hours and 20 minutes of deliberation. Announcement of the verdict was made by Foreman Ellsworth B. Babson of Brooklyn, immediately following roll call of the jury by clerk of the court, Curtis Dean. The boys, alleged to be the "ice-box" bandits of Springfield, who had been tried for murder in the first degree in connection with the shooting of State Policeman Irving H. Nelson at Pomfret on April 6, received the verdict with resignation. Both looked tired after the gruelling afternoon of anxious waiting. At the request of the defense, Judge Yeomans granted a delay in pronouncing sentence until next Tuesday morning at the criminal court convening in Putnam at 10:45 o'clock.

With the announcement of the verdict, Mrs. Odella Raymond trembled and sobbed pitifully and was consoled by her daughter, Florence. Mrs. Rose Lalone maintained her composure and prayed silently. Within four minutes the ordeal was over and the crowd in the courtroom quickly diminished. The accused were left in the care of Sheriff Charles A. Gates and the plans were to keep them in the police lock-up here over night under heavy guard.

The rendering of the verdict ended the ninth day of one of the most spectacular trials ever tried in Windham county. It is believed that the fact that the state's evidence was circumstantial brought about the verdict of second degree, the jury having its choice of first and second degree or murder and manslaughter.

It is understood that the trial cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Two days were taken up with the selection of jury, 111 being examined.

There were 68 witnesses and 18 others called in connection with testimony eliminating the presence of all Massachusetts Willys-Knights bearing the first three serial registration numbers, 401,— from Connecticut on the night of April 6.

The case was handled for the state by Special State's Attorney Samuel B. Harvey, who was appointed to the case some time prior to the trial, during an illness of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam. Attorney Bradford had recovered, however, and assisted in the prosecution. The defense was represented by five attorneys, Frank B. Hall, John M. Thayer, John C. Mahoney and Moynihan of Worcester and Frank H. Foss of this city.

Interest in the trial ran to a high pitch locally and several hundred people who could not gain admittance to the small courtroom received news from word of lip after the adjournment of court. Seven newspaper men rushed out to file their last reports on the case, special toll service being provided for them at the local telephone exchange.

CLOSING ARGUMENTS AND JUDGE'S CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 26—In the closing and third argument for the defense, Attorney Frank B. Hall of Worcester opened with a high compliment to the courtesy and fairness extended the defense by the court, the court officials, the state, the press and others. He also paid glowing tribute to the opening argument for the defense paid Tuesday by Attorney Frank H. Foss of this city, terming it the best argument as to clarity of reasoning and marshalling of facts that he had heard in his 28 years practice. Upon warning the jury against the possibilities of convicting innocent parties, Atty. Hall entered into a psychological analysis of the consciousness of guilt asking the jury if at any time in the evidence or during the trial there had been any manifestations that Lalone and Raymond were guilty of murder. He also spoke of the identification evidence introduced by the state as being based solely on fleeting glimpses of the accused. He named a series of doubts including alleged discrepancies in the testimonies of Officer Gallaher, Harold Lester, Springfield police officers, Mrs. Bessie B. Archer, Frank Spinney and others. He said he had attended many Shakesperean plays during the past years but he was glad to have been present in court to have seen Detective Jackson at his best. He was referring to Jackson's testimony of the conference held with Raymond the day prior to the opening of the trial. Attorney Hall spoke for one hour and five minutes.

Final Argument For State

Special State's Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of this city took up the final argument for the state at 11:30 and talked for one hour and 20 minutes. He spoke of the evidence as the result of finding two calibre bullets in the body of Officer Nelson, showing that there had been two revolvers in the possession of occupants of the car from which the shooting was done. Of the three bullets found one was a 38-calibre and the remaining 2 32-calibre. He explained the definition of malice and deliberation with relativity to a murder charge and sought to establish that both malice and deliberation were factors in the shooting; expressed great surprise that the defense had admitted a connection between the Willys-Knight sedan and the accused on the night of April 4; spoke of the testimony of Frank Spinny and Rene Langevin as it has been attached by the defense, stating that these men and possibly others were afraid to testify as to definite identification because they feared members of the so-called gang with which the accused are alleged to be affiliated.

Attorney Harvey also attacked the indulgence of the mothers in giving the boys livelihood and clothing and spending money while the youths found plenty of time to develop criminal instincts. He reviewed with considerable length all testimony introduced to show that the Willys-Knight sedan bearing two occupants was the car that came from Springfield through Willimantic and Pomfret to Webster where it was abandoned following the shooting on the night of April 8. He closed with a resume of the testimony introduced by State Policeman Roy B. Pettengill, who took statements as they were said in conversation between the accused in the county jail in Brooklyn. To many in courtroom this review was regarded as the keynote in this closing argument. Attorney Harvey summed up that Pettengill's testimony was a conviction of the accused by themselves as it represented their own words. Court recessed for luncheon at 12:50 until 2 o'clock when Judge Edward M. Yeomans delivered his charge to the jury.

Judge Yeomans' Charge

Judge Yeomans talked from 2:05 to 2:40 when the jury retired and began its deliberations. Judge Yeomans said that the case had been unusually well presented by both sides. He warned the jury not to consider the functions of the grand jury in their deliberations and explained the grand jury and petty jury systems. They were to draw no presumptions from statements made as to the choice of the accused to be tried by jury instead of the court of three judges. The entire burden of proving guilt rests with the state and proof must be made beyond a reasonable doubt. If any reasonable doubt exists it must resolve in favor of the accused. It is not the burden of the accused to show that they were not at the scene of the shooting but that of the state to prove that they were there. He said that it was quality and not quantity of testimony that counts.

The jury should study the witnesses from a human nature standpoint and consider possible bias or motives in weighing the testimony of each witness. He said that the accused under the law were not obliged to take the witness stand in their defense but when they did so they should receive the same consideration as other witnesses. He explained manslaughter and the two murder degrees and defined malice from a legal angle. He said that the jury was not concerned with the punishment but merely with the guilt or innocence.

Judge Yeomans then reviewed various chapters of the testimony. He said that Lester was the only one of the state witnesses to have seen the car and occupants at a standstill and recalled that Lester had identified only one of the accused, Raymond. As to the sequence of events in Webster shown by the state he told of the difference in testimony and questioned the accuracy of the testimony of Edward C. Mason. He reminded the jury that Frank Spinney, the taxi driver, did not identify the men. In stating that the relationship of the witnesses to the accused should be considered he said, however, that Mrs. Walcott, LeBlanc and others who had testified in establishing the alibi of the accused were not relatives. He claimed that the activities of the accused were not material except as they directly affected the case. Hinting at certain evidence which the state attempted to introduce as to the activities of the boys in Springfield prior to the case, he reminded the jury that the accused were not on trial for bad character or for deeds done in Massachusetts.

Four Verdicts Possible

In closing Judge Yeomans informed the jury that four verdicts were possible for them to render one was first degree murder, the other, second degree murder, the third, guilty of manslaughter and the fourth, not guilty. He said that either of the two accused could be found not guilty under various degrees or verdicts as outlined.

This was the ninth day of the trial. In their anticipation of a verdict being rendered, large throngs were about the building, some gaining admittance, some gaining seats reserved for witnesses. The crowds were about the building all afternoon. At 7:51 the jury was allowed lunch in the room and court attendants and newspapermen were given about one hour for lunch.

The crowd thrilled at 6:50 when the door of the jury room rattled but upon investigation by Deputy Sheriff Charles Ayer it was found that the rattling was caused by wind currents. Another rattle again brought the crowd to its feet a little later but proved to be a request for a statute book. This request was not granted and the jury was informed that if they deserved additional information they could receive it from the court. The jury did not take advantage of this, however.

GEORGE E. BAKER DIED ABOARD HIS YACHT

SEVILLE, Spain, Sept. 26—(AP)—George E. Baker of Detroit, captain and owner with his brother of the yacht Azara, died today a few minutes after a sudden illness while the yacht was lying in the Guadalaquivar river.

The Azara was brought from the Great Lakes to New York by Mr. Baker and his brother Frank Baker last July and on July 8, with four other yachts started on the race to Santander sponsored by King Alfonso. The non-arrival of the Azara after the other craft were in port caused fears for her safety. The Azara was located off the Spanish coast on August 2.

BELIEVED HE HAS BROKEN UP BAND OF NIGHT RIDERS

Waddell believes he has broken up a band of "night riders" that is alleged to have terrorized citizens of Barton, a small mining village near here for several months. Eberhardt was released today under $1,500 bonds.

Action was to have been taken in November.

THEIR FOURTH TRIAL ON LIQUOR SMUGGLING CHARGE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26—(AP)—John McCambridge, New York and Jack Murphy, Halifax, two members of the crew of the ship Bulko, seized here more than a year ago with a cargo of liquor, went on trial today in the U. S. district court for the fourth time within a year, charged with liquor smuggling.

Juries at the three previous trials disagreed, and two of the men originally charged with smuggling $600,000 in liquor into this city on the Bulko were freed.

Leslie Tibbo, one of the several so-called "captains" of the Bulko, a star witness for the government, told Judge William H. Kirkpatrick, and the jury, on which there are two women members, that he was testifying against McCambridge and Murphy to escape punishment for his part in smuggling liquor.

Under cross-examination by counsel for McCambridge and Murphy, Tibbo said he had been a rum runner for four years. When asked if he was a rum runner now, he replied: "I have quit it for the present."

Assistant U. S. Attorney B. Friedman, in presenting the government's cases, said it would prove McCambridge aided in the purchase of the Bulko at Collingwood, Canada, for $15,000, and that Murphy was in the conspiracy with McCambridge.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 26—(AP)—Peter Campbell registered lobbyist for labor unions at the 1928 session of the general assembly, was indicted by the county grand jury today charged with false swearing at his recent trial. It will provide for the redemption of third liberty loan bonds which still are outstanding as well as to take care of the financial needs of the government up to December 15.

On September 14, $995,000,000 of third liberty bonds were outstanding and up to and including September 25, $732,000,000 on them had been presented for redemption.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF MRS. CLARK ASKS CHANGE OF VENUE

SPOKANE, Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—Archie F. Much, alias Moock, mill worker accused of killing Mrs. Katherine Clark of Boston, announced through his attorney today that he would ask for a change of venue to King county. He gave as his reason his belief that he could not receive a fair trial in Spokane. Seattle is in King county.

The state charges that Much induced Mrs. Clark to come west from Boston by promising her marriage, then killed her for her money.

The defendant, who has been called both "Much" and "Moock," entered the United States from Canada under the former name, but used the latter for his signature here. The murder charges call him "Much" with the other name as an alias.

Blackmer Petitions Board Of Tax Appeals

Requests Redetermination of Taxes Assessed by the Government Amounting to $8,498,935.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26— (AP) — H. M. Blackmer, missing witness in the Teapot Dome oil case, today petitioned the board of tax appeals for a redetermination of taxes assessed by the government, amounting to $8,498,935.

The taxes were assessed as income taxes for the years 1916, 1917, 1919, 1920, 1921, 1923 and 1923.

Blackmer, who now is in Europe and who failed to appear as a witness in the Teapot Dome case when he was summoned to testify concerning his connection with the Continental Trading Co., was indicted several months ago in Denver in connection with his income tax returns.

A lien was placed upon his property in this country to assure collection of the taxes. No suit to collect the taxes could be filed, however, until after the end of next month and the filing of the petition for redetermination of the levies blocks any attempt by the government to sue him until his petition is acted upon.

CHARGES OF GRAFT IN QUEENS SEWER WORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—More than 90 per cent of all Queens sewer work since 1917, was done with precast pipe—the kind controlled by the late John M. Phillips, a witness testified today in the Queens sewer trial.

The witness was William M. Bertram, who succeeded Frederick E. Seely as engineer of sewer design in Queens. Seely and Maurice E. Connolly, former borough president, are on trial charged with conspiracy to defraud the city on sewer contracts. Phillips also was indicted but died before he could be brought to trial.

Seely, after a contract was awarded, ordered specifications changed to include a waterproofing membrane in monolithic sewer, Bertram testified. This waterproofing also is alleged to have been controlled by Phillips.

Emory Buckner, special prosecutor appointed by Gov. Smith in his address to the jury called Connolly a conspirator, fraud and cheat.

"We will show," he said, "that since 1917 all the sewers put in Queens, 91 per cent were precast. Of that per cent, 100 per cent were solely controlled by Phillips.

Answering his own question as to how Phillips "got away with this," Buckner said:

"Because he had Connolly with him," adding, "Phillips had Connolly and Seeley."

Buckner told the jury he would prove that Seeley in one instance had approved a certain type of sewer drain which not only seriously had "thrown out" after a contractor had paid Phillips a $50,000 bribe.

PROGRESS OF OBREGON ASSASSINATION HEARING

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Although Prosecutor Corrie Nieto in arguments today before the Mexican court which is hearing a motion to dismiss the charges against those held with Jose De Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Obregon, declined to discuss the religious aspects of the case, counsel for the defense today brought these phases of the problem into the discussion.

It is expected that decision as to the appeal by Mother Concepcion and 15 others for their release will be reached in about ten days.

The prosecutor limited himself to setting forth the legal questions as the only ones competent for presentation before the court. Demetri Sodi, defense counsel declared, however, that Torals charge could be characterized only as a "politico-religious" act which had its origin in the closing of the churches which passive resistance by those unable to take up arms.

NORMAN THOMAS PREDICTS ELECTION OF HOOVER

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—Norman Thomas, socialist presidential candidate, issued a statement tonight predicting the election of Herbert Hoover in a campaign in which "the three R's —religion, race and rum—will sway thousands upon thousands of votes."

The statement, issued upon Thomas' return from a campaign tour of 14 states, charged that "on both sides, openly and secretly there is a great and unhealthy bigotry."

Thomas said his campaign has been successful from the socialists' standpoint. He will leave again Monday on a seven days' tour of the south, and after returning October 7 to register will start October 15 on another trip. In all he expects to speak in 42 states.

Among those to meet the candidate on arrival was Walter Barlow, representing the textile strikers of New Bedford, Mass.

KUTZLUB, SLAYER OF WIFE, CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

DETROIT, Sept. 26—(AP)—Chester Kutzlub, who presented somnambulism as a defense in his trial here on a charge of slaying his wife was convicted of manslaughter by a jury tonight with recommendations for mercy. Judge Alfred J. Murphy withheld sentence.

Kutzlub admitted shooting his wife to death in their home here last April but pleaded he was walking in his sleep at the time. The defendant said he was awakened by the report of the gun.

Three children of the couple testified their father was a habitual sleep walker and declared their parents never quarreled.

Disastrous Fire In Hankow, China

On One of the Principal Streets 2,000 Houses and Shops Were Destroyed—Thousands Homeless.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 25—(AP)—Historic Hankow, scene of historic fighting and disorder in China's long history, has been visited by another tragedy, this time a fire in the native city with the destruction of 2,000 houses and shops on one of the principal streets.

Several bodies had been recovered today and it was feared that many people were drowned when they jumped into ponds to escape the flames. At least 7,000 persons were homeless.

The fire started in a gambling den yesterday morning and spread rapidly. The headquarters of nine rickashaw companies were destroyed and it was reported that 700 rickashaws were burned, thus virtually wiping out the city's rickashaw transportation system.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS GIVEN GOVERNOR SMITH

GOVERNOR SMITH'S TRAIN EN ROUTE TO MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 26 — (AP) —On the homeward bound stretch of his first stumping tour, Governor Smith invaded North Dakota today and found it another state classed by his supporters as a real campaign battle ground.

Encouraging reports were given the democratic presidential nominee as his train, headed for the twin cities of Minnesota, traversed North Dakota's vast farming territory.

At least one more chance to carry the state was the word brought to the governor by more than one of his followers, who boarded the special for informal conferences with the nominee and his political advisers.

Others, however, emphasized that North Dakota normally is heavily republican, particularly when there is no large scale bolt on the part of the non-partisan wing of the party, and they were of the opinion that the democrats faced an uphill battle, despite certain encouraging trends.

Bismarck, the state capital, was on the schedule for a brief lay-over at mid-day with Fargo to the east, down for an hour's stop at nightfall. Only a few other station stops in the state were scheduled.

Governor Smith worked far into the night as his train was nearing Montana on the speech he will deliver tomorrow night in St. Paul. He withheld definite announcement as to what would be his theme, but it was expected that he would touch on several campaign issues of particular interest to the agricultural northwest.

After St. Paul only one campaign speech at Milwaukee Saturday night, is to be delivered before the democratic nominee returns to his home state to take part in the New York democratic convention and get some rest in Albany before starting out on another speech-making tour.

TESTIMONY BY FORMER SWEETHEART OF HOPPE

DEDHAM, Mass., Sept. 26—(AP)—Helen E. Bradshaw, 23 year old divorcee, who said she was formerly the sweetheart of Stephen Hoppe, today was called by the state to testify against Hoppe, who is charged with the murder of Patrolman Alfred N. Hollis, of Quincy, early on the morning of October 4, last. Hollis was slain by a burglar whom he surprised in the act of looting a store.

Miss Bradshaw testified in direct examination that she knew the defendant as George F. Bursey and that she lived with him in an apartment in Hartford, Conn., in 1927. She said that he owned an automobile at that time and later turned it in for a more expensive make.

She testified that prior to October 7, 1927, the defendant had been absent from Hartford one day. When he returned, she said, he was suffering from a wound on his hand and one sleeve of his shirt was torn off. She said he explained that he received the wound in a Providence, R. I., gambling house. The girl said that in the same year she and Hoppe had taken a trip to Europe together.

Under cross examination the girl testified that she first became acquainted with Hoppe in January 1927, and that two weeks later she went to live with him. She denied having told defense counsel previously that someone had rapped on the door of her apartment on October 4 and that Hoppe had arisen from bed to open the door.

Under re-direct examination the girl said that Hoppe was absent from the apartment from October 5 to October 5, and admitted that she had told a state police officer that he returned "dirty and unshaven" and that she had refused to occupy the same room with him.

COPENHAGEN WELCOMED HASSELL AND CRAMER

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Bert Hassell, and Parker Cramer, pilots of the airplane "Greater Rockford" in which they attempted to fly from Illinois to Sweden via Greenland, were feted and praised on their arrival here today. They were accompanied from the north by Prof. William H. Hobbs, leader of the University of Michigan, Greenland observation party, which rescued them after they had landed far from their objective in the northern country.

"I wish my wife and three kiddies were here," said Hassell, as he landed from the steamer Fulton. He was happy but plainly homesick, yet he announced that he and Cramer would make another attempt to span the great circle route next year.

"The trip taught us that Greenland is a natural relay station for air travel between America and Europe," he said. "It contains excellent landing places and one that cannot be spoiled by climatic conditions in summer or winter.

"The trip taught us that Greenland from Rockford to Copenhagen via Greenland and Iceland and back, this route is preferable to a direct flight across the Atlantic because the latter demands too much gasoline cargo space at the expense of passenger capacity."

The fliers are the guests here of the newspaper Politiken.

"Next year Cramer and I are going of Michigan men who traveled with them will call for New York from Copenhagen, on October 4, aboard the Danish liner Frederick VIII.

Prof. Hobbs said unusually valuable meteorological observations had been made by his party this year.

REP. NATIONAL COMMITTEE BACKS MRS. WILLEBRANDT

She Has Been Speaking Under the Auspices of the Committee —Mrs. Willebrandt is in Chicago For Conference With James W. Good, Western Manager For Herbert Hoover —Disclaims Any Intent to Arouse Religious Prejudices —Has Not Abused Mr. Smith or Anybody Else on the Ground of Religion.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—(AP)—Any doubt as to whether Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt has been speaking under the auspices of the republican national committee was dispelled today when she called at western headquarters.

"I am only sorry that she cannot give us more of her time," said Walter Newton, chairman of the speakers bureau.

His declaration resulted from a question put to the woman assistant attorney general as to whether she had been free-lancing. Turning to Mr. Newton, Mrs. Willebrandt suggested he could best answer it.

"Mrs. Willebrandt has been speaking under the auspices of the speakers bureau of the republican national committee and she has future engagements in several states, including Kentucky and Tennessee for October," answered Mr. Newton.

"The demand for Mrs. Willebrandt's time from the various states far exceeds the number of dates I can place at the disposal of state chairmen in the middle west."

Mrs. Willebrandt, whose recent campaign addresses stirred criticism from newspapers and individuals, arrived here yesterday. She did not explain her visit and said she was leaving for Washington tonight, after completing a conference with James W. Good, western manager for Herbert Hoover.

"Do you consider prohibition the big issue of the campaign?" she was asked.

"I think Mr. Smith has made it an issue," she replied. "It is not a normal political issue, it is a moral issue in this country.

"The republican party did not make it a political issue. The democratic party did not make it a political issue. Mr. Smith dragged it out into partisan politics and now seems to think because he injected it into a political issue that the moral forces that have fought for this thing for 50 years will not come out to defend it."

As to the religious issue, the slightly grayed attorney took her stand clearly.

"There is nothing in a single speech or utterance of mine, public or private, that would with the slightest degree of fairness be twisted into the construction of arousing religious prejudices or an abuse of Mr. Smith or anybody else on the ground of religion.

"It is Mr. Smith himself who is trying to dodge behind his own church. I personally have too high a respect for the Catholics with whom I have worked not to feel sorry to see a prominent Catholic like Mr. Smith attempt to create a notion in the public mind that the criticisms that are directed to him by drys and by people who are opposed to Tammany are aimed at his church.

"He laid himself open to those two sources of opposition and he has no right to insinuate that his church should bear the burden of that attack."

Mrs. Willebrandt said she should have been equally interested in the campaign had prohibition not assumed such importance as an issue.

Mrs. Willebrandt was asked as to a story in a morning paper about a prohibition agent being sent to Atlanta as an undercover man to obtain information regarding the warden.

To that she answered:

"I do not know to what you are referring. From time to time it is the duty of the department of justice to make investigations. It is just done in a routine way and I do not know what particular one you are referring to."

POLITICAL REPORTS RECEIVED BY HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26— (AP) — A decidedly unfavorable report of the political situation in the northwestern wheat belt was brought to Herbert Hoover today by Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota, after the republican presidential nominee had received encouraging news from such widely separated states as Wyoming and Florida.

Frazier, a republican member of the progressive group in the senate, who has endorsed Hoover's candidacy, said that the situation in North Dakota was far from satisfactory and that there was much discontent among the farmers. He added that his information was that a similar situation existed in South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota.

Frank W. Mondell, a former representative from Wyoming, who called upon the nominee during the day, expressed belief that Governor Smith had lost more votes than he had gained by his sally into the west.

"If we concede that a considerable number of votes in the west were in doubt when the democratic candidate started his tour and that the winning of those votes was the object of his trip," Mondell said, "we are forced to conclude by reports from the west that he has not profited any from his speeches.

"His arguments were not convincing enough to win those who were in doubt," he added, "and the word I receive is that many of the people who were considering giving their support to Smith were so disappointed in his failure to take a definite stand on the real issues that they have now decided to vote for Hoover."

Mondell expressed confidence that Wyoming would cast her electoral vote for Hoover and Curtis.

CURTIS EMPHASIZES NEED OF PROTECTIVE TARIFF

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 26—(AP)—Kindling the republican fires in Missouri—the eleventh state visited in his western campaign—Senator Curtis, the party's vice presidential nominee tonight talked tariff and Herbert Hoover to a crowd gathered in the Shrine Mosque here.

The senator declared increased tariff protection against agricultural imports to be "an important means by which to relieve the depression in agriculture," but he believed other legislation necessary also and placed faith in the promise of Herbert Hoover to put agriculture on a basis of equality with other industries.

He lauded Mr. Hoover as "the best equipped man ever to run for president."

"Tariff protection," on farm products, declared Curtis, is an important means by which to relief the present depression in agriculture and to place the farmer in a position of economic equality with other industries, but in considering tariff rates as a means for meeting the problem of agriculture, the danger of undue reliance on the effectiveness of this method must be avoided.

"Many of the farmers' ills are the result of the war and of post war conditions, generally; others are in part at least the results of maladjustments of our distributive system—a lack of proper marketing facilities. Cooperative associations have done much to relieve this latter difficulty and if properly extended, will in my judgment, bring still greater relief."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT SPEAKS AT ATLANTA, GA.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 26—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, who nominated Governor Smith at the Houston convention, told a state-wide rally of democrats here tonight that "it is very satisfactory to come back to Georgia and discover that most of the stories about the trend to the republican party in the south are untrue; and that when November comes the south will be found true to its historic principles."

"It is to me a significant fact," he said, "that most of the false opposition to the nominee of the democratic party for the presidency is definitely located among those who have had the least opportunity to know him and his record. The further you go away from New York state the wilder become the untrue tales, the sillier become the reasons for opposing him.

"Where the average voter has had an opportunity to study the true facts, you find no repetition of the slanders and misstatements that are being circulated.

"It is, of course, needless to tell the truth to people who do not want it. x x x To those men and women like Senator Heflin, and Mr. Upshaw, and Dr. Straton and Mrs. Willebrandt, who either for notoriety or for private gain are making themselves ridiculous up and down the country. Their's are minds which do not hesitate to misstate facts so long as they can get on the front page of newspapers or continue to fill lecture engagements."

Referring to Governor Smith as "the man who stands such an excellent chance of being our next president," Mr. Roosevelt reviewed his early political career and continued:

"In the summer of 1918, I was asked to be the democratic candidate for the governorship, but as I was starting for overseas war work I could not run. I talked about the availability of Alfred E. Smith with President Wilson. He said to me: 'I should be entirely satisfied with Smith's nomination. He seems to be a man who has responded in an extraordinary manner to the awakening forces of a new day and the compulsion of changing circumstances. He seems to have noteworthy support from organizations and individuals who are working in one way or another for the improvement of government.'

"I mentioned that Smith was a Catholic, and Wilson said: 'The day to take political consideration of that has gone by. People are every day reading the casualty lists of American boys of every creed.'

"Yet today some people who fancy call themselves ministers of the gospel are forgetful of the high ideals of only ten years ago. x x x

"I have known presidents in the white house ever since my father used to take me as a boy to call on his close friend, Grover Cleveland. I have known Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge, and I can tell you that Alfred E. Smith will be in dignity and ability a fit successor to the most illustrious of them.

"Even those who may disagree with his opinions are admitting freely that Smith does not equivocate, that he does not evade, that he does not straddle. Of his opponent, this cannot be said; and while Mr. Hoover is an old friend of mine, in whom I recognize many fine qualities, still he is a great disappointment to many in this campaign.

"I am beginning to subscribe to what a republican business man wrote me the other day from Indiana. He said: 'Ten years ago Hoover was a great engineer; but since he has been in the cabinets of Harding and Coolidge he has slowly but surely evolved into a rather ordinary politician. Ten years ago Smith was a politician, but since then he has developed himself into a great human engineer.'"

EVENING SCHOOL WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 26—Announcement was made on Wednesday by Principal Laurence A. King of the town evening school which will open for the fall term on Monday of next week, at the Windham high school building, that the sewing classes will be divided into units this year in order that more work may be accomplished and the teacher be of more service to those attending. The first unit will be known as the elementary sewing unit and will deal with the following features; cotton underclothing, kimonas and cotton dresses. The second unit will be for dressmaking and will concern itself with woolen and silk dress work, including selection, study of line, proportion, color, design, etc. An embroidery unit will not only devote its attention to embroidery but will work on Christmas materials and will be a specialty sewing class. This latter class will start on a date to be announced later but registration should be made either tonight or Friday evening. It is impossible at this time to state on which evening the sewing classes will be held as this will depend on the enrollment and demand. All other classes will be commenced on Monday evening. The suggestion has been made that all those intending to register should do so as early as possible owing to the fact that it is necessary to limit the size of many classes.

A very enjoyable event took place on the Willimantic Camp Ground on Monday of this week when a wedding reception was held for Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Ferry of Pawtucket, R. I., who had just been married in the rectory of St. Joseph's church by Rev. Charles M. Kelly. At the wedding ceremony Miss Mildred Parisot of Attleboro, Mass., was the bridesmaid and Russell Gillin of Pawtucket, best man. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party returned to th camp ground where the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Anderson of Pawtucket, have a summer cottage on Mystic avenue. The spacious tabernacle had been decorated for the occasion with flowers and potted plants and the party marched in to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. E. S. Wilcox of Putnam. Rev. Frederick C. Baker of North Grosvenordale, secretary of the Camp Meeting association, acted as chairman and read an original poem which he had composed for the occasion. Rev. E. J. Ayres and Rev. John Pearce were called upon and both responded with timely remarks which were greatly enjoyed. A receiving line was then formed and the guests, who numbered about fifty, extended formal greetings to the happy couple.

Shortly after one o'clock the party adjourned to the boarding house which had also been decorated, and enjoyed an appetizing wedding banquet. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dockham of Pawtucket were the caterers, assisted by Mrs. Hamm, Mrs. Anton Anderson and Mrs. Anna Croteau. The three Protestant ministers named above and Rev. Father Kelly were among those who enjoyed the dinner and the occasion was one of delightful social fellowship. Relatives and friends were present from Providence, and Pawtucket, R. I., Fall River and Attleboro, Mass., Putnam, North Grosvenordale and this city.

It was also stated that there are several people whom the solicitors will not be able to approach during the two-day campaign. Chairman Hillhouse stated Wednesday that his committee would be pleased to have any person interested call his office or the chamber of commerce, stating that they are willing to pledge fifty or one hundred dollars to bring the proposed concern here.

Dawson was presented with a handsome silver service set in recognition of his twenty-fifth wedding anniversary and made an appropriate speech of acceptance.

Some very interesting letters are being received at the offices of the chamber of commerce from school children located in various parts of the country. Many of them state that their teachers have them to write to different cities to obtain information about them and if possible, to obtain a sample of the chief manufacturing products. The secretary of the local chamber is replying to each one of these requests with a personal letter and information regarding the city is being sent to all of these youthful applicants. By this means, the story of Willimantic is being bound into scrap-books, is being read in various school rooms and this city is in a fair way to become a well-known spot to many school children. The chamber is trying to accede to the requests of the youthful friends by sending a sample of some local product. Local factories are co-operating in this regard.

DANIELSON

WM. HENRY BISHOP DIES AT HIS BROOKLYN HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 26—William Henry Bishop, 81, a distinguished man of letters, died about one o'clock this morning at his home in Brooklyn. He had been confined to his bed the past three weeks. As educator, diplomat, publisher and author he was internationally known and numbered many distinguished persons among his personal friends.

He had been a resident of Brooklyn nearly a score of years, living the quiet life of a country gentleman, but periodically going abroad to visit what were to him long familiar scenes and taking trips from time to time to various parts of the United States. During his years of residence in Brooklyn he devoted much of his time to writing and, in later years, to painting, an art of which he was particularly fond.

From 1893 to 1902 Mr. Bishop was professor of modern languages at Yale university, of which he was a graduate. He was at Genoa from February, 1903, to 1904 as United States consul and served in the same capacity at Palermo from July 1905 to July 1910.

Mr. Bishop was a native of Connecticut, born at Hartford, June 7, 1847, a son of Elias and Catherine Kelley Bishop. During his long and brilliant career he had been the proprietor and publisher of the Milwaukee Times. As an author he produced a number of volumes dealing with a variety of subjects. Mr. Bishop was especially proficient as a linguist. He was a member of the Authors club and of The Ends of the Earth club of New York. He was a graduate of the New Haven Institute of Arts and Letters.

Mr. Bishop found Brooklyn a delightful community in which to spend the latter part of his life. During his long residence there he became interested in many of the village activities, particularly in the public library, which he served in various capacities. He was the donor of a memorial fountain erected near the green in honor of his son, who died a number of years ago. Among his Brooklyn affiliations was membership in Brooklyn grange. Mr. Bishop, who is to be buried in East Haven, leaves no relatives nearer than cousins.

Again the plea for contributions to the American Red Cross fund for the relief of sufferers in the Porto Rico-Florida hurricane disaster was stressed by the officials of Danielson chapter. No personal solicitation will be made, it was said, but all who would share in this relief work may leave their contributions with the treasurers at any of the Danielson's banks. A fine boost for the local effort was in sight today when Manager Henry Johnson of the Orpheum theatre announced that 10 per cent. of the receipts of the theatre on some day in the immediate future will be turned into the relief fund now being raised here. A considerable number of contributions already have come in from individuals, and chapter officials express the hope that many more will be received during the current week.

It developed today that the Eastern Connecticut Power company is to take all of the electrical energy developed at the Dyer dam of the Connecticut company, two miles south of here; in fact, that it has been buying this power for some time, but has been getting it on a tie-in in the vicinity of Taftville. Under the new arrangement the power will come direct from the Dyer dam plant to the Danielson substation of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, west of Mechanic street and about opposite Westfield avenue.

This morning at his home in Elmville the death of Henry H. Harris, 12, occurred. Mr. Harris was a native of the town of Killingly and had spent all of his life in this town. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Harris. For many of his active years he was a mill worker at Elmville. He leaves one son, Charles, a resident of Elmville. Mrs. Harris died about 30 years ago.

This morning from the home on Dyer street the funeral of Mrs. Anastasia Roy was held with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., Rev. Leo Lavallee, North Grosvenordale, and Rev Joseph Bergen, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Among the large number attending was a delegation of the members of Ste. Anne society, with which Mrs. Roy had been affiliated. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, Rev. Fr. Demers conducting the committal service. The bearers were Magloire Bessette, Michael Brule, Alexander Chabot, Alphonse Frasier, Aneseme Guilmont and Nestor Guadreau. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

If a sufficient number register to warrant making the venture, an evening school will be established here this fall, Supt. W. E. Parker of the schools of Killingly and Brooklyn said today. Such a school would receive students both from Killingly and Brooklyn. It will be recalled that last fall a petition to establish an evening school was filed by persons interested in attending. This petition established that a sufficient number desired to attend to make it reasonable to establish such a school. However, some of those who have attended the school for the past two years have said that they would not enroll this fall. This may indicate how uncertain attendance would be. Meanwhile applications for enrollment in an evening school may be made any time now at the office of Supt. Parker, either in person or by mail or telephone. The school will be opened if there is a sufficient demand for it, and the usual evening courses taught through the fall and winter season.

That alcohol-laden Chrysler roadster left abandoned by the state highway near North Grosvenordale Sunday night remained at the state police barracks today, sans claimants. Just how long it will so remain is a matter about which anyone is free to guess, because no one knows. There likely will be the necessity of any claimant being asked some questions apt to be more or less embarrassing, and it will have to do with the illegal transportation of alcohol.

Eleven girls attended the first meeting of the fall season for the Kakatalina Campfire girls.

Type 59 Cadillac touring car, good tires, good paint, for sale. Alfred L. Reed, at the Church Co. store.—adv.

Unseasonable cold weather today, following a thunderstorm during the night and a hail storm about 6 o'clock this morning, brought rush demand for fuel and epidemic of starting of stoves and heaters.

Republican workers were starting a drive today to offset a personal canvass campaign, underway every day and a large part of each night, in the interest of winning again the place of first selectman for A. D. Sayles, democrat. It is a matter of special concern to the republican party of Killingly this year that its own candidate should win, and that is why party workers were getting busy today.

October 8 brings the opening of the hunting season in this territory, a fact that is awakening the interest of the sportsmen who do not already possess them to get licenses to go afield for hunting purposes.

Today a crew of men in the employ of the N. Y., N. H., and H. railroad was engaged in repairing the Main street crossing, over which two trunk line highways pass. New ties were put in, covered with rock ballast, over which a sort of amiesite mixture will go to make smooth traveling. The Franklin street crossing will receive similar treatment.

Members of the Killingly Woman's club will be guests this Thursday afternoon at The Elms on Church street, Miss Emily M. Morgan, the owner of the beautiful place, being the hostess.

Four marble columns, each 16 feet in length and for use on the front of the new Brooklyn Savings bank building, were transported from the car to the building site this morning.

Some time during October work being done by a highway contractor on the Danielson-Providence highway improvement will have been sufficiently advanced to allow free travel from the junction of Reynolds and Stearns streets to the eastward end of the job, near the Mazzerelli farm. Thereafter the new cut-off through the fields to Main at Hutchins street will be completed without any interference for traffic.

Alfred Gosselin of Danielson received the award of a gold piece at Kum-Along-Inn last evening.

It is in the cards, it is said, that one of the important improvements having to do with highway lanes will be the replacement within a year or two of the Quinebaug bridge by a modern concrete structure. The present bridge, an iron, arch structure, was built 40 years ago and has withstood the test of time well, but was never built with the present heavy traffic in view.

John A. Masscerelli of Hartford was a visitor with Danielson friends today.

PUTNAM

TALBOT ENTERS RACE FOR DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION

(Special ot The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, September 26—Leon A. Talbot, a leading Putnam business man, has entered the race for the nomination as a candidate for representative from Putnam. Mr. Talbot's name will be offered to the democrats of the town at their caucus to be held early in October.

For a number of weeks political "dope" contained stories that Mr. Talbot would seek a seat in the house of representatives at the next assembly of the legislature, and today he confirmed the fact.

Mr. Talbot is a native of Putnam and has lived the greater part of his life here. During the war he was in the A. E. F., and saw foreign service. His aspirations for representative are his first interest in local politics.

In the republican ranks this afternoon word was passed that William Pechie, now serving his second term as representative from this district, and William Davison, may be candidates for representatives to the legislature in the fall elections. Whether any opposition will be given the two men in the caucuses is not known. Pechie has served two terms and is a very strong probability for re-election and there is little doubt expressed that he will be opposed in his run for the third nomination to the office. Davison, if he runs for the nomination will oppose Samuel Rich, the present representative but it was recently announced that Mr. Rich had decided not to run again. Until late this afternoon, information regarding other candidate prospects in the republican field could not be secured.

Joseph Mason, of Mechanicsville, arrested Tuesday afternoon by State Trooper Castagna of Danielson barracks, was given a continuance in the city court of Putnam today, and his case was carried over until the session of Monday morning, due to the trooper's inability to be present at court. Mason is charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

A unique programme was presented at the weekly noonday luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club this noon when Subbo Nickoloff, a member of the club addressed the members on the subject of his native country, Bulgaria. In the course of his talk, Mr. Nicoloff donned the costumes of dress typical of the Balkan state from which he came "Nicky" as he is called, had with him a number of the different garbs, which he exhibited to the club. The talk proved very interesting as well as instructive, which was proved by the attention that was devoted to him.

A third appeal to the local chapter of Red Cross was received from the national headquarters of the humanitarian organization, urgently asking for the necessary funds to be raised and directed to the national fund that is daily providing needs in the stricken island of Porto Rico and in the devastated region of Florida, as the result of the recent West Indian hurricane. The necessity of funds to aid the sufferers is shown by the following telegram received this morning by George W. Baker, chairman of the Putnam chapter of Red Cross.

"We have just received reports from Baker in Porto Rico and Schafer in Florida, which indicates needs in both places, far exceeds the earlier estimates. There are four hundred thousand in urgent need of aid with grave health problems in Porto Rico. In Florida 15 thousand families, require immediate aid and later rehabilitation. We have wired chapter of these conditions and have increased their quotas accordingly. An absolute minimum of five million dollars will be required. Please get behind this and help chapters to organize and raise their full quotas.—James L. Feiser.

Money is not the only question, but clothes for women and children is being appealed for. These may be left at the Red Cross rooms on 10 Ballou street or at the store of the Byrne Co., on Union square.

A death in Putnam Tuesday evening was that of Lucian Deyencizo, 2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Luigi Deyencizo of Walnut street. The child was stricken on Monday, and died during the early hours of Tuesday evening.

The selectmen of the town of Putnam appointed at their regular meeting held Monday evening a board of poll tax enumerators who will compile the list of voters. The men chosen for the work were: Rosario Beausoliel, William Pechie, George Potvin, and Joseph Rayno.

With the town election set for next Monday, October 1st, there has been little advance interest placed in the event and it is believed that only a few voters will turn out to ballot since there are no contests for any town office. That actual contest is year took place at the caucuses and candidates nominated for office were elected at the time of their nomination. Like Putnam, the neighboring towns, will have no contests as all possible contest was settled at the caucuses.

Putnam today was caught in a northeast gale that brought the mercury down to record points for this time of the year. The cold showers late last evening left the city with lowering temperature and brought out the first fires in many of the buildings.

Miss Lillian E. Hawks, of Battle Creek, Mich., is spending a few days in this city with friends.

MANY VISIT THE "CRUCIFIXION OAK" NEAR WEBSTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 26—Scores of Putnam residents have been driving to what is known as the Gore road, in the vicinity of Webster, Mass., to view the strange illusion that represents the crucifixion. The "vision" it has been learned, is being caused by the striking of light rays from an electric street light onto the trunk of a large oak tree. The form of the cross is perfect from any angle, and in one position one may see the body of the Saviour on the cross.

A considerable amount of space devoted to the unusual illusion by newspapers has caused hundreds to visit the scene each night. Tuesday evening cars from all sections of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island drove up to the spot and gazed at the rare illusion. Many whose belief that the spectacle is the work of divine power, fell to their knees and offered a short prayer at this site which overlooks Webster lake. It is thought that the clergy will comment on the fact in sermons on next Sunday, in the churches of the city, since some of the pastors have visited the spot.

Onslaughts were made on the newsstands of the city late this afternoon for the latest evening editions, when rumor gained circulation that the case of Lalone and Raymond, Worcester boys charged with the murder of State Trooper Irving H. Nelson, had been forwarded to the jury to deliberate upon and send back a verdict.

Captain John J. McGarry, commanding officer of the headquarters company of the 43rd division of national guard, Putnam's military unit, stated today that he had received official notice of the opportunities offered by the government to the guardsmen to gain an appointment to the United States military academy at West Point through a series of competitive examinations that will be issued soon. Captain McGarry said he will make the contents of the order public within a few days.

SOMERS

Rev. Edwin Thomas Jones' subject for the Sunday morning sermon was "Reasonable Faith." The subject for the children's sermon was "Cleanliness Is Next to Godliness." Two good sermons were preached.

Plans are about complete for the 90th annual Four Town Union fair to be held in Somers in October. The exhibition of cattle, horses, swine, poultry and pet stock will be on John Hunt's field, the other exhibits will be arranged in Piedmont hall and the chapel. Starting at 11 o'clock, there will be a series of band concerts, and at 2 o'clock the parade will take place. In addition to the parade prizes, Judge Ernest S. Fuller has offered $10 to be given in prizes for the best parade entries in the boys' and girls' department. Judging in all departments will be by experts from the Agricultural college at Storrs. The union consists of the towns of Enfield, Ellington, East Windsor and Somers. The Ladies' Aid society plans to serve a dinner the day of the fair.

Mrs. Joan Hunt and her niece, Miss Emily Kelly have returned from a week's trip to Niagara Falls and a motor trip through northern New York.

The Women's club is to hold a reception for the teachers of the town at Mrs. Raymond S. Bugbee's Thursday evening. Assistant hostesses are Mrs. W. Colton Bliss, Miss Mabelle P. Gager and Mrs. Clifford J. Parsons. Dr. Wilhelmina Key will give an address on "Being a Biologist." The next meeting of the club is to be at the home of Mrs. Anna L. Pomeroy, Oct. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. McVarish entertained the former's brother and wife and two children from Boston last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mugsell and children have moved from North Somers to the cottage of the Misses Davis, east of the center.

SMITH'S ATTACK

It was old stuff that Candidate Smith talked about in Helena. It was a representation of much of that which occupied so much time at the convention at Houston. It was furthermore like carrying coal to Newcastle, for to tell the people of Montana what they already knew because of the part which Senator Walsh played in it, and which he could have told so much better himself, was far from enlightening.

This was a matter disposed of at the last national election. The country was aware of what had taken place. It knew who were involved in it and it knew that they had been punished. It took place in a republican administration and it was conduct that was published in a republican administration. No where, nor at any time, was it shown that Mr. Hoover knew anything about it.

There can be no disposition to cover up the part which Fall and the others played but it is grossly unjust to place any of the blame for it upon innocent shoulders. It is a matter which has had a thorough airing, where rigid prosecution has followed, and upon which the voters had a chance to pass upon it when President Coolidge was elected to his full term by more than 4,000,000 plurality. That indicated that the country regarded the offense as personal and so voted. . . . .

To undertake to create the impression that the situation was something new and to try to poison public opinion by rehashing an old story and attaching Mr. Hoover's name to it just because he happens to be the candidate for president at this time indicates the kind of a political game that Mr. Smith is playing. Such tactics have their reaction quite the same as the preaching of any injustice. There may be voters whose intelligence can be imposed upon by such a speech but the number is small. He knows that Mr. Hoover had no more to do with the Fall affair than he did and the cunning manner of trying to make some people think he did will be certain to carry its own backfire. Trying to get into office by blackening the record and character of an honest man indicates a desperate plight.

MORE SPEED

Speed is demanded in ever increasing directions. We see it in the streets, we note it on the high seas, we hear it on the railroads, on the race tracks and in the air. It is speed, speed and more speed.

From the postoffice department there comes the information that a 24 hour air mail service between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts can be expected. A big reduction in time has been made by the present cross country air mail service. Distance has been eliminated and yet there is not only a demand for still faster service but the department is ready to promise it.

Between Salt Lake City and San Francisco it is necessary to establish a system of lighting for the guidance of the fliers at night. As soon as that is completed the faster service will be ready and at the same time there will be put into use new and faster mail planes. These will be of the army and navy fighting types capable of making 140 miles an hour and like the present machines will be provided and maintained by the air lines holding the contract.

When it comes to handling mail in such a manner that it can be sent from one point to the other almost as quickly as mail matter can be picked up, sent to and delivered in eastern cities it marks a development which is not only characteristic of the times but which points out the marked contrast to the days when mail was carried over much of that route by stage coach or pony.

Such a prospect directs attention to the development which has taken place in aviation in this country and bears out the confidence of the department in employing it for the fastest handling of mail matter. At the same time faster mail deliveries are being made from ocean liners through the air and it cannot be a matter of many years before the transportation of passengers will be getting equally as serious attention. The mileage which is being covered daily through the air is not only steadily increasing but in this respect at the present time this country is already a leader.

FOR DISARMAMENT

Evidently the league of nations is not willing that the disarmament question should be pigeonholed or forgotten. Thus far it hasn't been possible to make much progress, but with the insistence by the assembly of the league of nations that further steps must be taken with a minimum of delay and the resolution of the disarmament commission calling for a convocation of the preparatory commission by the first of the year it shows a disposition to push the effort.

Disarmament is a question which affects the various nations differently. There exists that same suspicion that surrounds international conduct. Certain nations are ready to act within specified limits. Others are willing to establish different restrictions and some are bound to hinge their action upon what others do. Disarmament, or limitation of armaments, must be accomplished gradually. There seems little possibly that it can be done at one fell swoop.

At the Washington conference there was a desire on the part of some of the nations to establish greater restrictions but it was prevented through the opposition that developed. Since then efforts have been made to put those provisions into effect but without success. Even the discussions under the last attempt under league auspices encountered much the same difficulty.

If there is to be a resumption of the arms parley the first of the year it will be welcomed by those who are striving to erect such aids in behalf of international peace, but if it is called it will be expected that the commission has so shaped a plan that there are reasonable expectations of getting favorable action.

The reduction of armaments should continue to go forward. The good that has been accomplished by such steps as have been taken urges further reductions. It is not probable that complete disarmament will be accomplished but a steady reduction leaves much to be achieved toward such a goal. It is inevitable that the league should be conscious of its responsibility in this respect.

TAMMANY HALL

Much is being said in these days in behalf of Tammany hall. There are those who are trying to offset its reputation by extolling its work as a charitable organization in the distribution of aid of various kinds where it seems to be needed. It may or may not be solicited but the expectation is that there will be some political return. That is the way in which it gets its control and is able to hold its grip.

That of course deals only with one side of Tammany, the side that is presented when criticisms are heard. Not so much is said by the apologists about the other side. They are not inclined to go into history and the records.

They don't even resort to quoting the Encyclopedia Brittanica which says among a lot of other things that "The grosser forms of corruption that prevailed under Tweed did not as a rule prevail in later years. Instead the money raised by and for the hall and its leaders has come from the blackmailing of corporations, which find it easier to buy peace than to fight for their rights; from corporations which desire concessions from the city, or which do not wish to be interfered with in encroachments on public rights; from liquor dealers whose licenses are more or less at the mercy of an unscrupulous party in power; from other dealers, especially in the poorer parts of the city, whose business can be hampered by the police; from office holders and candidates for office; and, lastly, indirectly through corrupt police officials, and from the criminal classes and gambling establishments in return for non intervention on the part of the police."

It is an organization which deserves to be looked at from all angles, and it is not surprising that there is a strong opposition to any extension of its influence.

MEXICO'S NEXT PRESIDENT

Mexico was anticipating a constructive administration under President-elect Obregon. His assassination presented a serious problem, but by the unanimous action of the Mexican congress in selecting as provisional president Emilio P. Gil, a member of the Calles cabinet there are indications that the situation has been well met.

President Gil is a civilian, something new for the Mexican presidency, but he is a man who has been in close touch with the policies of the present administration and who has ideas of his own, back of which it is to be expected in view of the vote, that congress is prepared to stand.

When Obregon was elected it was indicated that it was expected he would continue the good work that had been done under his previous administration and during the Calles term. His loss was severe but it would appear that it has been realized that Mexico is not a one man country. It has proceeded to make a strong selection, chosen a man who is known to be well disposed toward this country and an upholder of the progressive policies which have been getting and keeping Mexico away from the revolutionary tendencies.

President Gil faces no easy task. He has problems before him which will require early and constant attention. There is much to be done in the furthering of the policies which are already established as well as in the setting up of new ones. Mexico appears to be fortunate not only in having such a man for the office but in being able to get such support for an individual of merit who doesn't attempt to demand the office because of his military career.

UNOBSERVANT EDGAR

The bridge was up! Mary jerked impatiently at her cuff and looked at her watch. Five twenty-five. Never before had the bridge been up at 5.25.

The cab meter ticked loudly and Mary clasped her fingers together. Only five minutes to get into the store and here they were waiting while a slow pleasure boat steamed deliberately down the canal to the lake. Only five minutes to buy a coat flower for tonight and no other five minutes could be so important. Edgar's letters from New York had been so indifferent—so matter of fact. He had even delayed some hours in coming home. If she met him appearing drab and uninteresting he would say—oh, well, she knew what her husband would say. Edgar had no patience with drab women.

The bridge was going down now; Mary looked at her watch again; three minutes left. She leaned forward in her seat and held to the guard rails in the cab. She paid the driver and ran toward the door of the store. Through the swinging glass she saw a pompous, clean-cut man coming toward her, and above the din of the street she heard the store's "closing bell" ring.

Mary pushed frantically against the glass, but the pleasant man said gently, "The store has closed, madam."

Mary's shoulders drooped and her arms hung limp at her sides. No flower! She did not have time to go home after an old one, because Edgar's train got in at 6 o'clock; she had barely time to walk to the station.

The streets were crowded and people hurried along the sidewalk, bumping into one another in their haste. Mary could see hundreds of coats with colorful flowers on the collars. Tears began to streak her cheeks.

"Just to think," she sobbed to herself, "I planned all week upon meeting Edgar. Look at these new shoes, at this new dress and this lovely new hat and then just to think I'd forget anything as important as a new flower until the last minute. And that color at the neck is indispensable. One just must have it on a drab winter coat and late in the winter especially. It is absolutely essential. What will Edgar think?"

She walked blindly toward the station. That was always the way in which little things affected the whole world. She turned the corner.

"Violets, 50 cents—nice big bunch!" A little man who shivered in the late winter air stood beside a stand of fresh flowers. Mary pushed toward him. She hummed a little tune as she walked into the station.

Edgar's eyes beamed as he saw her waiting for him. He was speechless as he helped her down the steps and into a cab. The sweet odor of violets scented the cab as they drove through the evening dusk, but Edgar did not speak.

At length Mary looked away from the window, but her mouth was drawn into a pout as she said: "How do you like the coat flowers?"

"Coat flowers—what the dickens are they?"

"These, silly." Mary pulled her collar up to show the violets in the light from the street lamps. "I almost missed your train to get them to wear for you and they looked so nice and so fresh. I've waited for you to speak about them all the way from the station. I wish you'd notice more things, Edgar. It is awfully disappointing to plan and plan for an effect and then have it completely lost. And the trouble I took to get these violets! I hope now that I've called your attention to them you'll appreciate the effort. You're so unobservant, Edgar."

Edgar fidgeted, uncomfortably and then smiled. "That's one on you, old dear," he said. "I did miss my train out of New York just to get this new hat and you don't even know that I have a hat on my head." His eyes twinkled as she looked up surprised and wide-eyed at his new tan felt. "And further, I wish you'd notice little things like that. Husbands like to be appreciated, too, you know."

His words were wasted, for Mary was laughing into her purple violets. —Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—There is no more lonely or aloof spot in Washington in these days of hectic pre-election political speculation than the majestic capitol building itself; the very hub of the nation's political life.

With its vast bulk looming grandly from the gardened hillside of its setting at the eastern end of the mile or so of Pennsylvania avenue, which is the gamut of public life in Washington, the great building is all but deserted by its usual uproarious political population. It is given over to the care takers and the slow trickle of late summer tourists traffic wandering about the echoing corridors to harken as tired voiced official guides recite for the millionth time the story of its evolution.

Not a baker's dozen of senators or representatives is to be found about offices in the flanking wings of the two office buildings which house their personal quarters. Hardly a handful of the permanent employes of congress of any rank remains on the job.

The political lords of all the domain and circumstance are off mending fences at home or taking their share in the national campaign. Their henchmen of the congressional payroll are away vacating or doing their political bit for the man or the party to whom they owe their jobs.

Set Amidst Beauty.

Never is the scenic setting of this structure, which is the political heart of America, more beautiful than in this season of the year. Down the sweeping hillside roll the old lawns, smooth, close cropped green velvet under golden sunlight. Mighty shade trees, each a perfect specimen of its species and all for years constantly under the watchful eyes of skilled tree-dentists who have plugged every burrowing inroad of decay with slit-saving cement, cluster in picturesque irregularity amond the bordering clumps of many hued shrubbery.

On the wide, empty reaches of the terrace, where all a long bright day will not see a hundred people pass, the stone boxes that greet each season with its own special blossoms and colorings are aflame with scarlet sage, vivid against the neutral tint of the stone work. The noise of the city below comes up to this place of peace and quiet as a vague, far-off hum of life, all but lost in the rustle and sich of the wind among the old trees, trees that tomorrow will be flaming themselves in a riot of red and yellow and orange under the first touch of nipping frost.

Quadrennial Quiet.

Only at four year intervals does this brief time of restful quiet brood over the capitol. It is almost invariably coincident with the summer recess of congress in preparation for presidential elections. Then only does the grinding of the cumbersome government legislative mill stop utterly; then only is it that the continuing committees, busy with a score of problems, stand at pause while their members get about their own or their parties' political business out in the country where the votes are.

Among the government departments in the city down below there is always the steady, day by day business of government in progress. Cabinet officers and high officials may come and go on summer official jaunts or vacation outings; but the daily grind keeps up for hundreds of petty chiefs and the tens of thousands of government clerks. There are never enough of those away at one time to make their absence noticeable in the rush hours of the day.

YOUR HEALTH

The Cause of Decay and Pyorrhea

Under modern conditions of living, where all things have been made expedient and handy, the source of nourishment of our body tissues has been tampered with and made over with much consistency and thoroughness. This resulting malnutrition manifests itself in the for mof tooth decay and pyorrhea. In a vast majority of patients the decaying toota is the first evidence of malnutrition. This is because of the very limited blood supply to the tooth structure, and the very moment that essential mineral elements and vitamines fall below an optimum (fully sufficient) amount in the blood stream because of bad nutrition, conditions are ideal for the ravages of decay.

When a tooth begins decaying in the child or youth, it is a message to the parent that malnutrition prevails and the tissues are not being nourished. They will not and can not decay in the fully nourished animal, as is evidenced by the dental conditions of the wild man, or animal, of the forest. If you were to kill a fine elk or deer and find it had a great exuberence of pus pouring from its gums (pyorrhea) with most of its tooth structure lost from decay, only a few miserable stumps remaining where it once had teeth, you would no doubt discard its flesh as being unfit to eat Why is the elk or deer a fine, healthy, uniformly developed specimen, irrespective of age?

First because neither of them has a cook stove to volatilize the vitamines from their food, either while they are in the process of growth, or later when they have reached development.

Second because neither of them obtains food from which the mineral content and the germ element has been removed, devitalizing and demineralizing it until an optimum (fully sufficient) quantity of these food essentials is not contained in their food.

Third because no enterprising commercial concern supplies them their food in cartons guaranteed to be pure and predigested and reduced to a form that mastication is superfluous.

Fourth because a very small variety is the custom of each of their meals, so that their stomachs do not contain from 50 to 60 different food ingredients, thus practically dissipating any possibility of the 50 to 60 enzymes, or digestive ferments, from being elaborated to care for the ingeniously contrived mixtures which daily are introduced into the stomach of the human being.

The human body and the elk's body alike contain the same 18 elements. The elk attained its growth and maintains its maturity from nature's laboratory by an optimum amount of the 18 body elements plus an optimum aount of the food essentials known as vitamines.

The human body attains its development and maintains its maturity from foods which have been taken as far from nature's laboratory as it is humanly possible to take them—devitalized, demineralized, fractioned frozen, boiled, bolted, pickled, purified and predigested—then flavored with by-products of petroleum to restore the flavor which has been removed by processing.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

NEW ICE FORMATION DISCOVERED IN ALASKA.

Discovery of a unique semi-glacial formation on the slopes of Paviof volcano has been reported to the National Geographic Society headquarters here (Washington, D. C.) by Professor Thomas A. Jaggar, noted volcanologist, who is the leader of an expedition of the society now at work near the end of the Alaskan peninsula.

Professor Jaggar also reports the collection of data for a topographic map of 1500 square miles of hitherto unknown territory, and the assembly of numerous interesting geological, botanical and biological specimens.

The expedition is primarily for the study of the volcanic phenomena in which the Alaskan peninsula and the neighboring Aleutian island are rich; but while crossing the tundra and foothill country preparatory to scaling the active and dormant volcanoes, scientific members of the party have made a study of natural phenomena in general.

The peculiar icy formation on the foot slopes of Paviof is termed by Professor Jaggar "an ice jumble." It is almost, but not quite a glacier, he states. Explosive eruptions have dumped debris into the area for years, he explains, and this has been frozen together. The matrials consist, Dr. Jaggar writes, "of ice, gravel, boulders, bombs, pumice, ash and sand in a vast hummocky sea of jumble. Four streams flow from the front of this near-glacier. Near-by and above, Paviof volcano fumes constantly form its symmetrical cone, an American Fujiyama.

On May 31 Professor Jaggar and his assistants scaled a newly found volcanic peak which he named Dana volcano, for J. D. Dana, the leading American volcanologist of the nineteenth century. During this climb the party bagged for museum purposes a huge Kodiak bear, which measured 13 feet from paw to paw, diagonally. These are the largest bears known.

In their reconnaissances members of the party have observed numerous animals: bears, foxes, wolverines, porcupines and herds of caribou. The region is a paradise for bird breeding, Professor Jaggar reports. Ducks and other sea birds, shore birds and land birds have been seen in great numbers.

In addition to its small power cruiser, "The Geographic," the expedition is making use of a unique vehicle called by Professor Jaggar an "amphibian." It operates as a boat in the bays and inlets and as an automobile along the beaches and over the smoother tundra. The device has been a marked success and with changes based on this summer's experience, can, in Professor Jaggar's opinion, be improved so that it will negotiate even the vast swamps and rough tundra that have been encountered. In exploring the swamps and hummocky tundra, the party now uses horses which are difficult to transport from civilization to such remote areas and do not thrive under such conditions.

Occasional mail contact with civilization is maintained by the expedition through the far flung fishing stations and their boats that operate along the Alaskan coast.

Stories That Recall Others

Knew the Resemblance

Louise has frequently seen her mother, when sewing, taking the basting threads out of garments. One day when corn was served on the cob for dinner, Louise got a silk off the cob in her teeth and said: "Mother, why don't the cook take all the basting threads out of the corn before she gives it to us to eat?"

An Easier Way

"I don't want to go to school," insisted Henry. "I don't care a thing about going. What good is it going to do me?"

"You can learn to read," said the father.

"That is just it," replied the boy. "I don't want to learn to read. Why can't they just tell it to us like they do on the radio so we won't have to learn to read?"

CHILD TRAINING

Why?

Frances E. David

"Mother, why do you beat the cake so hard?" asked little Mary as she watched her mother making a cake.

"I'm too busy for questions this morning," her mother replied. "Run outdoors and play."

The "too busy" mother failed to notice the wistful look in Mary's eyes as she closed the door.

In the next yard Helen and her mother were busy together.

"Come and see our garden," called Helen.

Glad of the invitation, Mary quickly joined them. Helen proudly showed her the small patch of ground that was her "very own" garden, all ready for the seeds. Helen's mother placed a small stick at each end of the garden and tied a string to them.

"Why do you put a string there, Mother?" asked Helen.

"It helps to keep the row straight," she answered as she showed them how to make a tiny trench for the seeds.

The girls took turns helping her to drop in the seeds and cover them with earth. To every question—and there were many—she gave a careful and satisfactory reply.

When the seeds were planted Mary expressed a wish that she might have a garden, too, but she added with a sigh, "Mother's too busy."

In later years Mary's mother was disappointed to find that Mary showed little interest in housework. Even her association with Helen, who still lived next door, did not awaken in her the desire to be of service in her own home. Her mother secretly envied her neighbor because of Helen's ability and love of home duties and openly lamented the lack of these qualities in her own daughter.

The "why" of Mary's early years had been too often unanswered and ignored. The beating of a cake, the planting of a seed—such trivial things to her mother—had been sources of amusement to the childish mind. Her imagination, unassisted, could not determine the causes for doing certain things in a particular, approved manner. Her mother had failed to realize that her questions were not mere idle curiosity but evidence of an active and inquiring mind.

Her "whys" gradually became fewer until she ceased to question regarding those things she did not understand. When problems had to be solved she struggled alone. To some extent, she thus gained independence of thought but by no means enough to compensate for the lack of a mother's guidance.

On the other hand, Helen's mother was repaid a thousandfold for the time and thought given to her small daughter's numerous inquiries. No question had been too trivial nor time too precious for an intelligent answer. Just as a tiny plant grows with sunlight and warm rains, so Helen's capabilities had unfolded and developed with a mother's thoughtful care and attention.

Chinese Finance

It is difficult for Americans to imagine a financial condition in this country so chaotic that one mint would counterfeit the output of another, but this condition does exist in China. There the silver and copper coins are produced by eight different mints, which are run for the profit of those in control, and the metal content of the various coins is reduced whenever practicable. Profit is made by releasing the pieces before their popular values fall.

Coins of the various mints have different reputations for reliability, depending upon public experience with them in the past. However, the Maritime Customs recently was forced to prohibit circulation of debased coins from one port to another, when it was found that the Anhui Mint had taken advantage of the prestige of the Canton Mint by circulating forgeries of the latter's 20-cent pieces. Large quantities had been released before it became known that the metal content of the forgeries was far below that of the originals.

RELIEF FROM LOSS OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

DON'T suffer headaches, or any of those pains that Bayer Aspirin can end in a hurry! Physicians prescribe it, and approve its free use, for it does not affect the heart. Every druggist has it, but don't fail to ask the druggist for Bayer. And don't take any but the box that says Bayer, with the word genuine printed in red;

Eczema Caused Years of Intense Agony

"I have suffered intense agony from eczema on my leg and other parts of my body for years, and received only temporary relief from other preparations. It is only a month since I started to use Peterson's Ointment and there is no sign of eczema or itching. You can refer to me."—Geo. C. Talbot, Buffalo.

"I've got a hundred testimonials," says Peterson of Buffalo, just as sincere and honest as this one. Years ago, when I first started t oput out Peterson's Ointment, I made up my mind to give a generous box for 35 cents, and I am still doing it, as every druggist in the country knows.

"I guarantee Peterson's Ointment because I know that its mighty healing power is marvelous. I say to every one who buys a box that it is rigidly guaranteed for eczema, old sores, ulcers, skin diseases, chafing, burns, scalds and sunburn, and if not satisfactory your money will be returned."

The Court of Last Resort

THE court of last resort in business is the public. Their decision is final. If the public places its approval on a product, accepts it, and buys it in increasing numbers, there are good reasons for it.

And if this happens in a highly competitive field like the automobile, then there are special reasons for gratification.

Durant Motors is experiencing this very thing, and we want the world to know about it.

We started with a modest production in January—the month of motor shows, and with each showing the demand increased, until the country gained the knowledge that the Durant new models were worthy of public interest.

And this is what happened during the year:

During the first six months of 1928 the entire automotive industry—motor cars and motor trucks—produced 6.4 per cent more units than in the same period of last year.

During this same period of time Durant Motors produced 49.9 per cent more cars and trucks than in the same period of last year.

The industry as a whole produced 132,906 more cars and trucks during the first six months of 1928 than in the same period of 1927.

Durant Motors alone produced 23,000 more cars and trucks during the first six months than in the same period of last year.

Durant Motors alone scored a gain of 17 per cent of the increased production of the entire industry

Returns from the forty-eight states of the Union show that Durant gained 20.5 percent in registrations during the first six months of 1928 over the same period of last year.

Durant Motors is growing seven times as fast as the automotive industry itself. We appreciate this increased public confidence.

In the next few days we are going to make a newspaper announcement relative to new Durant models.

They will appeal to the public strongly for these new cars possess the features the careful buyer wants, and expects in his car today.

The public will be given a new conception of motor car value.

Your motor dollar will buy more than ever before in the size of car, in beauty of body design, in power, in appointments, in speed, in durability and accessibility, and all up-to-the-minute features.

And this statement is made with a full appreciation of what is going on in the entire automobile industry

The name "Durant" will continue to stand for those principles in motor car designing, engineering, building and in the selling of popular priced automobiles to justify an ever-increasing demand from the public.

CORONER FINDS SKIDDING CAUSE OF FATAL ACCIDENT TO MYER NOVICK

In a finding made Wednesday on the death of Meyer Novick, 28, of this city, who was killed under a motor truck of the Boston bakery of this city which he was driving on the road near Fitchville on the morning of July 22, Coroner Edward S. McKay declares that the cause of the accident was the skidding of the automobile around a wet and slippery curve and that the death of Novick was not caused by the criminal act, omission or negligence of any other person.

Novick was a driver employed by the bakery and the injuries he received consisted of fracture of lower ribs, hemorrhage of lungs, fracture of lumbar, fracture of lower dorsal and upper lumbar vertebrae.

Describing the circumstances of the accident, Coroner McKay says in his finding that about 6:30 a. m. (s. t.) Novick was operating the automobile filled with bread, westerly on the Norwich-Colchester highway. He had come from Norwich, passed through Yantic and was on his way to Fitchville. The highway at this place is a main highway, of asphalt construction and in good repair. At the same time, the surface of the highway was wet from a rain which had fallen in the early morning hours, but which had stopped at the time mentioned. Novick operated the automobile along the highway at a reasonable rate of speed and passed the farm property known as the Tibbits farm. He continued on and came to a point on the road opposite the house of Edward Allen which was once occupied by the Bozrah creamery. The highway at this point curves slightly to the west, and under ordinary circumstances is not a difficult turn to make with an automobile. Novick started to follow the highway around the curve and his automobile started to skid. From the appearance of the wheel marks, the automobile skidded to the right, struck a stone and deflected to the left across the highway, onto the shoulder of the road. The automobile, after the first skid, became uncontrollable, and after hitting the shoulder on the left of the highway, continued skidding back onto the highway and again to the shoulder, and finally turned over on its left side, on the left shoulder of the highway. During the process of skidding Novick was thrown partly out of the cab of the automobile in such a way that when the automobile turned over and came to rest, Novick was caught beneath it, the top of the body failing and remaining on his back. This blow of the automobile caused the injuries from which he immediately died.

Novick at the time immediately before the accident was in possession of all his faculties, because he had spoken to a boy walking along the highway about 50 feet from the point of the curve. When the automobile started to skid he cried out "Whoa" and applied his brakes. At this time, according to the evidence, he was going at a moderate rate of speed, and was about in the middle of the road. In all probability, the automobile turned over on account of striking the left shoulder of the road and deflecting back to the highway.

NO CRIMINAL LIABILITY FOR C H. HILLIAR'S DEATH

Coroner Edward G. McKay issued a finding Wednesday upon the death of Charles H. Hilliar of New London, who died there on Aug. 22, 1928, from multiple fractures of the right femur and chronic myocarditis sustained four days before from an unknown cause.

After reviewing the evidence, Coroner McKay finds that he is convinced the death of Hilliar was not caused by the criminal act, omission or negligence of any other person, and he says: "In this case the material evidence leaves the question of criminal liability for the death of Charles H. Hilliar gravely in doubt. While all the testimony is given truthfully, by honest witnesses, taken as a whole it does not establish the circumstances or the causes for the said injuries sufficiently to hold anyone criminally responsible for the death."

In the late afternoon of Aug. 18, Mr Hilliar boarded an open trolley car at the "parade" in New London, the car being in charge of John P. Fitzgerald as motorman and F. H. Hoagland as conductor. The car made a stop to let on a passenger on Williams street, near Bayonet street, which was Mr. Hilliar's home, and it was after this stop that Hilliar left the car, the coroner finds. After the car had started and gone along Williams street, the coroner says in his finding, Hilliar was found lying in the street in a dazed condition. He was picked up and brought to the veranda of his home and there complained of a pain in his right leg. One of the neighbors who came to help him saw his condition and notified a brother. Eventually Hilliar was brought to a private hospital where he died a few days later while an operation to reduce the multiple fractures of the right femur was being performed. When he was admitted to the hospital he was in a shocked condition, caused by the injuries. This condition continued during his stay in the hospital and prevented him from giving an account of the cause of his injuries. At the time of admittance to the hospital there was evidence that Hilliar had imbibed of intoxicating liquor.

During the investigation into the death, the finding continues, testimony of witnesses who were in the vicinity of the place where Hilliar left the car was presented, with the result that there is a direct conflict in the effect of some of this testimony. In the main the testimony of the conductor of the car and a passenger who was in the rear seat of the car is at variance with the testimony of a neighbor who was sitting on the veranda of a house which was located at the point on Williams street where the car stopped, but so located in that side of the street which would place the trolley car between the house and a passenger standing on the street ready to board the car when stopped, or a passenger who had left the car while using the running boards or steps. The testimony of the passenger and the conductor was substantially that when the car came to a stop, Hilliar, who appeared to be in an intoxicated condition, was assisted from the regular exit of the car by the conductor, and was placed in the street in a standing position. Hilliar was then near the rear end of the car and about two feet away from it. The car started and left Hilliar standing in the road until the car had cleared him and gone on its way.

The testimony of the neighbor was substantially that the car came to a stop to allow a passenger waiting in the street to board the car. While the passenger was boarding the car, Hilliar rose from his seat and started to alight from the car. He had taken one step down when the conductor, who was standing a few seats ahead of the seat on which Hilliar was riding, gave the signal to start. As the car started, Hilliar was thrown to the ground and lay there until after the car had gone by. He was later picked up and brought to the veranda of his home.

There is no question as to the nature of the injuries, but there are divergent views as to the circumstances which brought about the injuries. From the medical testimony presented, it is established that the injuries were caused by a direct blow on the right side of the hip. This blow could have been inflicted by a moving body or could have been sustained by a fall. Therefore, there can be no definite conclusion reached from this evidence that would make certain the circumstances of receiving the injuries.

"When the testimony submitted by disinterested witnesses is weighed, other things being equal, the element of opportunity for observation is the controlling factor. It is more reasonable to assume that a party who is within a distance of approximately ten feet from a given situation and whose view is not obstructed by any substantial obstacle, has a better opportunity to observe a given event than another party who is at a comparatively greater distance and whose view may be obstructed by numerous obstacles or whose attention may be unconsciously diverted by other extraneous events."

With this review of the testimony, the coroner reaches his conclusion as already stated.

ROTARY CLUB DISCUSSES PLANS FOR THE SEASON

Club business and a discussion of the concert by the U. S. marine band under the auspices of the Norwich Rotary club next Tuesday occupied the entire business session Wednesday noon of the Norwich Rotary club. President Edward L. Jewett conducted the meeting and John J. O'Rourke was the songleader. Reports of various committees were made by the chairmen and plans outlined for the coming winter months.

E. LaRue Bliven, chairman of the committee in charge of the band concert made a report that was none too glowing. He reported that only about half the tickets for the concert had been sold and urged that all members of the club put extra work into the sale of tickets during the next few days. Charles A. Saxton also urged the sale of tickets for the concert, stressing the fact that a percentage of every ticket sold goes to the Dr. John S. Blackmar Memorial fund for boys work, a fund which is used strictly for the benefit of the community. From the fund money has been used in helping many crippled children in Norwich, sending them to the Newington home for treatment and also in buying braces and medicine for those who must stay at home. It is a cause that deserves the support of Norwich people. Others in the club spoke along the same lines.

Committee reports were made by Herbert B. Carv, John J. O'Rourke and Charles A. Saxton. James E. Roantree, in charge of the program for October, outlined his program as follows:

Oct. 3—Talk by a club member on "My Business." Songleaders, Harry Shannon and Henry Lyons.

Oct. 10 — Meeting in charge of Charles A. Saxton chairman of the club service committee. Songleaders, Dr. A. C. Freeman and Frank Davis.

Oct. 17—Visitation of District Governor James Gunn. Song leader, W. G. Park and Henry J. LaFontaine.

Oct. 24—Talks on Immigration and Employment by a nationally known speaker. Songleaders, A. E. Payson and Charles Taylor.

Oct. 31—Business meeting. Songleaders, Nathan A. Gibbs, Arthur Brown.

FAIR GROUNDS READY FOR OPENING DAY

The fair grounds at East Great Plain were a hustling scene of activity Wednesday as workers made the final arrangements for the opening of the county fair this (Thursday) morning.

One of the busiest places was in the extensive midway, which has been arranged in seven streets. Such familiar attractions as the Ferris wheel, the merry go round, and the airplane swings are already installed and a lot of the features which have been at Rockville were to arrive here before daylight Thursday morning and get set up in time for the opening of the fair.

Across the track from the grand stand, the fixtures for two of the stellar acts have been set up, these including the tank and tower for the act by the diving horse and the tank and high ladder for the high diver.

Early arrivals of livestock Thursday included herds of cattle from Moecasin Brook farm, Petersham, Mass., and Locust rove stock farm, West Rutland, Vt.

A number of red Duroc hogs have arrived from Ohio, including one boar that weighs half a ton, and there were more sheep on the grounds Thursday than have been seen at the fair in a good many years. Among these was one with $16 worth of wool on its body.

The Storrs Agricultural college tent was up and the Canadian exhibit was on the grounds complete, all the space in exhibition hall was taken, the stables were filled with race horses, and great preparations were being made for the automobile parade which is to be held at noon today (Thursday). The plan is to have all motor exhibitors in line at 11:45 at the fair grounds, motorcycles leading the way, followed by pleasure cars, motorboats on trucks, motor trucks and specially designed trailers. The parade will go as far as the carbarn in Greeneville and back to the fair grounds. After the parade the dealers will immediately place their cars on display. It is proposed to have some unusual features in the parade. Superintendent Rockwood has been very much pleased at the interest taken in the show by the dealers in eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island who have this county for their territory.

The first gate at the fair grounds is to be used exclusively for foot passengers and automobiles will enter by the second gate.

The trolley line is to run cars to the fair grounds every 15 minutes, beginning at 10 o'clock, each morning of the fair.

ASSEMBLY OPENS YEAR IN COLLEGE AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Sept. 26—At the first assembly of the college, Acting President Charles Burt Gentry welcomed the returning students and the freshmen in the Storrs church this morning. In his message of welcome, President Gentry laid stress on four main points which he asked the students to strive for in the new college term. He also included in his address a letter from President-Emeritus Charles L. Beach expressing to the students and faculty best wishes for the new college year.

The four facts that President Gentry talked on mainly were as follows: First, to maintain a constant rising scholastic standing; second, an interest in the world of affairs; third, a better understanding between the faculty members and the students; fourth, that the students should assume more responsibilities in the state college administration.

President Gentry also mentioned the work which the trustees of the college have carried on recently in selecting new faculty members to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation this summer of many former teachers. He said that the college officials are planning to hold the fiftieth anniversary of the institution in 1931 at which time a history would be written.

Dr. Henry K. Denlinger, chairman of the assembly committee announced the speaker for next Wednesday will be Rev. Howard N. Gist, who will talk on the topic, "If I were twenty-one again".

Fined on Two Counts

Aristolelis Sideropoulos, known as "Snappy," of No. 18 Thames street was fined $25 and costs on each of two charges in the city court Wednesday morning. One charge was breach of he peace and the other was resisting arrest. His total bill was about $70.

Sideropoulos was arrested Tuesday night on complaint of his wife after he had beaten her in their home. While Officer Clifford Geary was arresting him Sideropoulos kicked the officer and put up a fight. He was so troublesome that the officer found it necessary to handcuff him. Sideropoulos is proprietor of a dyeing and cleaning establishment.

EXPECT MORE ARRESTS OF PHILADELPHIA POLICEMEN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Twenty-four civilian-clothed policemen, charged with extortion, bribery and conspiracy, marched two by two into Judge Edwin O. Lewis' court today to hear a former operator of a still describe how he had paid them nearly a dollar a week on each gallon of liquor he turned out under their alleged protection. All had been stripped of their badges and suspended from duty after their arrest last night. All were held in varying amounts of bail for court.

Police Captain Charles Cohen was held in $15,000 bond while the others were required to furnish from $1,000 to $2,500 each. Several confessed that they had accepted bribes.

The arrests brought the number of policemen taken into custody since the start on August 20 of the grand jury investigation of bootleggers and their "rackets" to 34—three captains, seven sergeants, 10 detectives and 14 patrolmen.

"And the end is not yet," District Attorney Monaghan declared tonight. "I expect to make the acquaintance of several more captains of police. There will be more arrests."

Praising the campaign of the district attorney and asserting that he was "four-square" behind the efforts to get at the at the bottom of alleged police corruption by bootlegge s, Mayor Harry A. Mackey declared that the law must be obeyed, "regardless of who it hits."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ASSEMBLY ADJOURNS

GENEVA, Sept. 26—(AP)—A warning that while the league of nations is firmly established in Europe its position in Asia is not assured was given the delegates of the league of nations assembly during its closing moments today by the Earl of Lytton, British statesman who spoke for India. The delegates of 56 nations who started for their homelands tonight with the ninth assembly a matter of history, were plainly thoughtful as the result of his speech.

SQUIRRELS ACT AS GUIDES FOR PINE CONE COLLECTORS

Gathering the cones of pines, firs, and other coniferous trees for sale of seed to nurseries or for planting in farm nurseries in a task for which it is difficult to give precise directions as to time and place, the United States Department of Agriculture has found. Sometimes cones may be ripe by the latter part of August and in other seasons the collecting may continue until mid-October.

However, the Forest Service is able to give condensed and authentic directions, "Watch the squirrels." That is all that is necessary to do. Squirrels are fond of the seeds of the conifers, and they like the seed ripe. They store quantities of the cones for winter feed, when, and not until, the seeds are ripe. So, says the Forest Service, "it is safe to commence collecting as soon as the squirrels do so."

Sometimes the squirrels prove even more useful than as mere guides. It is no easy job to pick the cones. Some people climb the trees, others use ladders. Some lop off cone-bearing branches, which tends to injure the trees and to decrease future seed crops. At best it is a disagreeable job, a sticky-handed job, for the resins of the cones, twigs, and leaves smear the hands, and a collector needs a bottle of kerosene to clean up at frequent intervals. "Squirrels," according to the Forest Service, "store cones around old rotten logs, among the roots of trees, along streams, beneath overhanging stream banks, and in similar situations. A squirrel commonly stores only a bushel or two, but hoards up to 40 bushels have been found. One or two bushels of cones is ordinarily a good day's collection from standing trees; from squirrel hoards it is often possible to collect several times this quantity. Another advantage of collecting from squirrel hoards is that the cones remain damp and closed and can be gathered after those attached to the trees have opened."

Open Winters

When snow covers the ground it preserves vegetable life without developing it. Snow is three times less powerful as a conductor of heat than rain; it screens the ground and prevents nocturnal radiation.

Vegetables, cereals in particular, can endure a considerable lowering of temperature if the fall of snow precedes the frost. Ground planted to wheat can pass through a period when the temperature falls far below zero if the snow covers it well.

While rain brings to the ground azote in the form of ammonia or nitric acid, snow enriches the soil in much greater proportion. A quart of rainwater contains much less fertilizing material than the same amount of hoar-frost or melted snow, and when the winter has been "open" or mild, when ther has been rain instead of snow, the farmer is forced to spend more money for fertilizers than when the winter has given the earth snow in abundance.

FIRST OF BANTAM ELIMINATION BOUTS AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S CARD
Two Star Bouts

Hughie Devlin of New London vs. Jimmy Picardi of Boston

Eddie Paul of Woonsocket vs. Eddie Corbett of Bridgeport

Young Bedell of New London vs. Young Ilison of U. S. Coast Guard

Emory Branch of Hartford vs. Norman Culbertson of U. S. Marines

Eddie Ardos, Coast Guards vs. Kid DeBartalo of Westerly

Young Tauff of Coast Guards vs. Kid Langlois of Sub Base
(4 rounds)

If the weather holds good and not too chilly the New London arena should be packed to overflowing tonight when Promoter Ernest "Pop" Fakourey stages the above card. Action is written all over the card from the curtain raiser to the two star bouts. The widest interest is centered in the Devlin-Picardi bout which is the first of a series of bouts to establish a suitable challenger for the New England bantamweight crown that rests on the brow of Harry Goldstein.

This attraction should prove a real snappy bout full of thrills and hard punching. These two bantams have met twice before and each holds a verdict over the other by the slighest of margins. So scant is the margin of victory in the other two bouts that each is striving for a knockout in tonight's setto to settle once and for all their differences.

Supporting this attraction is the Paul-Corgett bout which should be as full of action as the main go.

Paul, who does very little talking, is reputed to be able to give a good argument with his dukes. He has been training for three weeks at the coast guard receiving station gymnasium and in recent workouts he has shown surprising ability to sock sparring partners over the border into the land of nod.

Connelly's new welterweight comes from Woonsocket, R. I., but has intentions of settling in New London. He has met and defeated many of the more prominent lights in the welterweight division, including the redoubtable Jackie Horner.

Paul is a weaving, bobbing, two-fisted slugger, whose crouching tactics in the ring carry a strong suggestion of Jack Dempsey.

Eddie Corbett, a claimant of the Connecticut welterweight title, has an upright stance in the ring.

Three six-round bouts in the supporting card offer a variety of attractive talent. Johnny Bedell, New Bedford bantamweight, will meet Young Ilisan, Filipino titleholder in the bantamweight division of the coast guard. Eddie Ardos, coast guard featherweight, meets Kid DeBartlo of Westerly, and Emory Branch of Hartford, will box Norman Culberston of the U. S. Marine corps.

Young Tauff, coast guard, and Kid Langlois, Sub Base, will mix in a four-round bantamweight preliminary.

The show will probably be the last offering of the outdoor season at the Hamilton street bowl. Promoter Ernest Fakourey, said that if he finds it impracticable to stage another outdoor show, after tonight, he will make plans to begin the indoor season in about three weeks.

FOUR FORMER CHAMPIONS STILL IN TITLE PLAY

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 26—(AP)—Golf stalwarts of the women held their own today in contrast to the first round of the championship when the titleholder and a former champion were summarily removed. All four of the former champions playing in the second round won their matches and proceeded to the quarter-finals.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who won the title in 1909, 1910 and 1924, Miss Marion Hollins, the winner in 1921, Miss Glenna Collett, champion of 1922 and 1925 and Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, the 1926 winner, remained very much in the competition.

Miss Maureen Orcutt, runner-up last year and medalist in this championship, Miss Virginia Van Wie, the sensational young Chicago player, Miss Dora Virtue, the only Canadian player left in the title hunt, and Miss Virginia Wilson, resident of Chicago but champion of Canada, were the others who had a chance to win.

Miss Orcutt for the third day in a row was under woman's par for the difficult Cascades course. A score of 82 with 41 strokes each way is regarded as perfect for women. The New Jersey girl captured the medal with a count of 80 and won her first and second round matches with sub-par golf. She was out against Mrs. Harley G. Higbee of Detroit, today in 40 and was two under par for the six holes played on the second nine. Three up at the 18th she virtually settled the match when she dropped a 70 foot putt all the way across the green. The end was in sight then, and it came when, following a half at the 14th, Miss Orcutt sent her drive well on the 237-yard 15th where she won, 5 up and 3 to play, when Mrs. Higbie conceded a three.

BIRMINGHAM WINS OPENER IN DIXIE SERIES

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 26—(AP)—"Wild Bill" Hallahan of the Houston, Texas league team dazzled the Southern Association champions, Birmingham, for a while here today in the first game of the Dixie series, but his fast ball finally was turned on him for a trimming 3 to 0.

Today's game was the first of the series to determine the unofficial southern championship. Eddie Wells, leading Southern Association pitcher, opposed Hallahan. Both are left handers. Birmingham broke Hallahan's hold on the game in the fourth when Ernie Smith, Birmingham shortstop, sent a long fly into right field to score Bigelow from third. Birmingham added their second run when Shirley came home on a low throw by Hock. Hallahan turned in nine strike outs against Wells' three.

Holes Out In One at 340 Yards

LONDON, Sept. 26—(AP)—What was believed the most remarkable hole-in-one ever achieved was credited today to George Kirby, Southampton professional, who holed out his drive on the 340-yard ninth hole at the Stoneham course. This was declared to be the longest hole on which an ace has been made.

SECOND PLACE CLUBS HAVE OFFENSIVE ADVANTAGE

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—Oddly enough, when it comes to figuring the offensive strength of the major league pennant contenders the edge seems to rest with the clubs that are now doing the chasing, instead of with the pace setters.

The Giants have been outclubbing the Cardinals by a clean cut margin in the National league scramble. Normally the Yankee war clubs figure to be mightier than those of the Athletics but in the last few months the reverse has been true.

The explanation, in one case, that the Cards have had better pitching over the season's stretch to give them the slight margin they enjoy; in the other, that the Athletics haven't been able to beat the Yankees when it came down to a private fight.

Seldom in baseball history has any club shown the ability to produce hits in the pinch in the way the Giants have done to keep on the heels of the Cardinals. The winning punch has popped out anywhere it was needed in the Giant lineup, though perhaps Reese, Lindstrom and Hogan have wielded the mightiest maces.

The Cardinals have plenty of punch, too, but it hasn't been so consistent. Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey are two of the league's foremost sluggers, either is apt to bust up any ball game. But Frisch has fallen off badly in his stick work this season after a great start. George Harper is likely to break loose any time.

The slump of Babe Ruth and his outfielding mates at bat, as well as the loss of Tony Lazzeri's big stick for a considerable period, has softened the Yankee attack. Like the Cardinals, however, the power is there ready to be turned on. It is noteworthy that Ruth and Gehrig lead all rivals in runs batted in; for that Yankees probably would be a more dangerous attacking force in the world's series than the Athletics, who have performed more consistently at bat than the world's champions over the last two months. The Mackmen gained rather than lost in batting power by the shift that benched Cobb and Speaker, who, along with Eddie Collins, now form the greatest pinch-hitting array in the game. Al Simmons, Bing Miller, Young Jimmy Foxx and Max Bishop have been the big guns in the Athletics' offensive.

Taking the eight regulars in positions outside of pitcher, the Giants and Yankees have three leaders each, according to the latest unofficial batting marks. Here are the comparisons: Gehrig, Yankees, first base, .369; Lazzeri, Yankees, second base, .334; Koenig, Yankees, shortstop, .313; Lindstrom, Giants, third base, .356; Hafey, Cardinals, left field, .341; Simmons, Athletics, center field, .349; Ott, Giants, right field, .334; Hogan, Giants, catcher, .339.

CUBS CLOSE PHILLY SERIES WITH VICTORY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs closed their 1928 books with the Phillies here this afternoon by pounding the home club for an 8 to 3 victory behind the fine pitching of Perce Malone. This not only gave the Cubs 13 out of 22 against the Phils for the season, but also kept the McCarthy band in the pennant race—from a standpoint of mathematics at any event.

The Cubs crawled up one full game on the leading Cards, and now trail by four and one-half contests. The Bruins have five to play and the Cards have four, so any St. Louis victory or any Chicago defeat defeat would automatically knock out the Cubs.

Home runs played a big part in making today's game close for seven innings. Hartnett sent the Cubs into a lead of 4 to 0 with a circuit blow in the fourth, but Lerian hit one over the right field wall for the Phils first run in the next round. Chuck Klein collected his eleventh homer in the next inning with one on.

Augie Walsh pitched well for seven innings but the game went on the loose in the eighth after a pinch batsman in Walsh's stead forced the entry of Jimmy Ring into the box. Bob McGraw came to the rescue and finished. Score:

INDIANAPOLIS TAKES FIRST GAME OF "LITTLE SERIES"

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 26—(AP)—In an 11 inning pitcher's battle, the Indianapolis team, winner of the American association took the first game in the Little World Series from Rochester, International league champions, 3 to 2, today.

Steve Swetonic and Vic Keen, leading right handers of the two clubs, went the full route and held their opponents scoreless for six innings.

Two walks, one of them intentional, and a trick double in the eleventh gave Indianapolis two runs and the game, although Rochester pushed over one in their half and had two men on the bags when Kaufman flied to Warstler for the final out.

Cool weather kept the opening day crowd to a total of 4,700 paid admissions. The teams meet again tomorrow and then rest a day, playing here on Saturday and Sunday. Score:

BAKER GETS VERDICT OVER YOUNG CORBETT

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 26—(AP)—Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchel Field welterweight won the decision from Young Corbett third of California, in a twelve round bout here tonight.

Baker came back to outpoint the Californian after Corbett had staged a whirlwind attack in the early rounds. After the bell in the second round, Baker was dropped with a left to the jaw which brought a storm of protests from his seconds. The soldier at first refused to answer the bell for the third round but finally came out to run into another series of lefts to the head that had him groggy.

Baker weathered the attack and toward the end of the frame the Californian was dropped for no count with a hard right to the jaw. In the sixth Corbett again was groggy from a hard right to the jaw but the westerner clinched and saved himself.

In the last half of the fight Baker switched his attack from the head to the body and weakened Corbett with his punishing blows to score a victory on points.

Baker weighed 145 3-4 pounds and Corbett 146 1-4.

It was the second meeting between the two challengers for Joe Dundee's title. In the first Corbett was given a decision that did not meet with the approval of the fans and resulted in tonight's fight in which the ringsiders again disagreed with the judges.

Bobby Burns of Brooklyn won an unexciting 10 round verdict over Georgie Balduc of Lewiston, Maine. Burns weighed 138; Balduc 134 1-2.

GIANTS AND CARDS FACE CRUCIAL TESTS TODAY

(By The Associated Press)

The bulking form of Dazzy Vance cast an insurmountable obstacle into the upward path of the Cardinals at Brooklyn yesterday, and instead of gaining half a game while the Giants were idle they found themselves hauled down the same distance—in the more vital losing column—to a point only half a game ahead of the pursuing cohorts of John McGraw. The Cardinals now face the danger of being tied for first place today even if they win from Boston, as they should. The Giants have two against the Cubs, and could deadlock the scramble by taking both even if the Cards also won.

The St. Louis contenders nevertheless face something softer in three games against the Braves than the Giants have any reason to expect in their four clashes against the Cubs.

The Cubs won and remained in the race—mathematically.

All the American league clubs were idle yesterday. The Yanks are to play a double header in Detroit today by way of starting a five game series, and the Athletics will make their last stand against the White Sox, four single games being scheduled.

KOZELUH IS STAR OF PRO TENNIS TOURNEY

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 26—(AP)—Led by Karel Kozeluh of Czechoslovakia, professional tennis champion of the world, and Vincent Richards, American champion, six of the eight seeded players advanced to the third round of the professional lawn tennis championship today.

For the second successive time, Kozeluh lost only one game in three sets, defeating Henry Geidel of the Nassau C. C., Glen Cove, N. Y., 6-0, 6-1, 6-0. The European star displayed by far the finest game of any of the 16 pros who played today.

Richards had a closer struggle although he won in straight sets from Allan Behr of the New York Tennis club, a recent recruit to the professional ranks who was ranked 33rd among the amateurs of the nation in 1927. The scores were 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

In the quarter final round tomorrow, Kozeluh opposes Warren Kruger, young assistant at the West Side club, who today eliminated his superior, George Agutter, who was on the seeded list, 6-1, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4. Richards will oppose J. B. Maguire of the Orange, N. J., Lawn Tennis club who upset another seeded star, James Kenney of the Newport Casino, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

TOMMY SIPPLES TO PLAY WITH TAFTVILLE SUNDAY

To strengthen his attack as well as his defense Manager Jim Troland has signed up Tommy Sipples of Manchester to play the outfield against the J. B. Martin club in the second game of the series on Sunday. Sipples needs no introduction to the fans of eastern Connecticut. Every follower of local baseball knows that Tommy is a hard hitting and fast fielding outfielder and his presence in the lineup adds great strength to the club.

TOO MUCH VANCE FOR CARDS AND LEAD IS CUT TO HALF GAME

BROOKLYN, Sept. 26—(AP)—The long right arm of Dazzling Dazzy Vance sprinkled loads and loads of salt upon the proud tail-feathers of the strutting Red Birds here this afternoon, and just as the obliging fowl were performing all their smartest tricks for the delighted pitcher, Gink Hendrick stepped to the plate and unfeelingly slaughtered the flock of them.

The Gink did it with his little home run bat while three Robins were roosting contentedly upon every available perch in the seventh inning, with hardly a thought of moving from where they were. The Gink caught one of Red Bird Mitchell's choice spitters and sent it on a ride to far and distant parts for a complete trip around the bases and safe transportation home for all the Robins on the bases.

This blow enabled the home flock from Brooklyn to humble the St. Louis foe by a score of 6 to 1 and so reduce the mound city margin in the pennant race to a bare half game over the Giants, who sat idle in the chill of the stands.

The Brooklyn speed-ball merchant found the cold, bleak day not to his liking, and it seemed for a time that he would walk the Cardinals to exhaustion before the first half of the first round could be ended. Douthit, High, Frisch and Harper hit the trail around the paths on Vance's wild shots alone, and Douthit inevitably was forced across the plate.

Then and there the procession halted. The oil began to flow in the dazzler's right wing, and the Cardinals might just as well have hung up their bats for the rest of the afternoon. Five scattered hits were collected by the western leaders, but as many times Vance put on extra steam and breezed the ball past inert bats or saw those bats raise weak popflies in what might be termed pinches.

Little Rabbit Maranville, dean of all the Cardinals, opened up the fifth with a triple, the first hit off Vance, but stood frozen to third base in amazement as Mitchell, Douthit and High failed to bring him home. As a matter of fact, the rabbit himself was trapped off the base when Douthit missed the ball on an attempted squeeze, but he scampered safely back on Hank Deberry's poor toss to catch him.

The Cardinals never seriously threatened at any other time after the first. Vance entered the game aiming at a mark of 200 strike outs for the season, and rolled up seven to reach that exact figure. Jim Bottomley contributed three of these, and Orsatti and Douthit rounded out the total in the ninth after the Cardinals admitted they were sunk.

The dazzler has done his share and more for the Robins—and the Giants, too, it seems—this season. He retires to the sidelines with a mark of twenty-two victories and only ten defeats. The Robins regained Vance's lost ground in their very first time at bat and added one run. Hendrick beat out a single to short with two out, and took an extra base on Maranville's throw. Passes to Bressler and Bissonette filled 'em up, and Jake Flowers' pinch single emptied two of 'em.

Nobody knows the shortcomings of the Robins better than Vance, and he seemed content and resigned to worry along with that much of a margin. The outburst in the seventh, nevertheless was welcome enough, as it sealed the fate of the dazzler's last game beyond any doubt.

Passes to Deberry and Carey and a single by Gilbert set the stage for young Mr. Hendrick. His drive bounded away from Hafey in such an eyrie manner that there never was any doubt that even the Gink himself could score, and that means almost two home runs.

Hendrick's blow sent Mitchell into a stage of collapse, and Sylvester Johnson was rushed to the rescue. He did this very well, as the Robins once more had become normal.

The Giants can tie the Cardinals for the lead by taking two from the Cubs at the Polo grounds tomorrow even if the leaders win one in Boston.

DRIVES EIGHTEENTH GREEN AT GOLF CLUB YESTERDAY

Those who were sitting on the porch of the Norwich Golf club yesterday afternoon had the pleasure of seeing the longest drive ever made at the club. Chet Irwin, pro at Terryville who was a guest of Massie B. Miller following the N. E. P. G. A. tourney at Providence, made the drive. Standing on the eighteenth tee with a good following wind Irwin uncorked as sweet a drive as ever was seen at the local course. The ball travelled straight as a die out across the gully and hit just short of the green and rolled across the green and up the side of the bank that surrounds the back of the green. The distance from the tee to the cup is 353 yards and where the ball came to rest on the up grade is ten yards further. It is the first time that can be remembered that anyone has been on the eighteenth in one.

MANDELL WILL BE OUT OF RING 3 MONTHS

ROCKFORD, Ills., Sept. 26—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, will be kept out of the ring at least three months as the result of a fractured left collarbone suffered in the first round of his bout with Jimmy Goodrich at Flint, Mich., last night.

X-ray pictures today revealed the collar bone had been completely fractured. Mandell, following the advice of his physician, was forced to cancel his match with Lope Tenorio, scheduled for Cleveland, October 8 and several other attractive offers.

Mandell said the injury occurred in the first five seconds of the contest when Goodrich, the former titleholder, sent a wild swing crashing down to the collar bone as he stepped in to avoid the blow. Mandell stuck the round out, reported his injury to his second and they called a physician and the bout was stopped.

Although given a technical knockout over Mandell, Goodrich did not win the title as he had agreed to enter the ring over the lightweight limit.

Williams Not to Quit.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26—(AP)—Cy Williams, veteran outfielder of the Philadelphia Nationals, is not going to hang up his glove just yet, despite rumors that he would quit after this season and retire to his dairy farm at Three Lakes, Wis.

Williams signed a contract today to play for the Phillies next year. He has been with the Phillies for eleven seasons.

Where Hurricanes Are Born

The birthplaces of West Indian hurricans, such as that which has just devastated Porto Rico, and how and where they blow, are the subjects of a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Most of the so-called West Indian hurricanes come into existence over the warm seas, somewhere between the West Indies and the coast of Africa," says the bulletin.

"They are probably gentle little eddies of air at first, but gather momentum owing to differences in temperature and air pressure, until they become gigantic whirls sucking air toward their central vertices like gargantuan vacuum cleaners.

"The observer in the path of a hurricane can hardly believe that these destructive winds are whirls. He sees the effects of and feels a straight blast of air moving at great speed, overturning ships, trees and buildings. If he watches long enough, he will see this destructive blast almost completely reverse its direction. These winds are created by the pumping force of the central swirl; and while the center itself may be moving across country at the leisurely rate of eight or ten miles an hour, the winds rushing inward from all directions to disappear up the 'spout' reach terrific speed. The usual maximum speed is 100 miles an hour. The fact that the hurricane at San Juan blew at a rate of 132 and perhaps 156 miles an hour stamps this storm as of extraordinary violence.

The routes followed by West Indian hurricanes in general are similar, but the storms differ much in their detailed paths. They are born in the region of the trade winds. All of them first move westward, as the trade winds move, and most of them later turn northward.

"Many hurricanes make their turn northward well east of Porto Rico. A good many others strike south of that island as well as southward of Haiti and Cuba. But there have been all too frequent occasions when the storms have driven straight across Porto Rico or its island neighbors.

"Since hurricanes are formed by the interaction of heat and atmospheric pressure, the summer months and those of early autumn, when the cumulative effects of the summer sun are still to be felt, are naturally the periods of greatest hurricane occurrence. Porto Rico has not experienced a hurricane in June during the past 40 years, as shown by a study by the United States weather bureau. Only one or two have occurred in July. In August, September and October, however, the island has repeatedly suffered in varying degree from these destructive storms.

"The latest West Indian hurricane, like most of these mid-season storms, apparently originated east of the easternmost islands of the West Indies. It struck about midway of the Lesser Antilles, causing damage in the French island of Martinique, and probably in the neighboring British island of Dominica and the French Guadeloupe. It was then reported in the Virgin Islands, pedendencies of the United States. Only a few hours later its full force struck San Juan, at the eastern tip of Porto Rico."

HINTS FOR THE FARM

Cracks in slate, soapstone, or cement laundry tubs can be made water-tight with litharge and glycerin, mixed and stirred to form a smooth, heavy paste which should be worked into the cracks with a case knife. A paste of Portland cement and water, or the white of an egg and fresh lump lime, also can be used successfully for this purpose.

The new practice of putting a high finish on grass-fat cattle by feeding them a supplement to grass is increasing rapidly in certain sections of the middle west and the Appalacian regions. The supplements usually are corn and cottonseed cake or meal.

In regions where parasites interfere with sheep raising, it is best to breed ewes in time to lamb early and market before the parasites share the profits.

WESTERLY

A. L. BRIGGS BEACH COTTAGE IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 26—Due to the presence of people remaining at Quonochontaug beach the summer cottage of Asa Lloyd Briggs, of Ashaway, R. I., was saved from being burned Wednesday afternoon. The fire was started by an oil heater in the corner of the large living room, occupying the whole front of the cottage, the heater in some way igniting its surroundings where it stood near the great fire-place in the center wall of the house. The flames spread quickly around the room seeming to catch the wooden wall finish and the heavy rafters of the ceiling were badly charred.

Herman E. Learned, proprietor of Quonochontaug inn, from which the Briggs cottage was the third to the westward, reported that when he arrived at the house with a fire extinguisher the gas fumes from the burning woodwork almost prevented his reaching the blaze. By the aid of other extinguishers and water thrown on the flames the scorched woodwork was confined to the front room and the fire did not get into the partitions or under the floor above, though the house was filled and blackened with smoke.

A telephone call for assistance was received shortly after 3 o'clock. An alarm was sounded here for the out-of-the district fire. In a few minutes the Ahrens-Fox pumper and eight members of the Westerly fire department had started for the shore resort. By that time the flames had been extinguished, but Chief George E. Egger directed his men to remain until it was certain the fire was entirely out. A strong wind was blowing. The loss was reported covered by insurance.

The newly elected Westerly republican town committee met for the first time Tuesday evening and organized, with Everett A. Kingsley, chairman of the town committee, Mrs. Jennie H. Nichols chairman of the first voting district and Dr. Ronald Dove chairman of the second district. The time set for the republican caucus to name a town assembly ticket for the state legislature is Monday evening, Oct. 1st.

Members of the recently organized Smith-Robinson club were out Wednesday, looking for a locatic for the democratic banner which will be suspended across one of the business streets. The republicans of Westerly have already hung two Hoover-Curtis banners, one on Broad street and the other on High street. It looks like a hot campaign for Westerly.

At the meeting of Granite City Camp, No. 9159, Modern Woodmen of America, Tuesday evening, District Deputy Leo C. Murray of Woonsocket paid the camp an official visit and gave the members a brief report of Woodmen activities in Rhode Island. The roll call, entertainment and supper of the local camp in charge of the social committee will be held Tuesday, Oct. 9.

NOANK

DANCE HALL TEAM WINS PRIZE CUP AT FALL RIVER

The Dance Hall Nine baseball team left early by bus Tuesday morning for Fall River to play the Redmen's team, the tie off game of the series. Arriving in the mill city at 10 o'clock they were guests at the Main street hotel until game time. Coach Billie Crane had his squad down to Jackson field early to get some practice. It was 2:30 o'clock when Umpire Ferry's strong voice called "Play ball." Coach Billie Crane rushed in Express E. Mallett to bring home the bacon, with Talking G. Ward, catching. The fast ball Coach Allie Strongheart for the Indians was looking for Big Chief Long Boat to stop the Dancers of the fishing village with his forked ball. Lightning Panheart on the receiving dance hoppers found the fork ball for three runs before a man was out. But Big Chief Long Point struck out the next three men. Cheering from the 3,000 fans made it seem more like a football day. The cold wind was blowing across the diamond but plenty of thrills and good catches kept the fans warm. The Redmen gave a war cry as every player went to the plate. Shorty Burns, with two men on bases in the 7th inning lambasted the express ball from the Noank pitcher. It may be still going, but it landed in an apple orchard for a home run, tying the score 3 to 3.

Coach Billie Crane rushed in Right Hander Ebbetts to stop the Indians' rally. He did and made the next three heavy hitters kiss the air. Both teams did nothing in the next two innings. At the end of the battle the score was 3 to 3. An extra inning had begun when it started to rain. Umpire Terry kept the players on the go and in the 16th inning, with the Black Bottom dancers' turn with the willow, two men out, and a man on third base there was a chance for a hero. It came Ebbetts' turn at bat but Coach Crane pulled a Connie Mack trick, sending in Duncan Carson Jr., after two strikes and three balls on him, Indian Chief Long Boat put one waist-high; crack went the ball for two bases, winning the game—Dance Hall Nine 4, Redmen 3. The team returned to the fishing village at 10 o'clock singing and cheering, happy over the victory, also over bringing home a large loving cup. That game closes the season for the Dance Hall Nine, winning 24 games, losing 10. Now it will be football for the team.

James Kelley of Taftville was in the Sam Long, of Bridgeport and his pal, Billie Overall heard about Noank being a good place to go fishing. Hiring a boat the two young men went over to Palmer Cove for snapper blues. The day was a little cool, making the fish bite good, so in three hours of fishing they had 62 bluefish. Smiling Lang got a bite when the pole was leaving his hand as the fish was going fast. Pal Overall thought it was a young cod fish on the hook pulling hard at quick he got the fish in the boat. It was a snapper blue weighing 2 pounds, the largest one caught this season. So the record for fish caught goes to the city fishermen.

COLUMBIA

RED CROSS CHAPTER TO CONTINUE GOOD WORK

Several members of Columbia chapter of the Red Cross met Monday afternoon at the Town hall to discuss the future of the local chapter. After some discussion it was decided to go on and to hold election of officers Oct. 12th and afterwards conduct a roll call for members. Last year each district was canvassed with the result that 149 members were secured, 35 in Andover, 81 in Columbia, and 33 in Hebron. It is therefore felt that there is enough interest in the Red Cross to conduct another roll call this year. Of each dollar collected for membership fees, one-half goes to National headquarters and the other half stays in the local treasury provided it is used for some public health work. The Red Cross member therefore helps locally as well as nationally. The Columbia chapter has always been ready in time of need, it had a splendid record during the World war, and since then has responded generously to appeals for aid. In the fall of 1926, $146 was raised by Hebron, Andover and Columbia, which comprise the Columbia chapter, for the relief of the tornado sufferers in Florida. For the Mississippi flood victims $247 was raised, over twice the quota. In regard to the present call for help for Porto Rico and Florida, a telegram from headquarters gives the quota for this chapter as $200, and goes on to say, "Confident when people in your community realize grave need, response will be immediate and generous. Urge you bend every effort to exceed this quota if possible." It is hoped and expected that Columbia will again respond in the same splendid manner as in the past, and go over the top again with subscriptions. The paper, which is in the local post office, has already nearly 30 names.

LEADERSHIP— won in a year!

Now Every Minute Sees Another GENERAL ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR Placed In Some American Home

The General Electric Refrigerator was first announced just fifteen months ago. At that time, these Refrigerators were being placed in homes at the rate of one a day. Now they are going into American homes at the impressive rate of one a minute, every day.

A Nation-Wide Organization Has Been Created

At the beginning of 1927, fourteen dealers handled the General Electric Refrigerator. Today there are more than 5500. Where only 70 people were engaged, today there are 11,500.

This swift but sound growth is a tribute to the newest product of the Research Laboratories of General Electric—a complete justification for the fifteen years of research and experiment which were put into the development of this "years ahead" refrigerator.

Public Preference Has Been Won

The miracle of general public acceptance, all in a year's time, has come to pass—an acceptance which is keeping nine factories running at top speed.

Thanks are due to the foresight of the electric light and power men of the nation who have brought electric service to eighteen million homes. They have made it possible for General Electric Refrigerators, in ever-growing numbers, to aid in reducing the annual seven hundred million dollar loss in food spoilage in American homes.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week in Norwich there were only three building permits granted while thirteen applications for permits were received at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. The three permits granted included two for new dwelling houses, one to be for Joseph Friedman on Robbins court and the other to be erected by James W. Fraser on Hamilton avenue. During the past week there has been considerable progress made on local building work now in the process of construction.

The Masonic temple at the corner of Washington and Sachem streets is well along with the steel work practically completed and the walls built up to the roof. The interior work is expected to start within the next two weeks.

The new store front for the Self Service Shoe Co. in the Thayer building is being put in. The old front has been torn out and the woodwork for the new front is almost ready for the copper frame that holds the plate glass windows.

Ground has just been broken in Thamesville section by Contractor J. F. Healey of Norwich for a bungalow of six rooms, sun porch and bath for L. J. Buntheimer. The plans call for a large living room with French doors opening into a sun room at the front of the house. Connecting with the living room by a wide cased opening is a dining room, directly back of which is a kitchen with all modern conveniences. At the back of the house are two chambers, while across from the kitchen is a third, with bath accessible to all rooms through a hallway. Floors are to be of oak. Plaster and chimney work to be done by Michael Brennan of Norwich.

The permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton are as follows:

To Joseph Friedman, 1 Robbins court, to erect a frame house with sun porch. The house will be of the Dutch colonial type and will be 24x30 with porch 8x22 feet. The foundation will be of stone and concrete with brick underpinning. The exterior will be in wide clapboards and shingles. The interior will be in hard plaster and oak floors and trim. D. J. Barry has the contract. The estimated cost is $4,800.

To Daniel J. Williams to remove a shed to the rear of his yard at 89 Fourth street. There will be a small addition built on the end of the shed. The estimated cost is $25.

To James W. Fraser to build a two-story frame house on Hamilton avenue, for himself. The work will be done by the day. The house will be of the semi-bungalow type with seven rooms and bath. The dimensions of the house will be 30x33 feet. The foundation will be of concrete and cement blocks. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and shingles while the interior will be finished in oak and pine. The estimated cost is $5,075.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were five sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to six sales for the corresponding week in 1927. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $38,950 and $23,275.

There were 13 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, a decrease of six sales from the number for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $49,800 and $91,800.

New London

Plans have been completed for a gasoline station and showroom at 758 Broad street for Paul A. Salerno. The building will be of concrete block and stucco construction, 30x60 feet, one story high.

Plans for the service building in Waterford for the Connecticut Power company are being completed. The new structure, which will be arranged for service quarters and a garage, will be three stories high, of brick and steel construction.

Henry R. Griswold has filed an application with Building Inspector William Gunn, Jr., for permission to erect a two-story one-family dwelling in Grenada terrace. The structure is estimated to cost $6,500., Mr. Griswold being named the contractor. The house will be frame on a stone foundation and it will be 26 feet in height with 6 by 8 girders and bearing partitions 8 by 4.

Daniel E. Clark seeks to erect a dormer window 7 by 3 to a one-family house at 219 Vauxhall street. It is estimated to cost $1,000.

V. Pongetti, agent, seeks to build a woodshed 8 by 10 feet in dimensians at 44 Smith street. It is estimated to cost $50.

Henry Doherty has applied for permission to erect a two-car frame garage at 114-116 Squire street. It is estimated to cost $350.

Groton

A distinctive colonial bungalow, 36x32 with five rooms and bath, and single car garage of design to match the house, is now being built in Eastern Point road, Groton, opposite the residence of William Ward, for J. H. Kimber. The colonial entrance with its graceful column and double windows at either side, with flower boxes, give a touch of New England hospitality. The large living room and dining room connected by a cased opening extend across the entire front of the house, and at the end of the living room is a fireplace with colonial mantel. The kitchen is equipped with built-in cabinet, broom closet and dinette. Chambers are at the back with bath at the side. Walls are covered with bevel siding, roof with slate-surfaced shingles. Floors throughout are to be of oak. Plastering, fireplace and chimney work are by Michael Brennan of Norwich.

Gales Ferry

A charming bungalow of colonial architecture is nearing completion at Gales Ferry for Carroll Huributt. The floor plan calls for five rooms and bath. Living room and dining room extend across the front of the house, divided by French doors. There is a handsome fireplace, in one side of which is a "night can closet," giving a touch of early New England. The bath is furnished with highest grade plumbing, including built-in tub and pedestal lavatory. The kitchen is equipped with every modern convenience, including combination sink and "supper tray," built-in cabinet and broom closet, while off the back end is a dinette. Floors are of oak.

Mystic

At Ocean View Heights, Mystic, work has just been started on a colonial bungalow for Harold S. Fox. The plan calls for 36 feet frontage, with living room and dining room connected by a cased opening across the front, and a sun room opening off the end of the dining room through French doors. The chambers are at the back with bath accessible through a hall containing linen closet and clothes chute. The kitchen is to have all modern conveniences, including built-in cabinet, broom closet and dinette. Roof to be covered with multichrome slate surfaced shingles. Side walls to be painted white, relieved by touches of colonial green. A typical colonial entrance is an outstanding feature of this home. A three-car garage of harmonious design is included.

A. J. Van Dyke of Westerly has recently moved into his colonial bungalow just completed on the Moss farm plat off South Broad street. The home presents a charming appearance, painted white with colonial green sash and set off by window boxes. Chambers and bath are on the 2d. with living room extending part way across the front, connected with dining room by a cased opening. In the dining room is a large built-in china closet with full length glass door. The bath room is equipped with highest grade plumbing, including built-in tub and pedestal lavatory. The kitchen has a built-in ironing board and kitchen cabinet. A garage of harmonious design completes this attractive home.

Quiambaug

At Quiambaug, on the hill overlooking Mystic, there has just been completed for Mrs. A. Sherman of Brooklyn an arractive five-room bungalow. The roof is covered with slate-surfaced shingle side walls with gray dipped shingles. From the porch at the corner of the house there is an exceptional view of Fisher's Island sound and the hills on the west side of Mystic. Mr. Sherman, who has followed the waterall his life, chose this location on account of its wonderful water view.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

U. S. MARINE BAND PROGRAM APPEALS TO ALL

The programme of the United States marine band which will appear here Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Palace theatre under the auspices of the Norwich Rotary club for the benefit of the boy's work fund, is made up of a variety of selections. Each selection is chosen on its attraction and appeal to a certain group of musical tastes. There are numbers for the musical intelligensia such as Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 14 and Wagner's Overtures from "Tannhauser". There are selections from the day's favorites, blue melodies, "Valencia" and the like, while old-fashioned familiar folk song melodies are not forgotten. A real musical treat is in store for the entire community when this great musical organization plays here, one that the entire city should participate in.

Socialist Candidate to Speak

Norwich socialists are to have the opportunity to hear Jasper McLevy of Bridgeport, the party's candidate for governor, when he speaks here Saturday night at an open air rally at Ferry street. Mr. McLevy has been a member of the socialist party for more than a quarter of a century. He was born in Bridgeport and educated in the public schools of that city. For several terms he officiated as president of the Central Labor union of Bridgeport, and was vice president for a number of terms of the Connecticut State Federation of Labor. It is contended that it was largely through the efforts of Mr. McLevy that the principle of the workmen's compensation was enacted into law in Connecticut.

At the national convention of the socialist party held early in the year, he was elected as a member of the national executive committee.

Broadway Theatre

"Tempest," the John Barrymore screen masterpiece that New York acclaimed during a long run at $2 prices, will bring America's most distinguished actor to the Broadway theatre for four days in a romance of Russia's revolution, Camilla Horn and Louis Wolheim appearing in chief support of the star. The New York World thought "Tempest" the "finest, most genuine motion picture John Barrymore ever made" and "one of the most glowing film dramas which have come out of the west," while the New York Times called Barrymore's picture "a masterpiece . . . excellent entertainment."

John Barrymore appears in his first modern story in five years in "Tempest," for the action of the picture begins in 1914 and concludes in 1919. Camilla Horn, the German actress who was brought to America by Joseph M. Schenck, appears as the Princess Tamara, beloved by Barrymore, a peasant officer. Miss Horn was the Marguerite to Emil Jannings' Mephisto in "Faust," made by F. W. Murnau for UFA in Germany. In "Tempest" she makes her American film debut and according to The New York Telegram, she "is a blazing baby." Louis Wolheim, of "Two Arabian Knights" fame, has a very prominent part in "Tempest," so that comedy is assured. Indeed, in many scenes John Barrymore himself reverts to a comic talent revealed in earlier films.

Monster Durant Driveaway

The largest driveaway of Durant cars this year was staged at the Durant plant at Elizabeth, N. J., on September 20th. Over 150 cars were driven out on this one day by Durant dealers from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut after an enthusiastic dealer meeting at the plant, when new models of the Durant Four and Durant Six Series "60" were viewed by these dealers for the first time.

Ever since early spring, due to the great demand for Durant cars and the necessity of expediting deliveries, it has been necessary to augment freight shipments with dealer driveaways. "We had expected," stated Mr. H. J. Shorter, assistant sales manager of the Durant Co, Motor of New Jersey, "that as the summer season got under way, our sales would decline, as automotive sales usually decline at this period of the year, and that driveaways would not be required. This let up in demand did not materialize, in so far as Durant sales were concerned, and driveaways continue to be a necessity, with every indication pointing to even larger driveaways this fall."

Wm. F. Bailey is the local dealer. See Adv.—Adv.

"Well, I don't think much of women," said 8-year-old Joe, coming home from school.

"Why, what's happened to you and Katheryn?" queried his mother.

Patronize These Well Known Concerns

WHY NOT ALLOW THUMM'S TO SUPPLY YOUR PARTY NEEDS

Thumm's Delicatessen Store of 40 Franklin street is the proper place for you to buy those things you require for eating and for special parties.

It is always pleasant to know that there is a delicatessen store near your home, but it is more pleasing to know that Thumm's is located in Norwich.

As the time grows rapidly short before the special day when guests are to be entertained something must be figured on lest the housewife desires that terrible shock of running short of something to eat just at the time when it is needed the most.

Careful planning for wants for parties and special events has always been the policy of Thumm's Delicatessen Store, 40 Franklin street, and our store today abounds in hundreds of things which, gracing the table on those occasions will make the hearts of all housewives sing with joy.

Our cooked meats are known everywhere as a delicious treat and no less popular is our home-made mayonnaise. Utmost care is taken in preparing all foods in this store and every patron may rest assured that their purchase has provided them with the best money can buy.

If you are planning a party in the immediate future or if you are planning an outing of any kind let us quote you on prices and show you how to save money on your purchases.

FORBES & GRENIER WILL GUARANTEE GOOD PLUMBING

This is the time of year when people realize most what good plumbing has meant.

Fobes & Grenier of 62 Shetucket street, phone 1363, have always done efficient work and they stand ready now to handle your heating problem or plumbing work.

Before rushing ahead blindly why not consult them about plumbing or heating arrangements for your house or garage. Carefully prepared estimates always mean a saving of dollars in a new house. Careless plans, a mistake in radiation or boiler capacity, means the loss of hundreds of dollars during the lifetime of a new house owner.

A few more dollars spent at the start, the installation of a heating plant of sufficient size to properly heat house, and with no need of forcing of tons of coal as the winters roll by.

This type of service, one which looks ahead to the future savings, is the type specialized in by Forbes and Grenier. Let us handle your problems for you, and rest assured that we will handle them carefully.

ELDREDGE HARDWARE CO.KNOWN FOR GOOD HARDWARE

After having been in the hardware field in Norwich for many years we feel that we have the right to claim that the Eldredge Hardware company ranks among the leaders in the city. For years the quality of goods carried at this store has been kept at a high standard. Nothing has ever been handled by this store that has not been looked into by a representative of our firm to see that the good name of this company would not be injured through our selling that product.

At this time of the year we are making a special mention of articles and implements for use about the farm and home.

Of course you know that these things are but a few of many hundreds that we have on hand for home use. We welcome a visit by you at any time. Perhaps there is something you need about your home, something you have long denied yourself.

Come in and see us and let us show you why you should no longer deny yourself. A timely investment saves many dollars. See us and save now.

AETNA BOWLING ALLEYS PROVIDE EXCELLENT SPORTS

The Aetna Bowling alleys, located in the Majestic building, 55 Shetucket street, offers the Norwich people a fine home for fall and winter sports.

Bowling is always a pleasure at this time of the year and at the Aetna alleys you will find seven of the finest alleys in eastern Connecticut fairly tempting you to roll them down the alley to beat the 100 mark.

For years the Aetna alleys have been conducted in a manner which makes it possible for the men of eastern Connecticut to bring their wives and daughters with them to enjoy a game or two. Alleys at anytime may be reserved for women, excepting of course specified alleys which are held for tournament games now underway.

Besides the bowling alleys there are over a half dozen excellent billiard tables. Here again is a game which is as suited for the ladies as for the men.

The policy of the Aetna alleys has always been that of allowing only gentlemen to use its alleys and tables for pleasure and because of this policy has established the reputation of being an ideal place for winter games for the entire family.

LOCAL MERCHANTS CAN PROVIDE FINE SERVICE

Whether it is in the automobile tire business, the hotel business, contracting, or in any other line of business, listed on this page is the firm or the business house which stands ready to give prompt and courteous service.

In rainy or pleasant weather, whether it is hot or cold hundreds of local business men await the calls of the patrons for service, that kind which they allege cannot be provided by the concern in cities miles away.

In particular this is true of the automobile accessory business. A tire or tube purchased from these dealers, if it gives trouble, can be serviced best by the concern from which the purchase was made. If it's radio trouble it's the local dealer who gets the call for assistance. If it's any type of quick service you need—it's the local dealer who supplies it.

Back up this type of local service by trading at home. The local dealer stands ready to serve you—isn't it fair that you should give him your trade?

Let us estimate with you for a Memorial that will give everlasting satisfaction.

Cubby Bear Is Laughed At.

Who at himself can laugh will find
He's doing much for peace of mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

Cubby Bear was a very puzzled bear. He was so. He had had a new experience in life. He had met a stranger, chased him up a tree, shaken him out of the tree and the stranger had apparently been killed by the fall. Anyway, Cubby thought he had, for the stranger had to every appearance been dead.

"I don't understand it," Cubby kept saying over and over to himself. "I don't understand it. A fall like that wouldn't hurt anybody. I don't understand it." He was talking out loud.

"What is it you don't understand?" said Bobby Coon, whom Cubby chanced to meet just then.

Cubby sat down and told Bobby all about it. Bobby's eyes began to twinkle. Then Bobby began to chuckle.

"What are you laughing at?" declared Cubby rather crossly.

Bobby instantly became sober. "Where did you say you left this stranger?" inquired Bbby.

"Back here a little way," replied Cubby.

"Perhaps if I should see him I could tell you who he was," said Bobby, his eyes still twinkling.

"Come on!" said Cubby promptly, turning around. "You follow me and I'll show him to you."

So Cubby led the way back, with Bobby Coon following him. Bobby was having hard work not to chuckle out loud. Pretty soon they reached the place where Cubby had left the dead stranger. Such a funny look as

"What is it you don't understand?" said Bobby Coon

there was on Cubby's face when he discovered that there was no one there!

"Are you sure you have the right place?" inquired Bobby politely.

"Certainly!" growled Cubby. "Here's the little tree I shook him out of. He fell right down here. Somebody must have come along and carried him off."

"If that's the case you should be able to find their scent," said Bobby.

Cubby began to sniff around, but all the scent he could find was the scent of the mysterious stranger. Curiously enough, that scent led away from that spot. He looked around at Bobby Coon. Bobby had on a broad grin. Sammy Jay came along just then. "What are you grinning at?" demanded Sammy.

Bobby told him what Cubby had told him and Sammy began to laugh. Then along came Blacky the Crow, and when he heard the story he began to laugh. Cubby didn't know what they were laughing at, but he was sure they were laughing at him, and he began to grow angry. Most people are likely to grow angry when they are laughed at. Bobby saw this and he took pity on Cubby.

"Cubby Bear," said he, "you have a lot to learn yet. The joke is on you. But don't feel bad about it, because most of the rest of us have been fooled in just the same way. The stranger you met and thought you killed is not dead at all. That was Unc' Billy Possum, and playing dead is one of his favorite tricks. He has fooled a lot of people that way. I guess if we look around a little we'll find him. Sammy or Blacky ought to find him."

Sammy Jay took the hint at once. He began to fly about here and there over the treetops. Presently they heard him call. Then Bobby and Cubby and Blacky went over where Sammy was. There, poking his head out of a hole halfway up a tree, was Unc' Billy Possum himself. He looked down at Cubby and grinned. Cubby looked up at him, and in spite of himself he had to grin too.

"Brer Bear," said Unc' Billy Possum, "things are not always what they seem. Ah certinly am obliged to yo' for not trying to eat me when yo' thought Ah was daid."

HIGH SCHOOL COMING IN TIME, SAYS SUPT.

The school committee, Earle E. Gilbert, chairman, James H. Shea, secretary, and Richard J. Dudkowski, in the annual town report gives the actual cost of maintaining the schools as $56,455.28. The total cost was $65,598.78. The amount received from the state for tuition and transportation was $6,350.03, from the state for enumeration, $2,668.50 and library grant from the state, $125, a total of $9,143.53.

The report of the superintendent of schools notes that Griswold pupils have maintained their high percentage of attendance during the year. No serious cases of illness have lowered this.

More slate boards have been added to rural schools this year. They are a permanent investment and soon all will have them.

The superintendent says: We will be overcrowded during the coming year but we will be immediately relieved upon the completion of the new school. We then can take care of the growing population for at least five years. By that time we should be prepared to build a school both for Junior and Senior high school pupils. The growth in high school pupils shows us that a local high school must come in time. We should know where it is to be placed and prepare for it. Several Griswold pupils continue to take advantage of opportunities offered by the Putnam Trade school. This school is absolutely free to all pupils.

Report cards are issued each eighth week. Parents should inspect these carefully and consult us when it appears necessary.

Intelligence tests were given to all first grade pupils and this will be continued throughout the grades this coming year.

Junior achievement is to be tried this year in the class rooms. It gives training in hand arts valuable to pupils. We do not have a director of handwork and this will in some ways fulfil the lack.

Several new teachers are beginning this year. Most of the teachers now are equipped with a normal education. All such teachers should receive equal pay throughout the town. At present this is not the case. Physical training is now required by law and each school should have suitable apparatus for this purpose.

ALMANAC 100 YEARS OLD RECORDS VALUABLE FACTS

A most interesting almanac of the year 1828, one hundred years old, was kept by the late Bucklyn Mathewson. In the Christian almanac of that date were blank pages opposite each month, and on them Mr. Mathewson recorded the thermometer readings, morning, noon and night, and the weather conditions, every day during the entire year. For Sept. 26, it reads: Fair—Northern lights. Morning temperature, 50; noon, 62, and night, 56. The temperature in Jewett city in 1928 at night was 50.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Alley and granddaughter, Beatrice Dominick, leave today (Thursday) for an automobile trip to Frankfort, Me. They will visit Mr. Alley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George I. Alley.

Miss Jean Burleson is substituting in Slate library this week, during the vacation of the librarian, Miss Mabel Wilcox.

News of the death of Mrs. Louise Elerman Hoppman, widow of Kasper Hoppman at the home of her daughter Mrs. Daniel Goff, in Norwich was received by many friends here with regret. She was born in this town, and spent all her life here until a few years ago. A brother, John Elerman, and a sister, Mrs. Nellie Connelly, live in Jewett City.

Martin Murray from Akron, Ohio, and his brother, Dennis, of Philippsdale, R. I., were recent visitors in Jewett City, guests of Michael Fogarty. They were visiting their sister, Mrs. E. J. Farrell, in Wauregan, coming to Jewett City where they spent their boyhood, to renew acquaintances and visit familiar scenes. Martin Murray is a contractor in Akron.

Vincent Jacobs, the local child who is a patient at Backus hospital, Norwich, was still unconscious Wednesday night. However, the child had opened his eyes several times throughout the day, so that his condition might be considered as showing the very slightest improvement.

MONTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baxter of Main street, Palmertown, were in a serious automobile accident Saturday evening at Hill Top. While on their way to New London near the tea room, Hill Top, a large Hupmobile smashed into the Dodge touring car in which they were riding, completely wrecking the car. Mrs. Baxter received bad cuts on the lip and chin, which required several stitches to close. She also suffered bruises and minor cuts about the body and had a tooth broken off. Mr. Baxter received cuts on the face, nose and also bruises and cuts about the legs. They were taken to the home of Mrs. Ferry where they were attended by Dr. John Donahue and his son, and afterward were taken to the home of Mrs. Baxter's mother, Mrs. James Daniels in Palmertown. It was stated that the occupants of the other car escaped with only a few slight scratches on the face.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rinciotta and little daughter, Jean Helen, were calling on relatives in the village Sunday. Mrs. Rinciotta was formerly Miss Jennie Daniels of Montville.

Joseph Edwards and Alonzo Edwards of Pequot village were business callers in Norwich Saturday.

FINAL QUOTATIONS SHOWED LONG LIST OF NET DECLINES IN PRICES OF STOCK

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—Organized efforts to extend the recent rallies in stock prices were only partially successful in today's market. Despite the reduction in call money from 7 to 6 per cent, the lowest in a month, which ordinarily would be construed as a bullish factor, the market encountered strong selling resistance probably because of the heavy liquidation inspired by the cautionary advices of some of the leading commission houses. Although pools succeeded in lifting nearby three dozen issues to new high records, final quotations also disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from 1 to 5 points.

Trading failed to maintain the terrific pace set yesterday with the result that the ticker was able to keep much closer to the actual market. The day's sales ran over 4,000,000 shares for the fifth consecutive full session.

Banks called $10,000,000 in loans during the morning but the influx of out-of-town funds was so large that the call rate quickly dropped from 7 to 6 1-2 and finally to 6 per cent. Bankers expressed the opinion that the ease in call money was temporary, and that a higher rate could be looked for over the month-end. Time money displayed a distinctly firmer undertone with the rate quoted at 7 1-4 to 7 1-2 per cent as against 7 to 7 1-4 earlier in the week.

Private Cables indicated that $5,000,000 of the gold sold in London today was purchased for American account, but no details were available here. Prominent bankers recently have indicated that gold imports probably would be used to reduce indebtedness at the Federal Reserve banks rather than as a basis for a further expansion in credit.

Early buying was influenced, in part, by the market's ability to withstand the heavy selling yesterday, and by the publication of optimistic steel trade reviews, which stressed the possibility of heavy railroad buying in the near future. September copper production and consumption are expected to set new high records. Wall street also heard that directors of the Barnsdall corporation would resume dividends at the rate of $2 annually on the common stock tomorrow.

Automotive shares again attracted a large speculative following in today's market. Graham-Paige common stock certificates, which have the same equity and dividend rights as the common stock, but without voting power, were a strong feature, climbing 36 points to a new high record at 56, bringing them closer into line with the common, which attained a new top at 61 1-4. Chrysler, Hupp and Chandler-Cleveland preferred also moved into a new high ground and General Motors closed 2 1-2 points higher at 214 5-8 after having touched 217, but Hudson, Nash and some of the accessory shares turned reactionary.

Radio, which is reported to harbor a large short interest, ran up nearly 11 points to 211, but lost half its gain. Abraham & Straus, Austin Nichols preferred, Commercial Investment Trust, Johns Manville, Peoples Gas, Union Carbide and Woolworth sold 3 1-2 to 8 points higher, some of them touching new high records. Other issues to break into new high ground included A. M. Byers, Electric Auto Lite, Electric Storage Battery, Fleischman, Eisenlohr, Lehn & Fink and Gillette Safety Razor, but not all of the gains were maintained.

Montgomery-Ward, which ran up in spectacular fashion late yesterday, fell back 5 points on profit-taking, and Murray corporation slipped from an early high of 93 1-2 to 85 1-4, off 4 3-4 net. Allied Chemical, Calumet & Arizona, Curtiss, Eastman Kodak, Greene Cananea, and Purity Baking also were conspicuously heavy.

Rails started forward on the publication of some more favorable August earnings statements, but the rally quickly petered out.

Except for a slightly firmer undertone in sterling, which ruled just under $4.85 for London cables, there were no changes of consequence in the foreign exchange market.

Cold weather stimulated the buying of wheat and cotton futures, which advanced about 1-2 cents a bushel and $1 to $1.50 a bale, respectively.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—(AP)—Indications that export business in wheat from North America is on a broader scale than generally supposed had a bullish effect today on prices here. Besides, evidence developed showing a notable falling-off in the quality of wheat arrivals at Winnipeg.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1c to 1 3-8c net higher. Corn finished 17 1-8c to 1 5-8c up, oats varying from 1-8c decline to 1-4c advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 35c.

Despite assertions that Canada and Argentina were both cutting prices to induce Europe to buy, the Chicago wheat market took an early swing upward, and the close was at virtually the day's top figures. Word came that Argentine offerings at Liverpool were smaller than they have been, and it was shown that exports of wheat and flour from the United States last month totaled almost double what they were in July, with North American shipments abroad for the last two months greatly in excess of the amount in the corresponding time last year.

Meanwhile, strength exhibited by the Winnipeg wheat market, with buying of future deliveries there for house with seaboard connections was more than a counter balance for talk of hedging pressure from the northwest. In addition, only 60 per cent of wheat reaching Winnipeg was reported as now grading No. 4 northern or better, whereas the rule of late has been as high as 80 per cent. On the other hand world available supplies of wheat increased 21,232,000 bu. for the week and are now 202,616,000 bu. against 108,661,606 bu. last year.

Trade reports from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Nebraska gave strength to the corn market, and as likewise did talk that Europe was after new corn from the United States, bidding within 2 1-2c of a working basis, in some of the best sections of Illinois 80 per cent of corn was said to show light to heavy damage from frost, mostly as to quality. Oats prices failed to show any substantial improvement, although St. Louis was reported buying No. 2 white oats for immediate transit, a situation seldom seen at this time of year with a liberal crop of new oats in farmer's hands.

Provisions declined as a result of downturns in the hog market to a level $2 a hundredweight below figures current hardly more than a week ago.

Palace Theatre

Thomas Meighan, filmdom's popular Irish star, is presented in the most logical and picturesques role of his screen career in "The Racket" thrilling underworld melodrama which opens today at the Palace theatre for three days engagement. Meighan has drawn what is known in film circles as a "natural" in his role of Captain McQuigg, hard-boiled metropolitan police captain.

Meighan, with his magnetic Irish personality, has a ready-made role in Captain McQuigg, and the noted star has made the most of his opportunity. With one of the finest and most realistic underworld stories ever written, and supported by the greatest cast ever assembled for a Meighan picture, the popular actor is ascending heights of stardom unscaled in the past, with his latest characterization.

Meighan has injected the enthusiasm of his own personality into his police officer impersonation in "The Racket." "I am more enthusiastic over 'The Racket' than anything I have done in years," he declared, when the picture was completed. "I consider it an ideal vehicle, and the part of Captain McQuigg is the finest role I have had in years."

"The Racket" is a thrilling tale of gang warfare, political corruption and bootlegging. The stage-play, written by Bartlett Cormack, former newspaperman, played to packed Broadway houses for months. The story based on first hand knowledge of crooked-controlled conditions in a modern metropolitan center, and Cormack went to Hollywood to write the screen treatment of the stage presentation.

ROCK ZEKAS ARRESTED IN NEW BRITAIN WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 26—Rock Zekas, residing on Harrison street and until about three months ago, employed as stevedore at the pier of the Central Vermont railroad, East New London, will be in the police court tomorrow charged with assault with intent to kill. After fleeing from the city and covering his tracks, Zekas was arrested in New Britain early today and returned to New London where he now occupies a cell awaiting court presentation. Zekas on July 3, last, had been drinking and when he went to his home, became enraged over a trivial matter and started to abuse his daughter, Matilda, about 18, employed at the Connecticut Power company. Zekas' anger continued in spite of efforts to calm him. Procuring an axe, Zekas attacked his daughter, and dealt her two or three blows on the head, the weapon inflicting a series of ugly wounds. The police were notified and when officers arrived at the Zekas residence the father had fled, while neighbors had taken the girl to the office of a physician that her injuries might receive attention. When Zekas could not be found in the lapse of several days the police caused the departments of all other cities to be notified of the murderous assault and requested that Zekas be arrested on sight. Early today the police of New Britain obtained knowledge that Zekas was employed in that city and arrested him. The New London police were notified and an hour afterward Captain Charles A. Pinner and Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith started for New Britain to take charge of the prisoner. The officers and Zekas returned to New London about 5 o'clock

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Electric Refrigerator

"After experimenting fifteen years with many models, the engineers of the General Electric company accomplished all this and more.

"They built a refrigerator which was a new departure and an outstanding accomplishment of electrical science. The refrigerator was built without pipes, belts, fans, or stuffing box. All the moving parts were enclosed in a hermetically sealed unit. None were exposed. They made the machine almost as portable as a bridge lamp. All that is necessary is to plug it into any electric light outlet and the machine starts. No fuss of installation whatsoever.

"Then, too, the General Electric Refrigerator never needs oiling. One never needs to touch it—in fact a permanent supply of oil is sealed in the unit at the factory so that one never need to oil or touch the mechanism. Some of the first experimental models built many years ago are still in perfect condition, the original supply of oil having never been replenished.

PIMPLES OVER FACE A YEAR
Large and Very Painful. Healed by Cuticura.
"I had pimples all over my face for about a year. They were large and red and I was always scratching them, causing them to bleed and then they would fester. They were very painful and every time I shaved the pimples would bleed, causing much discomfort.
"I heard about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more and in two months I was completely healed, after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) A. Norman Duxbury, 10 St. Marys St., Fairhaven, Mass., Feb. 9, 1928.

POETRY

The Sea

I saw it on a cloud-flecked day
When back and forth the sunlight went,
As if the heavens' busy loom
Wove on a dappled weaving bent.

Afar there hung the crowding mist
Against the sky and somber sea,
And over at the craggy foot
The chant of breakers came to me.

A scarlet crab upon the beach
With lazy motion fled the tide,
And sea gulls sought the lifting crest
To lightly poise and briefly ride.

A clumsy craft of fisher folk
With borrowed grace of wave swept by,
And came a homely melody
Across the billow, winnowed high.

And oh, I loved the wise old sea
That wooed me with its throaty song,
And showed me meekness great as might
And peace as long as leagues are long.

—Moude de Verse Newton, in Christian Science Monitor.

White Roses

There was a rose-tree grew so high
And white, with all its seven roses,
It seemed a cloud 'twixt earth and sky.

There was one rose among the seven
That grew alone on topmost bough,
Like a white star caught down from heaven.

I plucked it that it should not be Dishonored by rainy, wild west winds,
In all its white virginity.

There was a little maiden dead
In a dark room in a lone place—
Two candles at her feet and head.

Her two hands crossed upon her breast,
Like frail rose petals, but more still—
Glad to be folded thus at rest.

Her pale lips smiling all the while,
In such a solemn, perfect peace,
Alas, as our lips never smile.

I gave my white rose to the dead—
It seemed less white than her young brow;
The others wept—"Alas!" they said.

I gave my white rose to the child,
Both plucked in their young purity.
And while the others wept, I smiled.

—Cora Fabbri.

GREENEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll and David Carroll entertained Mrs. John McNamara of New York at their home 815 Boswell avenue, recently, with about fifteen of her friends being present. The first part of the evening was devoted to a social affair with the entertainment furnished by songs by Mrs. Henry Boyd, William LaRochelle, Jr., and A. H. Bowe. Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. H. Bowe, Mrs. Joseph Wargo and Mrs. Eva LaRochelle. Among the guests present were Mrs. Michael Connell, Mrs. Edward Gleason, Mr. and Mrs. William LaRochelle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wargo, Mrs. Henry Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. William LaRochelle, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Mr. and Mrs. George Farrell, of Hartford, are spending a few days as the guest of Mrs. Farrell's mother, Mrs. Frank Marsh at her home on Boswell avenue.

The Greeneville Tigers held their first practice Tuesday evening under the able management of Henry Boyd and expect to swing into action about the middle of October, meeting some of the fastest of the Eastern Connecticut semi-pro football teams. Practice in the near future will be held three and four times a week in order to whip the candidates into shape. The Tigers have some very promising material this year and it is Manager Boyd's intention to develop speed in back of a heavy line. Among the list he has at present are the following: P. Labenski, Jim Kelly, James Fenton and the McGrath brothers for the backfield while the line will be made up of James Gay, Rowland Langervin, Walter Christy, Butch Mileski, Benny Stearns, James Stearns, Kop, Butts, Stanley, Boyd, Walter McNeil and McVeigh.

The street department is engaged in the Greeneville section in putting larvis and sanding the roads.

Eastern Connecticut Health

According to the weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health the following cases of communicable diseases were reported from towns in eastern Connecticut for the week ending September 22.

Diphtheria, Putnam, 1. Scarlet fever, Stonington, 1. Measles, Stonington, 2. Whooping cough, Griswold, 1. New London, 1. Typhoid fever, Norwich, 1.

NORWICH MAKING RESPONSE TO APPEAL FOR HURRICANE SUFFERERS

The appeal of the Norwich chapter of the American Red Cross for aid in connection with the work of the national organization in relief work made necessary by the destruction wrought by the West Indian hurricane has not as yet reached a very large number of the charitably disposed people of this city, judging from the amount of the contributions already made. There can be no question as to the great and pressing need in this emergency as every paper furnishes its reader with more details of the awful havoc left in the wake of this storm; the additional horror of epidemics has been added to the other difficulties of the already critical situation and consequently additional expenditures have been necessary for a large increase of medical supplies with which to combat the rising number of cases of disease due to exposure, lack of food or unexpectedly terrible sanitary conditions.

The quota of $1,400 as alloted to Norwich by the American Red Cross does not seem to be an excessive amount when the magnitude of the problem to be handled is taken into consideration; the good people of this city have always indicated their constructive sympathy when like contributions have been asked for under similar circumstances in the past and it is confidently expected by the officers of the local chapter that this occasion will prove no exception and that Norwich will do its full share and perhaps more, to lend a helping hand to those in want, at just this time.

The Norwich chapter has already forwarded its check for $200, and the contributions to date have reached a total of $400, including the contribution of $100 taken up at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church on Sunday last. Other contributions have been received from the following:

R. S. Gerson, Mrs. Lucius Brown, Rev. H. T. Arnold, Miss Bell, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Butts, Mr. and Mrs. Birge, the Misses Blackman, P. A. Johnson, A. H. Chase, Miss Anna Lloyd Ely, Miss S. C. Whittlesey, Miss Catherine Kent, Mrs. C. R. Perkins, Judge A. L. Brown, Mrs. A. L. Brown, the Misses Butts, Henry L. Bennett, Mrs. H. L. Bennett, Miss A. L. Bennett, Miss R. A. Bennett, The Eaton-Chase Co. Dr. A. W. Bally, Mrs. A. R. Chase, C. E. Carpenter, F. L. Woodard, J. H. Perkins, Mrs. L. E. Taylor, W. T. Olcott, F. W. Gallup, J. E. Selmes, Miss Aiken, Miss Jane Aiken, Mayor Lee R. Robbins.

It may be possible, on account of the fact that it has been announced that collections are to be taken up in the various churches of the city on the coming Sunday, Sept. 30th, that many have not given as they expected to do so through other channels; it is hoped by the local chapter that this will prove to be the case and that the amounts received from the churches will be very generous.

SUES FOR WORK AT CRESCENT BEACH COTTAGE

Damages of $2,000 and foreclosure of a mechanics lien are asked for in a suit brought by the Niantic Lumber Co., against Augustus E. Dorenbaum of Hartford.

The lumber company claims that it furnished material and rendered services in the construction of a house on land owned by Mrs. Dorenbaum at Crescent Beach under agreement with her husband, William. The sum of $1,655.95 is alleged to be due under the agreement, according to the complaint.

The suit is returnable in the superior court in October and was filed Wednesday with John H. Walker, clerk of the court.

LICENSES SUSPENDED FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

A list of 38 operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace.

The list included John L. Wilson and David N. Ennis of New London, George Stepanik of Montville, Rand L. Tredo of East Hampton.

NORWICH TOURISTS REACHED SALT LAKE CITY

George Meyer of Lisbon and William C. Kendall of this city, who are on a transcontinental automobile trip, accompanied by two friends, reached Salt Lake City, Utah, last Saturday, according to word which has been received from them. They had been traveling then just a week and are to head for Portland, Oregon, from Salt Lake City.

Attended W. W. G. House Party

Mrs. Edith Rathbun and Miss Olive Rathbun have returned from the week end house party of World Wide Guild Workers held at the Colonial inn in West Haven. Interesting classes were held and recreation periods made their three day stay one of pleasure and instruction.

It is hoped to revive the interest of the young women of the First Baptist church in a guild organization since the work which the guild can accomplish is almost indispensible in a church society.

Enters Acadia University

Ledlie Carson Pitt, accompanied by his mother, left for Wolfville, Nova Scotia, on Wednesday. He enters the freshman class of Acadia university.

GIFTS AND PURCHASES ADD TO STATE FORESTS

Land purchases and gifts in a dozen towns within the past few weeks have added 1,900 acres to the state-owned forest tracts, Elliott B. Bronson, field agent for the forest and wild life commission, announced Wednesday. The new commission acquisitions expand public forest holdings to 44,100 acres, about four times the acreage of three years ago.

In the 20 years prior to 1925, under appropriations from the legislature, only 11,600 acres were bought, less than 600 acres a year. With the new policy the field agent is constantly seeking suitable tracts and adding to existing publicly-owned lands.

Especially important among the more recent purchases is a tract in Madison and Guilford which will give to New Haven county its first state forest. This tract is only 425 acres, but eventually, by new purchases, it will be connected with the Cockaonset forest. A tremendous area will be covered by this forest when complete, and even now it reaches through six towns, Haddam, Chester, Killingworth, Saybrook, Madison and Guilford.

Some interesting history attaches to land secured in the Mattauck forest area in Watertown, the new addition being about 133 acres and largely the gift of the Black Rock Forest association. It borders on the site of the grave of William Scott, famous Indian fighter of colonial times, who was buried on the hill where he fell in a skirmish. A rough cairn is his monument and a marker for historians.

Close by is one of the caves frequently used by the "Old Leather Man," itinerant peddler and artisan, who traveled himself to fame years ago, when not in some secluded spot. Adjoining, also, is Eagle Rock, a natural wonder, and a little north is Harley Roberts peak, named for the originator of the Black Rock association, who has long been connected with the Taft school.

Pachaug Forest.

The Pachaug forest in Voluntown and Griswold, where 280 acres were recently purchased, boasts a furnished apartment for the devil. Appropriately, this is on Mt. Misery, and attests colonial love of the bizarre in natural phenomenon nomenclature. On the mount are the Devil's Den, Devil's Bedroom, Devil's Armchair and Devil's Kettle, where, legend has it, the prince may rest, sleep, recreate and cook his meals, if any.

In the same area are Misery, Lowden and Stevens brooks, in combination "as fine a trout stream area," according to Agent Bronson, "as there is in the state."

Among other recent acquisitions at state forests are: American Legion forest, Barkhamsted, 97 acres; Natchaug, Chaplin, 602 acres including a large natural pond; Nepaug, New Hartford, 350 acres with a fine stand of 20-year-old plantation pines; Nipmuck, Ashford, 31 acres; Housatonic, Sharon, 30 acres.

The 15 state forests with the acreage of each, which is to be increased soon by about 3,000 acres on which options have been taken by Mr. Bronson, are as follows: American Legion forest, Barkhamsted, 429 acres; Cockaponset Chester, 7,505.5 acres; Housatonic, Sharon, 6,514.5 acres; Mattatuck, Watertown, 2,368; Meshomastic, Portland, 3,570 acres; Mohawk, Cornwall, 2807.7 acres; Natchaug, Chaplin, 4,957 acres; Nehantic, East Lyme, 901 acres; Nepaug, Burlington, 1,208.5 acres; Nipmuck, Stafford, 2,505 acres; Pachaug, Voluntown, 1,357.4 acres; People's, Barkhamsted, 1,381 acres; Pootatuck, New Fairfield, 960 acres; Simsbury, Simsbury, 130; Tunxis, Hartland, 3,253.5 acres; total, 41,251.5 acres.

SEEKS FORECLOSURE ON OCEAN BEACH PROPERTY

Foreclosure of a mortgage of $17,600 is sought in a petition brought in the superior court by Max B. Abrams and Samson Harris, both of this city, against Angela Carini of Glastonbury, Henry Carini of this city, and the Equitable Laundry Machine Corp., of New York city, according to papers filed Wednesday with clerk John H. Walker of the superior court.

On Oct. 10, 1927, Angela Carini is alleged to have owed Joseph Sigal of Hartford and Ocean Beach, the sum of $18,200 on a note, secured by a mortgage on the Mabrey house at Ocean Beach. Sigal assigned the note to the plaintiffs. Henry Carini is now in possession of the property.

SAYS TRAFFIC POLICEMEN TEACH LAW AND ORDER

Automobiles and traffic policemen are the true apostles of law and order and staunch aids to general observance of statutory rules, in spite of flagrant gin, rampant hooch, banditry and bolshevism, says Remsen B. Ogilby, president of Trinity college, writing for the monthly bulletin of the state motor vehicle department. Under the guidance of these officers, he predicts that "we may yet be a law-abiding people, and the automobile a blessing indeed."

President Ogilby sees "coming contempt for the law just at a time when we ought to be acquiring respect for it." How widely extended use of the automobile may bring about better laws and more respect and obedience for them has been made the subject of his article.

He stresses three things which, in his opinion, are the cardinal points necessary to the fulfillment of these aims. First, that legislation governing the use of motor vehicles be reasonable. Next, that the purpose and detail of such legislation be made clear to the driving public. And, finally, that there be intelligent enforcement of the law.

The everyday problems of motorists have made possible a more general knowledge of law, and the workings of police courts, President Ogilby finds. That there is contempt because of this greater knowledge, he considers regrettable. This condition he lays to the bootlegger and the things that combine to make liquor law violation successful; to the "mighty resources employed to avoid awkward application of the law by large corporations," and to the loop-holes existing in laws directed against crimes of violence, coupled with morbid sympathy lavishly upon real criminals.

President Ogilby does not hold that the remedy lies in more laws as "we are now engulfed by a glut of lawmaking. The experiences of the world show us clearly that it requires more than a law to develop morality and drastic codes have never been effective in building upon human character."

His suggestions, as applied to the motor vehicle situation in particular, are, in brief:

That "the need is not so much for regulation that will prevent the abuse of the privileges of the highway—though that is part of the proposition—as it is to establish a code which all operators will cheerfully accept as the rule of the road."

That "the purpose and detail of legislation be made clear—interesting every agency available for educating the users of cars as to what the individual must do for the common good."

That "chronic abuses of privilege must be restrained and the careless definitely rebuked—just now we need thoughtful consideration of the matter of penalties for breaches of the law, to make sure that they bear on all alike."

That "we need more policemen now and shall need still more in the future." That "the traffic policeman is proving his worth in our civilization, not only in the solution of a concrete problem, but also in bringing home to us the lesson of observance of the law by all for the greatest good of the greatest number. Under a system of wise legislation, adequate education and intelligent enforcement of the law, he can preach a gospel much needed in America today."

HOOVER HEARS REPORTS OF CONDITIONS IN THE EAST

Senator Moses Says the Situation in the East Has Improved —Finds Massachusetts Difficult to Analyze—Unable to Determine to What Extent the Prohibition Issue Will Figure—Another Element of Doubt is the High Percentage of Catholics in the State—The Nominee, Addressing a Delegation of First Voters From Virginia, Declared the Republican Party Was One of Action For the Benefit of the Whole Country.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—(AP)—Herbert Hoover described the republican party today as the one of action for the benefit of the country without regard to sectional or special interest.

Addressing a delegation of first voters from Virginia, the republican presidential nominee said that the party must approach the host of new problems that have arisen in the "same forward looking attitude of mind which we have given to the other problems of the past."

The nominee interrupted a renewed study of the eastern political situation to receive the delegation. Between times he put in additional strokes upon his Elizabethton speech which now nears its final shape.

In a series of conference with party leaders Hoover again took up the eastern problem. Representative Franklin D. Fort, of New Jersey, secretary of the republican national committee, breakfasted with the nominee and gave him a report covering his observations of the situation during the last several weeks in New England.

Shortly afterward Senator George H. Moses, chairman of the eastern campaign advisory committee and Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the republican national committee, spent considerable time with the nominee.

Fort said after his conference that the situation in New England had improved considerably in the last month. New Hampshire where a primary fight has just ended, is fast healing differences within the party. He confidently predicted a republican victory there in November.

Moses agreed that on the whole the eastern situation had improved, but added that Massachusetts was extremely difficult to analyze. While 115,800 new voters have registered in that state the senator said that no accurate analysis of the registration figures could be made until after the end of the supplemental period for placing names upon the list.

Some of the republican wards in Boston have shown a larger increase than have democratic wards in that city, he said, but added that this was not a fair measure of the republican strength in the state because of the democratic complexion of Boston.

It is difficult to determine to what extent the state will be influenced by the prohibition issue, Moses declared, adding that a further element of doubt was brought into the equation by the high percentage of Catholic voters in the state.

"They are having a poll in Massachusetts on prohibition," he said, "and I am hoping that the republicans will stand by the party in the national election and express their prohibition preferences in the state poll."

Before meeting the delegation from Virginia, Hoover also conferred with Horace A. Mann, director of the southern campaign, who has only recently returned from a visit into Tennessee.

The nominee told the first voters that "the decision as to the party with which you would ally yourself in your first vote is one of the most important decisions in your life."

Thomas L. Proctor of Richmond, who headed the delegation, told Hoover that the group came to him "on the basis of good citizenship", adding that the nation needed his heart, his mind, and his knowledge at this time.

Vigorous applause greeted the nominee as he took his place on the dais in the hallway outside his office. At the conclusion of his brief talk, the visitors filed past the nominee to clasp his hand, and after posing for their pictures at the entrance of the building, they sent up lusty cheers for Hoover.

Other callers during the day included Walter S. Hallinan, republican national committeeman from West Virginia, who reported that the party organization was functioning smoothly in that state and that it could be expected to roll up a victory for Hoover and Curtis. Tariff and Tammany are the issues there, he said.

Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, of Colorado, a member of the republican senatorial campaign committee, after conversing with Hoover, said that his party stood a good chance to gain a number of additional seats in the senate as a result of the election.

TRUCK OWNER ON TRIAL FOR MISCONDUCT OF VEHICLE

ROCKVILLE, Conn., Sept. 27—(AP)—Placed on trial in the superior court before Judge Edward M. Yeomans on the charge of misconduct of a vehicle in a manner to cause death and injury, Joseph Radwill, truck owner, heard one of his passengers testify today that the speedometer registered between 40 and 45 miles an hour before the accident which took three lives. The victims were employed on a tobacco plantation in Ellington and were on their way home on the evening of July 27 in Radwill's truck when, it is claimed, the driver lost control and the truck skidded and turned over, catching fire.

It was brought out today that the total weight of 47 children who were passengers on the truck, aggregated 4,200 pounds. The truck weighed a ton and a quarter and the registered weight of the vehicle was 3,000 pounds capacity. The children were weighed in the courtroom, all except three being present.

John Stuam 9, South Manchester, who, besides giving testimony that the truck was speeding, said that when they departed from the field for home three benches were used for seats and that when they reached farm headquarters one bench was removed to make room for more children.

George A. Williams of Hartford, employed by the state humane society, gave testimony to the judge that in a talk with Radwill the day following the accident, Radwill told him that he received $12 a day for carrying the young workers to and from the fields.

"ICE BOX BANDITS" WERE WANTED FOR P. O. BREAK

HARTFORD, Sept. 27—(AP)—Albert J. Raymond and Roland G. Lalone, Worcester "ice box bandits," who were found guilty Wednesday of second degree murder on the charge of killing State Policeman Irving H. Nelson, were also wanted by the United States government because of a post office break and theft of government property at West Springfield, Mass., last March, U. S. District Attorney John Buckley said today.

The district attorney said that a warrant for the arrest of the men, based on an original warrant sent down from Springfield, had been issued from his office and would have been served had they been acquitted. In view, however, of their conviction and impending sentence, it will not be served, he said.

L. OF N. USED RADIOPHONE TO CONVERSE WITH U. S.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 27—(AP)—The League of Nations used the radiophone to converse with the United States for the first time today, the league officially notifying the Rockefeller foundation that all plans have been completed to build the Rockefeller library without it being necessary to spend any part of the $2,000,000 donated in the purchase of land.

Arthur Sweetser of Boston, assistant director of the information section, conversed with Raymond B. Fosdick, New York representative of the Rockefeller foundation, who was under-secretary of the league in the early days of its life. Mr. Fosdick voiced the pleasure of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at the arrangement about the library, which will be built next to the new league palace and conveyed the greetins of the Rockefeller foundation to Sir Eric Drummond, the league secretary.

MARRIAGE IN IMPERIAL PALACE AT TOKYO, JAPAN

TOKYO, Sept. 28— (Friday)—(AP)—The Kashikodokoro, or "The Place of we" the sanctuary in the Imperial Palace where the sun goddess is worshipped as the maternal Ancestress of the imperial house of Japan, was set as the scene for the wedding this morning of Yasuhito, Prince Chichubu, heir presumptive to the throne, and Miss Setsuko Matsudaira, daughter of Japan's former ambassador of Washington. Ten o'clock was the hour chosen for the ceremony. (This corresponds to 8 p. m., Thursday, Eastern Standard Time.)

For the first time since the establishment of hereditary nobility in Japan, a prince of the blood imperial, selected for his bride the daughter of parents who possessed no title. To overcome this technical obstacle Miss Matsudaira was adopted by her uncle, Viscount Morio Matsudaria, so he could act as her father at the wedding.

The bride's own father might himself have been the Viscount Matsudaria but he renounced his right of succession in favor of his younger brother. They had two older brothers but the first died and the second was adopted into another noble family.

The Matsudaira family is one of the oldest of feudal Japan. The direct ancestor was the Shogun Hidetada, second of the Tokugawa Shoguns who ruled Japan from 1600 to the restoration of the emperor in 1868. One of the descendants of this Shogun became "Daimyo"of Eari of the Aizu clan, one of the most powerful in northern Japan. When the Feudal system was replaced in 1884 by the modern peerage, the grandfather of Miss Matsudaira was "Daimyo" of that clan and was given the viscountcy. The fost father of today's bride, is therefore, the second to hold that title.

Only a few princes and princesses of the blood and court ritualists and officials were eligible to witness today's simple ceremony. This automatically barred all foreigners.

SWEEPING REACTION IN THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—Speculation for the advance on the New York stock exchange, which has witnessed the establishment of scores of new high records almost daily for the past few weeks, received a decided set-back today when a sweeping reaction in the last hour of trading carried many of the pool favorites down $5 to $10 a share.

The decline probably was inspired by reports, which later proved to be unfounded, that the weekly report on federal reserve brokers' loans issued after the close of the market would exceed the record-breaking total of $4,563,240 established last June. The report showed a gain of $54,232,000 in loans, bringing the total to $4,524,108,000.

GIENNA COLLETT TO VOTE FOR HOOVER

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—The women's national committee for Hoover announced tonight that Glenna Collett, former national amateur woman golf champion, telephoned from Hot Springs, Va., that she is going to vote for Hoover.

Miss Collett, who is playing in the national golf tournament in Hot Springs, said she favored Hoover "because he's dry" and because "the presidential job is a great big job and Herbert Hoover is a great big man."

Mayor Of Flint, Mich., Placed Under Arrest

Charged With Breaking and Entering in Connection With Primary Election.

FLINT, Mich., Sept. 27—(AP)—William McKleighan, mayor of Flint, was arrested here today charged with theft of election ballots and stuffing of ballot boxes.

The arrest was the outgrowth of a grand jury investigation into alleged irregularities in connection with the recent state primary election. The executive was released in bail tonight to appear for examination October 5.

The mayor is the eleventh person arrested as an outgrowth of the inquiry.

ANOTHER PHILA. POLICE OFFICIAL EXAMINED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27—(AP)—Another high police official whose bank deposits were declared to be out of all proportion to his salary, was examined today by District Attorney John Monaghan in the course of the special grand jury's investigation of police corruption.

The district attorney disclosed that since March, 1926, the official had deposited more than $36,000 in a bank. During that period, until January of this year, his annual salary was $2,700. At the beginning of the year his pay was increased $100 annually.

Before the start of the grand jury sessions today, Monaghan and his aides questioned about a dozen women.

"We are probing into a new phase of this mess," said Monaghan. "We are working on information that the police racketeering was not alone from bootleggers, but that disorderly houses were also paying tribute."

Monaghan announced today that he would be prepared to proceed with the presentation of evidence tomorrow when the civil service commission tries Charles C. Beckham, suspended from the post of captain of detectives when the special grand jury declared him "unfit to hold any public office."

An arrangement has been made with the civil service commission whereby the city solicitor who ordinarily conducts police trials is to be assisted by assistant district attorney.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS IN ALBANY BASEBALL POOL

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 27—(AP)—On information furnished the Albany county grand jury today by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, district Attorney Charles J. Herrick said tonight, subpoenaes will be issued which will bring before that body several persons whom the colonel believed had information on the Albany baseball pool.

Taking from his brief case sheets of papers which appeared to be press clippings, pool dope sheets and "key cards," Colonel Roosevelt went before the grand jury accompanied by the district attorney. He was in the grand jury room 35 minutes.

A subpoena which the attorney general had prepared yesterday was not served, after Colonel Roosevelt had agreed in a conversation with Mr. Herrick last night by telephone, to appear before the grand jurors.

Said the colonel, before going to the courthouse:

"I can prove everything I have ever said about Albany baseball pool and I am ready to turn over to the Albany county grand jury all the information I have.

"All I know about the pool is what I have said in my speeches. All I know is what's appeared in the papers and court records. These show that the brother of democratic county leader was convicted at Boston in connection with the operation of the pool."

DELVING IN AFFAIRS OF FINANCIER TOOMBS

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—(AP)—A referee in bankruptcy delving into the affairs of Roy C. Toombs, St. Louis and Chicago financier and the defunct Toombs & Daily brokerage house which he headed, today found that the house had financed the defense, the deed of William Darling Shepherd, tried and acquitted of the murder of his ward, William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan," four years ago.

O. R. Daily, vice-president of the brokerage firm, told Garfield Charles, the referee, that the company had advanced approximately $50,000 to the man accused of innoculating his ward with typhoid germs in order to cause his death and gain possession of his estate.

The money, Daily said, has not been repaid, although it was understood that Shepherd was to repay the money and turn over to the company for investment the $2,000,000 McClintock estate. Shepherd, under the terms of a will drawn only a few days before McClintock died, was given virtually the entire estate, but relatives of McClintock contested the will and the estate still is involved in litigation.

ROBINSON CONDUCTING CAMPAIGN IN MISSOURI

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 27—(AP)—Raising the democratic national standard over Missouri soil, Senator Joe Robinson tonight opened a three day drive to win the state's 18 electoral votes and at the same time fired the first gun on one of the most extensive campaign tours ever undertaken by a vice-presidential candidate in the west.

While advised here, as he was on his southern trip, that religion was an issue that must be met, the senator chose to begin his appeal to the west with an extensive review of Governor Smith's record, one explanation affecting women and children. He argued that it excelled that of "any other living statesman."

Speaking in the same hall where Senator Charles Curtis, his rival for the vice-presidency, preached a republican doctrine last night, Senator Robinson said that as governor of New York state, Smith had "taken the lead in executive and administrative forms of benefit to them."

Finds Queens Sewer Witness Was Slain

Police Had Listed Death of William D'Olier as Suicide —Was Shot to Death.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—William D'Olier, Queens sewer witness, found shot to death on September 2 was "murdered by persons unknown and did not die by his own hand" the grand jury which has been investigating the death reported to Judge Frank Abel late today. Police listed D'Olier's death as suicide but the district attorney's office ordered an investigation and the matter was turned over to the grand jury.

Inspector Gallagher said no charge had been made against any person in connection with the murder verdict and intimated that the police have no clue as to the identity of the possible slayers.

D'Olier was president of the Sanitation corporation which received a sub-contract for Queens sewer work from the Awixa corporation, the records of which disappeared during investigation of alleged irregularities in $18,000,000 worth of Queens sewer construction. The Sanitation corporation was petitioned into bankruptcy last week.

Gilbert C. Waldrop, D'Olier's attorney told the district attorney that his client was "haunted by some mysterious fear" for weeks before he was found dead, and had taken precautions to throw pursuers off his trail.

D'Olier's fears, Waldrop said, were over the possibility of a grand jury investigation into his own affairs over the trial of Maurice E. Connolly, Queens borough president, and over the "contribution he would have to make to Connolly's candidate" in the Queens election.

CONNOLLY DEFINITELY LINKED IN CONSPIRACY

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—The late John M. Phillips, alleged to have had a monopoly on Queens sewer contracts, and Maurice E. Connolly, former Queens borough president, were definitely linked today by a witness at Connolly's conspiracy trial.

The witness—Thomas F. Purcell, insurance broker who wrote surety bonds on a Queens sewer contract, testified he saw Phillips, Connolly and Joseph L. Sigretto, a sewer contractor, together in February, 1918.

Connolly and Frederick E. Seely, former Queens engineer of sewer design, are on trial on charges of conspiring to defraud the city on sewer contracts. They were indicted with Phillips, who was alleged to have made millions in Queens sewer work.

Purcell testified that Phillips, when he was with Connolly and Sigretto, had a paper which was a modification of a contract that the former borough president wanted signed.

Sigretto, it was testified yesterday, obtained a Rockaway sewer contract after Connolly had thrown out two previous sets of bids submitted by contractors. On the first bid Sigretto was second lowest, and on the third lowest.

Allen M. Hirsh, president of the Lock Joint Pipe company of Ampere, N. J., told of his company's agreements with Phillips, and of a conference with Connolly.

Soon after the conference with Connolly, Hirsh testified, specifications for lock joint pipe were incorporated into Queens sewer specifications. The conference, he said, was attended by officers of the Lock Joint company.

Hirsh testified his company received $105,428 in royalties from Phillips between January 1, 1922 and December 31, 1927. Graft on the Queens sewer contracts is alleged to total $16,000,000.

RIOTING OF DOCK STRIKERS AT PORT ADELAIDE, AUSTRALIA

PORT ADELAIDE, Australia, Sept. 27—(AP)—The strike of dock workers reached a stage of violent rioting in this port today. The disorders began this morning when 2,000 men invaded the docks and thrashed the "volunteers" who have taken the places of union workers, injuring ten severely.

Later in the day an effort was made to reach the workers on ships in the outer harbor but the police had been reinforced with mounted men and although the crowd charged repeatedly, it was finally repulsed and returned to Port Adelaide.

The local trades unionists have been bitter in their denunciation of the ship owners, the course of the government and the finding of the arbitration court. They have refused to follow the advice of the union leaders who told them to accept the award of "two pick-ups" daily and go back to work.

The "two pick-up" system provides that employers shall select dock workers in the morning and again after the noon recess from among the applicants from this form of day labor. The men maintain that under this system they are never certain of having a full day's work.

When the unions failed to get their members back to work, the government put a bill through parliament compelling all transport workers to register at government employment bureaus. This gave the chance for "volunteers" to take the strikers places and work, has been going on here and at other ports with increasing numbers of these men on the jobs.

One of the first places attacked today was the government employment office. Only two foot policemen were on duty when the crowd stormed the dock gates.

SMITH CHARGES REP. PARTY WITH LACK OF LEADERSHIP

Assails the Harding and Coolidge Administrations For Failure to Work Out an Effective Farm Relief Program—Democratic Presidential Nominee Again Endorsed the McNary-Haugen Bill—Accused Republicans of Doing Little or Nothing in the way of Inland Waterway Development.

ST. PAUL, Min., Sept. 27—(AP)—In another assault on his republican opposition, Gov. Smith tonight held that the "fundamental weakness" of the Harding and Coolidge administrations has been a lack of leadership.

The democratic presidential nominee touched on the farm problem, again assailing the republicans for a failure to work out an effective farm relief program, and declared that there was a whispering campaign to misrepresent his stand on inland waterway development and immigration.

In a speech prepared for delivery in the St. Paul auditorium after spending much of the day in nearby Minneapolis, Smith recalled that as governor of New York he had favored, like his republican predecessor, the so-called All-American route through the state for a waterway between the Great Lakes and the sea. He reiterated, however, the readiness, expressed in his acceptance speech, to be guided by the finding of engineering experts as between his route and the proposed St. Lawrence river waterway.

As for immigration, the democratic nominee declared "there is no issue between either the parties or the nominees on the question of sustaining and keeping in full force and effect the restricting features of the present immigration laws."

"Where they are to be amended for the relief of hardship," he said, "we are in accord."

As in his speech last week in Omaha, Gov. Smith endorsed the principle of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill, and contended that "if there was any division of opinion, in the United States with regard to the policy of putting agriculture on an economic equality with industry, it was the duty of the president to iron out that difficulty."

"The congress, speaking for all the people, offered a program," he said. "The president vetoed it, and offered nothing in its place."

The democratic standard bearer accused the republicans of doing little or nothing in recent years in the way of comprehensive inland waterway development, and of being niggardly in making appropriation for such work and flood control.

TUMULTUOUS GREETING FOR SMITH IN ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 27—(AP)—St. Paul gave Governor Alfred E. Smith, the democratic presidential nominee, a tumultuous greeting late today as he came here by automobile from Minneapolis to speak at the St. Paul auditorium tonight.

Crowds lined the downtown streets and windows of office buildings along the route to the governor's hotel.

INVITES MRS. WILLEBRANDT TO CAMPAIGN IN CONN.

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 27—(AP)—William M. Citron, nominee of the democrats for congress in the second Connecticut district, today began his active campaigning by sending a telegram to Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, an assistant attorney general, at Washington, asking her to come into Connecticut and do her campaigning. Mr. Citron gave it as his opinion that Mrs. Willebrandt should do her political work in the "wet states," and Connecticut, he said, "has been as wet as the Atlantic for seven years."

In the telegram, Mr. Citron said in part: "Dear madam, your speeches on prohibition are filtering into Connecticut, especially your claim that Hoover can enforce prohibition and Smith can't. Why linger further in dry Ohio? Your work is in the wet states. Why not come to Connecticut.

"Connecticut, during the past seven years has supported Coolidge with a 100 per cent republican state regime. During these seven years Connecticut has been as wet as the Atlantic. Here you will be received with open arms. Why not buttress republican legal enforcement in Connecticut with your ideas on moral and spiritual enforcement?"

The telegram also alluded to certain alleged conditions in New Haven as mentioned in a report by Major Chester Mills, deposed enforcement administrator, and questions were asked of Mrs. Willebrandt, as an officer of the federal legal department, as to whether she had taken action. Mr. Citron said in the telegram that Mrs. Willebrandt might answer the questions for the edification of the people of Connecticut.

JOHN COOLIDGE FIGURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 27—(AP)—John Coolidge, son of President Calvin Coolidge, on the first step of his career as a railroad man, was in the midst of personal experiences today, which had to do with transportation and traffic problems. As a passenger in the automobile of Gov. John H. Trumbull, on his way to work, as a junior clerk in the New Haven road's office building, from Plainville, he was in a crash of that vehicle with another. Both he and William Cunningham, the governor's chauffeur, were unhurt but two in the other machine went to the hospital.

Young Coolidge made his report to a police officer, and went to work, a bit tardily because of what had happened, as usual, and tomorrow he will answer a summons and give his story to Deputy Coroner J. J. Corrigan.

HARTFORD, Sept. 27—(AP)—John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster general, will speak at a republican rally to be held in New London on October 23, it was announced today by William M. Harney, chairman of the republican speakers' bureau, following word from the eastern speakers' bureau in New York that Mr. Bartlett would be available on that date. REPUBLICAN RALLY HELD AT LITCHFIELD LITCHFIELD, Conn., Sept. 27—(AP)—Senator F. W. Walcott, candidate for the U. S. senate, and Miss Maude Wetmore, national president of the Republican Women's clubs of the United States, vigorously championed the cause of their party in the presidential campaign by contrasting the work and personality of Herbert Hoover with that of Gov. Alfred E. Smith at a rally in the play house here this afternoon.

"Gov. Smith is losing the confidence of the voters by the generalities in which he speaks," said Miss Wetmore, "and the voters will compare the two parties and cast their vote with the republicans. Under a republican federal government taxes have been reduced and the nation is prosperous. In New York state under Smith taxes have been trebled. The state is prosperous only because the federal government is under sound minded republican leadership."

"No matter how fine a man Smith is," she continued, "he is a son of Tammany; he is its product. It is up to the people of the country to swamp Tammany."

Senator Walcott, who served in Europe with Hoover on the food administration committee, reviewed Hoover's career from the time he came into public eye as the man who fed the allied refugees. "He never got excited under most trying conditions," he said, "and accomplished a great task with the systematic poise of a business executive."

WHAT THOMAS A. EDISON BELIEVES OF PROHIBITION

DETROIT, Sept. 27—(AP)—Thomas A. Edison believes prohibition the greatest experiment ever tried, although it is "being enforced only about sixty per cent." If Hoover is elected the enforcement ratio will be raised to about 75 or 80 per cent, Edison said today in a talk with newspapermen after the dedication of a museum Henry Ford is erecting in his early American village as a permanent memorial to the inventor.

"You hear talk about restriction of personal liberty in speaking about prohibition," he said. "What is civilization but restriction of personal liberty for the improvement of mankind?"

INTEREST IN ELECTIONS MONDAY RUNS HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 27—What with interest generally keyed up to a high pitch locally in the trial of the "ice-box" bandits and transpiring events in the national political campaign, a minimum of thought had been given the town of Windham elections which take place next Monday. The board of selectmen and town clerk got busy today in making arrangements for the elections and demonstrations were given on the voting machines which have been installed for this purpose on the second floor of the old town building on Church street. Demonstrations were given today and will be given Friday and Saturday from 12 o'clock noon until 8 p. m. and are in charge of Mrs. Loretta Costello and Mrs. Anna Spellman of the second district. Similar demonstrations are given on the second floor lobby at the town building by Edward F. Ellsworth of the first district. Voters who are not familiar with the handling of the machines are requested to take this opportunity of learning of the operation. The selectmen went on a tour of inspection today of the voting booths in the third and fourth districts. They found that the third district booth had suffered considerably from abuse. Windows were broken and the floor was littered with stones and rubbish. Carpenters are to be engaged in making repairs Friday. The fourth district booth was in perfect condition. Interest in the town elections, although it admittedly has been abated, is expected to rise to a high degree over the week end and the total vote is expected to be very fair unless the electors are hampered by inclement weather. Probably the principal contest in the elections will be that between Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, a candidate to succeed himself, and Lewye N. Gerry, republican opponent of Mr. Fenton. It is the first time in several years that Town Clerk Fenton has had any opposition in his run for the office.

City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell was in serious condition at his home, 16 South Park street today as the result of a shock which he suffered during the night and which caused paralysis of his whole body. Mr. Mitchell, who is a former first selectman of the town was found unconscious and paralyzed in his bed this morning and up to late this afternoon he had not regained consciousness. Members of his household were prostrated with fear that he would not recover. Mr. Mitchell had retired in apparently good health Wednesday night.

A lease for a tract of land owned by Frank Campbell near Sunset Farm on the North Windham road was signed today, giving the city the use of the land for five years as a municipal dumping ground for rubbish. It is understood that the grounds will be in the care of Mr. Campbell who also holds the contract for the collection of garbage in the city. The lease is for five years with the privilege of renewal for an additional five years at a nominal rate of rental. All refuse with the exception of dead animals may be dumped on the new dumping grounds after October 1. The lease was signed by Mr. Campbell and members of the sanitary committee of the common council: Alderman Cyril A. Lamoureux, chairman, Oliver L. Willard and John Reilly.

Alexandro Agnella, 28, employed by the Waterbury Construction company, engaged in state highway work in South Coventry, sustained a painful injury to his foot Wednesday afternoon when a company truck backed up and the heavy rear wheel passed over the man's foot crushing the arch. Agnella was treated at St. Joseph's hospital.

It was stated by one of the jurors in the trial of Albert J. Raymond and Roland G. Lalone which closed Wednesday night with a verdict of second degree murder in both cases, that the jury had at no time considered the acquittal of the defendants. Several ballots were taken and five jurors stood for conviction of murder in the first degree while the remaining seven held out for second degree. During the last half hour of the six hour and 20 minute deliberation the five "first degree" jurors were gradually won over until all agreed on second degree for both of the accused. The verdict met with general approval here and Attorney Frank B. Hall, senior counsel for the defendants, stated that there was hardly anything to appeal from. The postponement of meting out sentence until next Tuesday gives the defense time, however, in which to file motions for setting aside of the verdict in the event that an appeal is decided upon.

Old Faithful, the town clock in the tower of the town building was again clicking away the minutes and hours this evening after having had its periodical bath in oil and grease and receiving a general adjustment at the hands of Ralph U. Wolmer of the firm of Tracy & Wolmer. The old town clock failed last Sunday morning Mr. Wolmer and his assistant found that several of the bushings in the machinery were badly worn and the clapper and spring of the bell needed replacing. It was the first time in 33 years, or since the clock was installed, that general repairs were necessary.

Mrs. George W. Hickey entertained members of the Hill Bridge club at her home in the afternoon at cards and luncheon. Mrs. A. B. Sharpe won the first bridge prize, Mrs. R. L. "OVER THE COUNTER"

DEAR DOT:

As housewives and wardens of the general health of our families, especially the growth of the youngsters, I realize how much you and I and every other mother is interested in the two words Bread and Pastries

It is with this thought that I am going to tell you a few things concerning the Bidorini Bakery at 44 Church street and advise you to try some of their excellent products

Alfred Bidorini, the manager and proprietor, has had 22 years of experience in the barkery business when he came here from Stafford Springs some three months ago Mr. Bidorini took over the former Blanchette and Blanchette bakery establishment and at once proceeded to moderize the machinery and put out a new line of bread and pastries intended to be superior in quality and taste.

The spacious bakery in the rear of the store has been very much improved. Two oil furnaces have been installed, elimnating any smoke, odor and dust that prevails with other fuels. Oil as a fuel in a bakery is a new departure in this section and upon visiting the bakery one can readily see its many advantages. With the installation of several pieces of modern machinery the baking can be done with the utmost sanitation, and the handling of ingredients and products by the bakers has been eliminated in every possible way.

Another great feature of the Bidorini Bakery is that Deliveries are Made to Any Point. This includes regular deliveries or special orders. Mr. Bidorini informed me that he was prepared to handle special orders in any line or for any occasion within six to eight hours after receiving them, either by telephone or personal call.

I want to also call our attention to Bidorini's ..al' Bread. This tasty, wholesome bread is no different than any other. I find upon inquiry, except that it will keep Fresh for a much longer period than others. It comes in loves of 20 ounces and is neatly wrapped in wax paper. As a special introductory offer for this bread, 20 of the wrappers and 99 cents will secure for you a beautiful $2.50 Doll, fully dressed—really ..n exquisite present for the little one.

I feel sure that if you once try Bidorini's bakery products you will then be counted as one of the hundreds of new friends that this shop is rapidly making.

Hoping this letter finds you and the family well and happy,

JANE.

RAINY DAYS ARE OFTEN SCHOOL DAYS TOO

And when the two fall together it is unfortunate for all concerned; but especially so for the little folks who have no opportunity to make a change of clothing after reaching school.

Just how unfortunate it may be can be discovered by anyone interested enough to make the walk to school on a rainy day without a raincoat, and then sit for two or three hours in damp clothing.

Doesn't sound so good, does it?

And it isn't good, either.

It will pay well to protect both the child's health and clothing with a raincoat, when one may be bought for a price as low as $3.98.

And when we mention $3.98 as the price, we are referring to a coat that is good enough to buy and good enough to wear.

OUR REPLY

The note which has been sent by this government in response to the submission of the Franco-British naval agreement for study and opinion sets forth the attitude of the United States government. What that is has not as yet been revealed. Intimations are that it sets forth this country's policies concerning limitation, or a repetition of what has already been presented before. If it sets forth that the attitude of this country is no different than it was at the time there was an effort made to bring about an understanding among the three nations it will not surprise.

Then it was the hope that further limitation among the auxiliary war craft could be accomplished. The effort was not successful and while action by congress regarding new cruisers was delayed for a time the inability to negotiate an agreement made it necessary to proceed with a building programme which was not presented in retaliation but in recognition of the fact that our navy needed such additional strength in order to fit it for proper defense purposes.

It will not be surprising, either, if the note which has been sent clearly set forth the feeling of this government in regard to the possibilities of a further conference at this time on naval limitations. It isn't to be supposed that the United States would stand in the way of obtaining such an understanding but there is little as yet to indicate that there would be any more chance at the present time for bringing it about than there was when the previous attempt was made. It doesn't appear that the other nations are ready to meet the views of the United States nor is it evident that this country is ready to yield to the European demands. From no source has come any indication that a way has been found for bringing about a reconciliation of the differences.

Possibly Great Britain and France may be satisfied with the compromise which they have negotiated, it apparently gives no reason to believe that it would mean the meeting of this country's requirements in another conference.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

Time and again appeals have been made in behalf of reforestation. A presentation of the need is invariably convincing but it is often the case that those who are favorably disposed want to see an example. Just as a bird in the hand is better than two in the bush they insist upon seeing even though believing.

As if in recognition of this attitude members of the Kiwanis clubs of Michigan have set out to provide the examples. They have begun the planting of 5500 acres of pine seedlings, or at least provide the money with which to do it and it is safe to say that they will continue to display an interest in the development of that particular tract of woodland as the years roll by.

But that isn't all of it. They are contributing to the reforestation work, in which there is a big opportunity in that state, but they are also setting the much needed example for a great many others. They are demonstrating to those who have waste land, those who have had their woodlands cut over and those who are seeking a chance to make money that there is plenty of opportunity in the growing of trees. This is the same sort of a plan that has been adopted in some states where their own forests, or state forests, are maintained. Woodland plots, plainly marked and the purpose stated, are found to be an inspiration to others. Those who see may be reminded that there is a chance to do the same thing on some of their land which is not now yielding any return and before long that good example is bearing fruit.

Whether it is a town forest, a state forest or a forest which has been set out by children and regarded by them as their own, the purpose is to develop a much needed interest in that direction for the good of the owner, the good of the state and the satisfying of the nation's demand for lumber in the future.

When the people get to thinking of woodlands, even as they do of other crops, there will be promoted that state of health in regard to reforestation that has long been needed.

PAROLE FOR LIFERS?

When Leopold and Loeb were sentenced to prison for life it was recommended that there be no parole granted them regardless of the time they were behind bars. They have been in prison for four years and now comes the report that there is a chance that they may be released in six more years because a mistake was made in the mittimus by which they were committed to the penitentiary.

This report has been followed by another which denies the accuracy of it and it is to be hoped that there is no possibility of any such action being taken.

These young men were involved in one of the most brutal murders in recent years. They come from wealthy families and were extremely fortunate in not paying for their crime by being executed. The expression by the judge against parole indicated the sentiment that prevailed at the time.

Even those sentenced as they were are bound to harbor the idea that some day they will be free. Good behavior is regarded as helpful to them, although it is not being overlooked that Leopold is regarded as having been the master mind in connection with a prison outbreak which resulted in three deaths and the execution of three participants.

It is preposterous to think that because a mistake was made in the commitment papers that the penalization which they received and deserved can be brushed aside. If such a mistake exists it is time to determine who was responsible for it and if there was anything that influenced it. And yet inasmuch as it is possible to correct mistakes in other respects it is difficult to understand why such a thing as a clerical error cannot be corrected by proper court action, if necessary, in this particular instance.

The idea that the failure to dot an "i" or cross a "t" should be possible to upset the conviction and punishment of such criminals indicates an alarming state of affairs. More than ever would it open the way for claiming that money did it.

THE TOURISTS COME BACK

For the past several weeks American tourists have been pouring back from Europe. They have been taking in the wonders of that continent for short or long periods of time. Some have been attracted in one direction and some another. The British isles have provided sufficient attractions for many of them while others have revelled in a thorough covering of the continent.

Now that the season is over they are returning home like the vacationers from the summer resorts. They have seen and been much impressed. They have studied and been entertained. They have gained a close knowledge of those things about which they had heard much and gotten in touch with conditions which are not soon to be forgotten. Such a trip is an invaluable education which lasts forever.

Impressions will differ. We have no doubt that there will be many who are prepared to say that Europe has no charms that exceed those of America, even though they would not have missed an opportunity to have made a personal visit for personal observation and comparison. Others will wonder whether it does or not, simply because they are not thoroughly acquainted with their own country, and the result cannot fail to be that it will result in a greater desire to see more of the many worthwhile attractions of their own country.

There are few but what would welcome the chance to go abroad. There is a fascination about it and yet, as in many other things, the anticipation often exceeds the realization. It is not surprising that so many people declare that the more they see of other countries the better they like their own. They go away but they come back. That is as it should be.

AVAILABLE WHEN NEEDED

Welcome would be the prediction that could definitely show when a second canal between the Atlantic and Pacific is going to be needed. There are those who maintain that it will never be required if the proper steps are taken in regard to the Panama canal, but it is not to be forgotten that there were those who maintained all sorts of sour predictions about the success of the present canal before it was built.

In a report by the operations bureau of the shipping board and the engineers board of the war department the canal traffic has far outstripped the fondest hopes. There is a steady increase in its use, more business from coast to coast is being handled by water and while we lead in its use it is no more than what should be expected when it is found that the ships of other nations are constantly using it.

The canal traffic has benefitted by the large developments in the California oil fields and the transportation of the oil from those fields to the Atlantic coast by tankers, but even when that experienced a slump it became silent that such commodities as lumber, grain and ores were being sent by the canal in steadily increasing quantities. Where this expansion of the traffic is going to stop no one is ready to predict. It is fair, however, to presume that it will continue in volume even as it has in the past 14 years as national demands require it.

That brings up the question as to how soon it will be necessary to think about building a second canal. It cannot be answered offhand. Only through a careful study of canal business, the outlook for the future and the canal limitations can that be told. When that is considered, however, there is always satisfaction in knowing that this country has the right of way for another canal when and if it needs it.

TWELVE SHARP.

"For Pete's sake, don't be late," admonished Duncan after telling Mrs. Duncan just where to meet him for luncheon. "We're mighty busy now in the office, and if I take a couple of hours off to go shopping with you I don't want to waste any of the time waiting."

"Of course not, dear," replied the unperturbed Mrs. Duncan. "There ought to be no reason why I shouldn't be exactly on time."

"Well, see that you are. Twelve o'clock sharp, you know. I'm always prompt myself and I—oh, by the way, Ann, will you call up Bings, please, and have him send for my dress clothes? They'll certainly be the better for a pressing before the wedding. And you might get my spring overcoat out, too, and send that along for a cleaning and pressing."

"All right. You wish a new collar on the coat, dont you?"

"Yes, and I guess you'd better stop in at Bings' and see about that yourself. It won't be much out of your way, will it?"

"No, dear; only three blocks."

"That's fine. Well, au revoir; see you at noon sharp, 12, you know. Say, come to think of it, you'd better look over my speech for the bond dinner, and make any corrections necessary, and bring it down to me. The vice-president signified his desire to see it in advance."

"You'd better run the last few pages through your little old portable. I can't spare the time to dictate it to Miss Mims. Besides, I've worked it over so much that it's worse than a Chinese puzzle. You won't mind, will you?"

"No, indeed, dear; I like puzzles," Mrs. Duncan replied, and had Duncan happened to look at her as he hastily kissed her good-bye he might have fancied that her farewell smile was a bit puzzling.

"Ann," Duncan's voice floated back from the open door. "I say, Ann, you'd better order the coal. I forgot it yesterday, and, while you're about it, the wood for the fireplace, too, but don't get that from the coal people; order that from Ritter. He's got some good oak and hickory. Well, ta, ta again. Twelve sharp, remember."

Before the breakfast dishes were washed and the beds made a messenger arrived from Duncan's office with a request for some old blue prints that Duncan said, in his hastily scribbled note, were stowed away somewhere in his study. A sudden need for them had arisen and they must be found at once.

When, after fifteen minutes' intensive searching, they were at last discovered, dusted and neatly wrapped and dispatched, Mrs. Duncan decided to neglect most of her usual household duties and attend to her preparations for keeping her appointment. She had just seated herself at her typewriter with her husband's speech, when that gentleman called her on the telephone.

"Say, Ann, would you mind starting a little early so you can bring down my silk hat? It really ought to be pressed before the wedding. Take it to Hatter & Hatter, please, and tell them to get it home before Saturday. Of course, I could call for it to make sure, but, no, it's such an awkward thing to carry, they had better send it. Will you do that? That's fine. Remember, lunch at 12 sharp."

Arriving breathless and flushed at the cafe where she had agreed to meet her husband, Mrs. Duncan glanced at the big clock over the door. Twelve sharp. She sighed and applied her powder puff to her perspiring nose. Other men arrived, meeting other wives. She scanned each face but none belonged to her. She began going over in her mind the things that had occupied her morning. How she done one-tenth of the things she had maped out to do! Yes, there wasn't a thing she could think of that was left undone. She had called up Bings and sent all Duncan's things to the cleaners; she had afterward stepped in at Bings' herself, to leave additional instructions; she had gone over Duncan's speech for the bond dinner and typed the last part of it and she'd ordered the coal and the wood. She glanced at the clock. Twelve twenty! And no Duncan.

At twelve twenty-seven Duncan appeared, smiling and debonair.

"I thought you might be a little late, perhaps, so I gave you a few minutes' grace," he said. "Did you get everything done? That's fine. Well, now we'll have to hurry through lunch, if we are going to buy that wedding present this afternoon. We really should have had lunch at 12 sharp. My time is valuable!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Sad news awaited those members of the cabinet who had remobilized in Washington in time to sit in on the president's first post-vacation round-table talk with his official family.

They learned at once that a three months sojourn in Wisconsin had not altered the presidential financial policy in the slightest. The thing uppermost in his mind was the indicated deficit of more than 90 millions General Lord had figured out in detail after a careful survey of the money-spending activities of the last session of congress, and duly reported on his visit to Brule.

Savings Called For

It was not a new idea by any means. In round figures, the same discrepancy between income and outgo for the year was in sight when the regular government business meeting was held before the White House family started westward for the summer.

What was new, however, was the calm notice given the cabineteers by their chief that he expected them to live officially so well within their means from now until June 30 next that they can turn back to the treasury unexpended balances of current appropriations that will eliminate the indicated deficit.

It is possible, of course, that treasury estimates of the tax yield and other agencies of income that go to fill up Uncle Sam's purse will prove a bit pessimistic. That has happened before. The last session of congress was inclined to cut loose a little in authorizing expenditures because Secretary Mellon and his assistants appeared to have under-calculated what would be collected and the treasury had rolled up a sizable surplus. With a national election just ahead, it was a great temptation to men who must run for re-election to use up that surplus in ways they thought would be helpful in the November vote getting.

Result Problematical

Departmental budgetry officers are now worrying with possible economies to carry out the Coolidge fiat. Just how it is to be accomplished by any department is not yet apparent. It will be a day to day, week to week, month to month affair of small savings, no doubt, the sort of economy campaign General Lord dotes upon. In the aggregate, these may pile up a tidy sum remaining unexpended out of current appropriations at the end of the fiscal year. Or they may not.

It seems to depend at this writing on how the next president of the United States looks at the matter rather than on what President Coolidge decrees. He can only order that expenditure cuts be made; the accounting will be made to his successor in office and there may be no member of the present cabinet still in authority when that is done. Whether Hoover or Smith takes over at the White House, the cabinet changes by present outlook will be just about as sweeping.

President Coolidge can control expenditures up to March 4 next. He also can and no doubt will enforce a rigid requirement that the executive departments hold down urgent or general deficiency relief applications to be made to the second session of the 70th congress this winter. There will be an interval of nearly four months of the present appropriation year remaining, however, after he leaves office March 4, and the final expenditure vs. savings record of the year will be written under authority of the next White House tenant.

YOUR HEALTH

LIGHTING THE SCHOOL ROOM.

By Harold H. Mitchell, M. D., New York.

Is bad lighting in the school handicapping your child? School, medical, and public health authorities point to bad school lighting as a cause of eyestrain. Is your community guilty of inflicting this handicap upon its children?

Such an authoritative report as that of the joint committee on health problems in education of the National Education Association and the American Medical Association states that two of the chief causes of eyestrain in the schoolroom are insufficient illumination and glare. They emphasize the need for eliminating from the classroom all highly polished glossy surfaces that reflect light, and the prevention of sharp contrasts caused by brilliant light against dark background—blackboards placed between windows provide such bad contrasts. The arrangement of shades to avoid the glare of bright sunlight, and at the same time to obtain the benefit of adequate light is also emphasized. Translucent buff-colored shades are recommended so as to transmit the light and at the same time diffuse it. Color of the walls and ceilings is important to good lighting conditions; light buff, light warm gray, dark cream and grayish green are recommended for walls; white or light cream for ceilings. Artificial lighting must be of adequate intensity of illumination, and the naked light sources should be shielded to prevent glare and sharp contrasts.

We may be proud of our American public schools, but pride will not protect our children from eyestrain in badly lighted school buildings. Wherever achievement in public education justifies civic pride, it has been accomplished through a healthy dissatisfaction with any but the best of conditions. Inadequate window area, cross-lighting from windows on both the right and left sides of the room, classrooms shaded by the heavy foliage of trees, or blackboards and desks exposed to glaring sunlight without shades are obviously not the best of conditions.

School building surveys indicate that all over the country we may find school buildings with hundreds of children compelled to attend school where the light conditions are a menace to good vision. Windows too small and widely placed, or windows on opposite sides of a classroom have in the past been one of the most common errors in school house construction. These poorly lighted classrooms are tolerated only from a false idea of economy. All parents will disapprove of poorly-lighted buildings which are likely to cause eyestrain. The construction of new school buildings is too often postponed, or the reconstruction of the lighting of old buildings is delayed merely because we are slow to become sufficiently concerned about it.

Public support of alert and honest health and education departments is essential to the rapid correction of badly lighted school buildings. Parent-Teacher associations and other civic organizations have a serious responsibility and should continue to exert their influence for the removal of these conditions that handicap children. Government officials cannot succeed in this expensive undertaking without public support. A well lighted schoolroom for every child is one of the obligations we must assume in a democracy having compulsory public education.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Neutralize Acid After Meals With Bisurated Magnesia Instant Relief; Makes Stomach Feel Fine

Nearly nine-tenths of all stomach disturbance, indigestion, gas, sourness, heartburn, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of acid in the stomach. Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm.

An acid stomach needs a soothing alkaline to instantly neutralize acidity and permit proper digestion. Quickly prove this truth. Lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any reliable druggist a package of Bisurated Magnesia—either powder or tablets—and take some after your next meal. It is amazing how quickly all sourness, gas and pain stop and how good the stomach feels.

You take no risk in trying Bisurated Magnesia. Every druggist is authorized to return the purchase price to any user, who after using one full package, is not completely satisfied. Bisurated Magnesia is harmless, pleasant and convenient to use, and non-laxative. Thousands use it daily.

Stories That Recall Others

She Knew the Relationship.

The teacher had told the children to speak of their father and mother as their parents and not as a daddy and mother. One day she asked the class, "Now what relation are your father and mother to you?"

A little girl replied: "I know, my father is related to me by marriage and my mother by bornage."

What Is It?

The changing trend of the times and customs is reflected in the children and a casual question of the younger set brings it to notice. For instance: Marjorie, looking up from a book she was reading, asked: "Mother, what is a hat-pin?"

COUNTY FAIR OPENS WITH AUTO PARADE, RACING, VAUDEVILLE

An attendance estimated around 3,000 marked the opening of the New London County Agricultural society's 74th annual fair Thursday at the Norwich fairgrounds. Although the skies were clear and sunny there was a decided chill in the air and a strong wind swept over the grounds throughout the afternoon. The chilly atmosphere and unpleasant wind cut down the attendance much to the disappointment of the society's officials. However, they look for a much larger crowd today (Friday) and a record breaking attendance Saturday.

An unusually large midway with a variety of attractions of all kinds, a carnival, attractive exhibits of many kinds, a splendid track programme, nine heats of racing, and a high class vaudeville bill on the outdoor stage, make this year's fair a worthwhile event. A number of people took occasion to compliment the officials on the success that has greeted their efforts in arranging the programme and exhibits.

This year the fair is open day and night. There was a fair sized attendance at the night show Thursday, when the vaudeville programme given during the afternoon was repeated and in addition there was a brilliant display of fireworks, that brought the first day of the fair to a close. The midway, grandstand, vaudeville stage and the high diving apparatus were electrically illuminated.

The midway is crowded with a variety of atractions, tent shows, a merry-go-round, ferris wheel, candy, blanket, doll and novelty tents, lunch, hot dog, soft drink and cigar and cigarette stands.

A clown and a rube policeman roam over the grounds, entertaining the crowds with comedy stunts, witty sayings and jokes. The auto show and merchants row proved big attractions. In addition to Slivers, the clown, and the rube cop, Dr. Gideon B. Searles, the old country prysician, holds forth in the midway and at Ye Olde Time Pharmacy. The Goldenaries Trumpeteers, four famous musicians, who have broadcasted over a number of eastern radio stations, entertain in the merchants' midway, where several thousands of dollars worth of prizes are being given away free.

Thursday was devoted to judging of exhibits, starting at 10 a. m. The classes judged Thursday were poultry, Carl Ricker, supt., flowers, Otto F. Ernst, supt., sheep, and swine, Frank T. Maples, supt.

Today (Friday) is sheep day. This morning will occur the judging of bees and honey, Allen Latham, supt., fruit and vegetables, S. E. Holdredge, supt., and dairy cattle, Walter T. Clarke, supt.

The Old Fiddlers' contest is slated for this afternoon and there will also occur this afternoon a demonstration of sheep herding by J. B. Pritchard's dog, Scottie, from Storrs. Domestic and fancy work, Mrs. L. B. Smith and Mrs. Albert Avery, superintendents, will also take place this afternoon. Starting at 2 o'clock the three horse races will be called and the vaudeville events will be again given on the stage.

Swahn's band, John M. Swahn, director, is seen at the grounds again this year. The band provided a splendid concert programme in front of the grandstand throughout the afternoon and at the night show.

Noticeable in the midway is the new memorial flag pole and beautiful flag. There are also large American flags on the grandstand, at main headquarters and on the judge's stand. The main office building is decked in the patriotic colors.

A number of improvements are noted at the grounds this year. New cattle sheds and horse barns have been erected, replacing those burned down some months ago. There is also a new picket fence in front of the grand stand, and a new fence has been put up around the track. The track has been widened several feet in front of the grand stand, and leveled off, giving the horses considerable more room to geet away in the races.

OVER 100 CARS SHOWN IN AUTOMOBILE DISPLAY

Advance models, the very latest in the automobile, feature the automobile show which this year is the largest ever held in Eastern Connecticut. Over 100 cars are on display in the enclosure to the left of the main entrance and the many colored and highly polished surfaces make a brilliant spectacle gleaning in the sun. Under the direction of Superintnedent P. E. Rockwood the cars are attractively placed and show to advantage.

The auto show was opened shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday morning with a parade from the grounds through the city to Greeneville and return. At the fairgrounds the parade circled the track and each dealer with his car was introduced to the public. The parade was headed by the motorcycle display followed by the pleasure cars in which were the Trumpeteers who played during the parade. Following the pleasure cars came a calliope which in turn was followed by the display of sea-sleds, auto trucks and trailers. In one of the sea-sleds was a clown and rube policeman who added a touch of the ridiculous to the parade.

Low hung bodies, low sweeping lines, wire wheels, bright but harmonizing colors seem to predominate in the 1929 models on display. Fine interior appointments are noted on the more expensive models while in the lower priced cars exceptionally fine upholstery and fittings are displayed. This show was one of the best of the exhibits on the grounds.

The exhibitors were:

LIVESTOCK DISPLAY WITH CATTLE, SHEEP, SWINE

The livestock display in which cattle, sheep and hogs were the feature was full of interest for both the rural and the urban visitors of the fair.

Cattle

George G. Grant's Haugton farm at Montville had a fine herd of 16 Ayrshires headed by the five year old bull, Springbura Gentleman John. Included in the herd are twin heifers and the animals are all in fine condition.

R. T. Manning of North Franklin exhibits at the fair for the first time showing a herd of 18 quality Holsteins.

Irving Browning of Norwich Town makes an attractive entry with a herd of a dozen Guerneseys.

James Lathrop has a herd of 30 Rockfern Jerseys from his Raymond Hill farm. There are 23 milch cows in the herd, which is headed by Victor's Crackerjack, four years old, the junior herd bull is Tiddleywinks Lucky Day and the bull calf Lassie's Butter Boy.

Locust Grove Stock farm from West Rutland, Vt., exhibits a herd of ten Dutch belted and ten red pole, which are not usually seen at the fair here.

Moccasin Brook farm from Petersham, Mass., displayed a prize winner herd of 16 milking short horns, direct from the Springfield fair where they were in competition with 20 herds and won in each class except in two cases. The herd also won the special family prize.

Irving Browning of Norwich Town enters a herd of 12 Guernseys, all fine looking animals.

Edward E. Parkhurst of Presque Isle, Maine, has his herd of nine Aberdeen Angus exhibit here, which is the seventh fair he has entered this season. This herd of hornless, black cattle comprises three bulls, one milker and the others are heifers.

Sheep

The sheep pens are unusually well filled the entries providing an interesting variety. They include Perry stock farm of Perry, N. Y., with 107 Delaware, Merino, Rambouville, Lincolt, Leicester, Cotswool, Southdown, Dorset, Hampshire, Oxford, Cheviot; 8 Shropshires, Clyde Lathrop, Yantic; 9 Southdowns, H. E. Howe, Yantic.

Swine

The swine entered are of the red Duroc Jersey breed of which there are about 20 belonging to John F. Smith of Groveport, Ohio. There are entries of Chester white hogs by Edwin Edwards of Norwich and J. W. Shank of Old Mystic.

Fancy Poultry Shown

The poultry display again this year is up to the high standard that has been maintained for the fair. Supt. Carl A. Ricker, of Norwich Town has arranged an interesting exhibit that attracted many on Thursday and is bound to continue to show to a large number during the remainder of the fair. The display is located under the grandstand and is featured by six quackless ducks, entered by Robert F. Jones of this city. This rather odd display drew the attention of many.

Many varieties are shown again this year. Barred rocks, white rocks, white partridge buff, black and silver wyandottes and white buff, black an brown leghorns are among the leaders in the display.

Various types of game bantam and the bantam, including the buff, cochan, black and rose combed, silver, golden sebright are also being shown.

Paul P. Ives of New Haven is the judge.

Raymond, Norwich; Gem Poultry Yard, Norwich; George Wilson, Norwich; Edward Pinsky, Old Mystic.

CANADIAN EXHIBIT MADE UNIQUE FEATURE

Perhaps the most artistic exhibit of any on the grounds is that of the Canadian trade and commerce commission in the Canadian building almost in the center of the grounds. This exhibit attracted many who exclaimed over the beauty and attractiveness of the display.

In this exhibit practically every kind of grain, threshed and in the sheaf, was shown, including bald and bearded wheat, oats, flax, and rye. There were field peas and beans on the vine, alfalfa, various grasses such as timothy, blue joint and red top with a number of others found only in Canada. These specimens showed luxurient growth. Vegetables, mostly of the fall variety such as squashes, pumpkins, cabbage and turnips were shown. In large glass jars arranged in attractive display were fruits and vegetables, peaches, apples, cherries, plums and pears, celery and peppers. Two Stilton cheese were shown as well as honey, maple sugar and maple syrup.

One of the most unique things of the Canadian exhibit were two farm scenes done on a background of blue silk. The artist had taken the various kinds of grains, seeds and broken grass and had cunningly contrived a realistic picture of the Canadian farming country. The colors blended perfectly and with the lighting effect the scene looked almost as if they were done in oils.

Floral Display

In the same building were attractive displays of dahlias by The Sunnyside Dahlia Gardens, Mrs. R. W. Gallup, Mrs. Freemont Verguson, Ethel W. Fitts of Storrs and William Logee of Norwich. Dahlias of various colors and sizes were shown, some in bouquets and others in single blossoms. The dahlia display was exceptionally pretty.

The Maplewood Nursery had a very artistic display of shrubbery, flowering, and potted plants, ferns and ornamental trees. A typical home scene depicting the advantages of landscape gardening was cleverly worked out in miniature. At the entrance to the building an attractive array of ornamental trees had been planted by the nursery lending a most artistic effort about the doorway.

Palms and ferns with flowering shrubs and other plants were displayed by Geduldig greenhouses in a very attractive exhibit.

Italian Castle Bird House

Another exhibit in the building, although not in the agricultural line, was the ornamental bird-house built by Frank Connelli of Franklin street. The house entirely the work of Mr. Connelli's own hands represented an old Italian castle. It took Mr. Connelli six months to complete the work, all the carving on the ornamental work being done by the builder.

NEHF PROVES STUMBLING BLOCK IN PATH OF GIANTS IN PENNANT RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—Li'l Artha Nehf, the Terre Haute terror, came marching back to his Polo grounds today, and what he did to his old friend John McGraw is sad to relate. The former Giant southpaw has won perhaps a half dozen games from his old mates since he was sold down the river two years ago last spring, but never one so devastating as the 3 to 2 triumph he earned over Karl Hubbell and Jack Scott in the first half of today's double-header before 32,000 astounded fans.

Even though the Giants fought back in the second game to overthrow the Cubs by 2 to 0, the Cardinals won their single skirmish in Boston by 8 to 2 and so regained the advantage which accrued to the Giants from the St. Louis defeat in Brooklyn yesterday. The Red Birds led by a full game tonight with two more to go against Boston before they invade the Polo grounds for the grand finale on Sunday. In the interim the Giants must associate with the Cubs in two games.

Hubbell pitched effectively enough against Nehf, but Nehf was just the shade better than the score indicates. Lindstrom's double and Hogan's single gave the home southpaw a margin of one in the second, but the Cubs swung the advantage right back to Nehf in the third, and Nehf himself had a hand in it.

Singles by Hartnett and Beck and a pass to Artie filled the bases, and Hartnett scored as English forced Nehf at second. Jackson's throw to first in a double-play bid was low, and Beck also dashed home. Hack Wilson's triple and Stephenson's single in the next inning gave Nehf a margin with which to combat a second Giant run added in the fifth on a pass to Jackson and a double by Cohen.

The Giants thought they scored another run in the sixth, and rushed to John Heydler with a protest when Bill Krem ruled otherwise. McGraw contended that Gabby Hartnett wilfully grasped the leg of Andy Reese in a run-down play which trapped the Giant left fielder between third and home, and that Hartnett at the time was not trying to touch Reese with the ball for the simple reason that somebody else had it.

Since only the judgment of the umpire seems to be involved, the protest very likely will be thrown out. Mr Heydler will make known his ruling tomorrow.

The Giants got only three hits off Charlie Root in the second game and none whatever off Percy Lee Jones, but one of the drives was Frank Hogan's home run against the facade of the upper left field stand in the second, and the other blows did not matter. Another run was added in the fourth, but Joe Genewich could have done with Hogan's crash. He gave the Cubs only five safeties and seldom was taken threatened. The scores:

GROVE PITCHES ATHLETICS TO WIN OVER WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—(AP)—"Lefty" Grove's slants worked miraculously today as he hurled the Philadelphia Athletics to a 5 to 3 victory over Lena Blackburne's White Sox.

Grove not only limited the White Sox to six scattered hits, but he struck out nine. In the seventh inning he struck out Berg, Thomas and Mostil on nine pitched balls. He also aided his own cause by knocking out a home run in the third inning for the A's first tally. No one was on base. The drive was a long one, landing in the right field bleachers. It was Grove's sixth straight victory over the White Sox and his twenty fourth of the year.

The Athletics, each of whom got one hit, bunched their blows on Alphonse Thomas, who also got into trouble by walking six. Score:

SCRUBS HOLD VARSITY UNTIL NEAR THE END

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 27—(AP)— The second scrimmage of the week was held today by Coach Stevens of Yale the "varsity" being held on even terms by the scrubs until near the close of the 40 minute practice. The "regulars" then ran rough shod, piling up three touchdowns and Oldt kicked the goals to make the score 21 to 0.

In an effort to find strong replacement material for the backfield, Coach Stevens kept Ellis, Garvey and Dekker out of the scrimmage. Hoben returned to his post at quarter and the other starting backs were Lampe, Loud and Miller. Frequent changes were made in both the backfield and line with three sets of ends being tried out. The touchdowns were made by Lampe, Loud and Switz.

Of the squad of over 100 candidates Coach Stevens today sliced the number to 60 to be retained at the training table.

YANKS NEED BUT ONE VICTORY TO CLINCH FLAG

DETROIT, Sept. 27—(AP)—It's all over but the shouting, only the Yankees are in no mood to shout. The Yanks trimmed the Tigers in both ends of today's double-header by scores of 4 to 3 and 8 to 5, although a reeling procession of New York pitchers in the second clash had to have the help of darkness which ended the spectacle at the end of the seventh session.

The champions so advanced to a point where one more victory in three games or one more Athletic defeat in the same number would make a New York triumph certain. It would seem that even the crippled Yankees should accomplish this much. The Hugmen lead tonight by two and one-half game, as the Macks had only one to win in Chicago.

The first clash witnessed Waite Hoyt's twenty-first triumph and his last of the season unless a couple of earthquakes overtake the Yanks between now and Sunday. Owen Carroll gave him a battle all the way. The least said about the pitchers in the second game, the better. Fred Heimach was officially accused of winning it, but could easily prove his innocence, as also could his successors, Al Shealy and Henry Johnson.

Limping along on nothing much but his great heart, Babe Ruth smashed Carroll for a home run in the first round of the opener and repeated against Vic Sorrell in the nightcap's first inning. They were the Babe's 51st and 52nd homers, but they left him eight behind his 1927 record with only three more games to go. Ruth gave way to a substitute in each engagement and Leo Durocher twice relieved the ailing Lazzeri.

Earl Combs joined the Yankee corps of cripples when he shook himself severely in a crash against the left center field concrete. He was making a vain bid to corral Harry Heilmann's triple in the third inning of the second game. Earl had to be relieved, but may be able to resume his play tomorrow. The scores:

INDIANS AND RED SOX SPLIT IN DOUBLE BILL

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox divided a double header here today. The tribesmen took the opener 14 to 10, after overcoming Boston's seven run lead while the Sox walked in with the second, 7 to 4.

Charley Ruffing pitched for Boston in the first game, allowing seventeen hits but fanning eight men. Big Ed Morris kept the Indians in check throughout the nightcap.

CANZONERI-ROUTIS BOUT TONIGHT'S FISTIC FEATURE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—In his first title bout since he clinched the 126 pound championship by outpointing Benny Bass early this year, Tony Canzoneri, of New York, featherweight champion of the world, will meet Andre Routis, fiery little French challengers in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Canzoneri's principal opponents in the past six months have been Vic Foley, of Vancouver, perennial challenger for the Canadian featherweight title who lost a ten round decision at Montreal and Harry Blittman of Philadelphia, who scored a victory over the champion in a non-title bout in the Quaker city. Preparing for his title defense he recently scored a one-round knockout over Bobby Garcia at Newark.

Routis has fought his way through rugged opposition to the title bout. Canzoneri has one decision over the aggressive Frenchman scored two years ago. The verdict at that time was clouded with considerable doubt. The forecasts generally point to a close encounter tomorrow night with Canzoneri favored by a slight margin.

Indians Challenge

The Indians, a fast travelling basketball team of Norwalk, Conn., issue a challenge to all amateur teams of this city and vicinity whose average age is 15-18. All games to be played on opponents court. Those desiring games can communicate with Mgr. Ben S. Gilbert, 22 Magnolia avenue, Norwalk, Conn., or phone Norwalk 4917-3.

CARDS IMPROVE LEAD BY BEATING BRAVES

BOSTON, Sept. 27—(AP)—The league-leading Cardinals improved their pennant chances by defeating the Braves, 8 to 2, in the first game of the series here today while the Giants were dividing a double-header against the Cubs in New York. The Red Birds thus regained the half-game they lost yesterday when Brooklyn defeated them, and they rested tonight one full contest ahead of the runner-up New Yorks.

The Cardinals hopped off to a start of six runs in the very first inning when Ed Brandt was assaulted in cruel and inhuman manner. Brandt was both wild and easy to hit, and the Cards made the most of their opportunity. Johnny Cooney rushed to Grant's rescue after three runs were in and two more in a position to score, and did a creditable relief job over the rest of the journey.

Jess Haines pitched the distance for the Cardinals to score his twentieth victory, his ninth straight and his eighth consecutive complete game.

The big first inning of the Cardinals was helped along when Hornsby, with an easy double play set for him, tagged Holm on the base line with an empty hand, and then threw to first retiring only the batter. One run scored on this play, and two more came home a moment later on a double by Haines.

Frank Frisch had a big day in the field, running into outfield terrain several times to clutch difficult flies which had a bright sun for their background.

BROOKLYN TAKES TWO GAMES FROM PIRATES

BROOKLYN, Sept. 27—(AP)—Brooklyn climbed back to the .500 mark today by defeating Pittsburgh in both ends of a double header. Jess Petty triumphed over Burleigh Grimes, 7 to 6 in a ten inning first game, while Lou Koupal scored an easy 8-1 triumph over a flock of Pirate recruits in the second clash.

Del Bissonette provided the slugging features with a home run in each game bringing his total for the year to 25. The defeat of Grimes in the opener prevented him from reaching 26 victories for the season. He has fourteen defeats. Scores:

BRADLEY KAYOES ROSHEIN IN THE SEVENTH ROUND

WATERBURY, Sept. 27—(AP)—Ruby "Dark Cloud" Bradley, of Holyoke, Mass., New England flyweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Sammy Rosheln, of New York in the seventh round of the eight round feature bout of the Wooster A. A. card at Brassco park.

Bradley outclassed the New Yorker in every round. Bradley weighed 114, Rosthein 112.

Silent Frank Moran, of New Haven, who suffered a broken jaw in the final round, won a six round decision over Lucien Larriviere, of Waterbury. Moran weighed 156; Larriviere 162.

Billy Coe, New Haven, 140 pounds, beat Al Matera, of Bristol, 136, in another six rounder.

Tom Hamby, Holyoke, Mass., 162, knocked out Larry James, Derby, 170, in the fifth round.

Jack Sharkey, Waterbury, 121, knocked out Willie Dillon, New Haven, 120, in the second round.

DEVLIN WINS FIRST OF BANTAM ELIMINATION BOUTS AT NEW LONDON

In the bouts to determine a suitable opponent to do battle for the New England bantamweight championship against Harry Goldstein, the present title holder, Hughie Devlin, the little red headed Irishman from New London, formerly of New Bedford, outpointed Jimmy Picardy of Boston at the Arena at New London last night. Having won the first leg of the contest, Devlin will be pitted against some other outstanding bantam of New England at next Thursday's indoor show at the Lyceum.

After a slow start Devlin took the lead in the second round and mixing up a straight left with a hard right cross took the other seven rounds from Picardy, although the latter put up some tough opposition. Picardy started off with his straight left and bobbed Devlin's head back and had the latter bleeding from the nose in the first round. But after Hughie had solved Jimmy's style he went to work, and copped every round thereafter. Both little fellows did much of their work at close quarters with Devlin having the advantage. The last two rounds were fought in the downpour and handicapped the boys considerably. The style of both lads was so much alike, that it tended to make every round a repetition of the previous one, and although the bout was full of action every minute, no doubt a contest between Devlin and Al Beauregard will show more real fireworks. The Taftville boy would much rather stand off and slug and that is just what the crowd likes.

For real downright slugging the semi-final which lasted two rounds of the six was put on last, gave the fans the real thrill of the evening. Although it was called off at the end of the second round on account of the rain, it gave the fans an idea of what will happen next week when both boys are going to show again. Eddie Paul of New London was taking quite a drubbing from Eddie Corbett of Bridgeport, and it looked like curtains for the former when the bell rang at the end of the second. Paul was a glassy-eyed boy, and just managed to struggle to his corner. Both lads stood toe to toe for the two rounds and swapped punches, Corbett finally wearing Paul down with his terrific drives. The match next week on a dry canvas might make some difference. Corbett weighed 137 1-2 and Paul 138 1-2.

Eddie Ardos of the Coast Guard won easily from Kid Debartello in six rounds in the third event and won hands down. In fact his long reach, his boxing ability, and his good defense kept the Westerly boy from landing a blow until the fifth round. The only two or three times that he did land, slowed Ardos up for the minute, but he continued to use his swinging left to good advantage and tied Debartello up in the clinches. Debartello tried hard to get in through Ardos's defense, but the latter continued to hold him off, although he didn't seem to hurt him. Ardos weighed in at 128 and Debartello 130.

Johnny Bedell of New London cut Young Ellison of the Coast Guard to ribbons and did every thing but knock him out, but missed several chances to bring over the finisher. Ellison showed a world of gameness, however, and was fighting every minute and was always dangerous. Bedell continued to play for the head with his left jab and held his right back for an opening. Every time Johnny did land it, Ellison was hurt, but Johnny failed to follow up his advantages. Ellison was a tired boy at the end of the fourth, but Johnny too, had punched himself weak, and his blows lacked the steam to finish the Dusky sailor boy. It was a gruelling battle with both boys fighting hard up to the final bell. Both weighed 116.

Young Tauff, of the Sub Base, fighting his first professional fight, showed signs of being too finely trained, and that fact, combined with his wildness, lost him the decision to Kid Langlois, another tar who only lately graduated from the amateur ranks. Tauff, the hard hitter of the two, tried hard to make short work of Langlois, but the latter stood up under Tauffs artillery and gradually wore him down. Tauff continued to pile in with head down and arms swinging. But Langlois stood him off with good rights and lefts and beat him to the punch. Tauff tired in the last session which gave the honors to Langlois. Tauff weighed 119 and Langlois 120.

The cold weather kept quite a few of the boys away, and those that braved the cold, lost the decision, the old man rain, he who continues to hover around Fakourey every Thursday night. After last night the rain won't mean a thing to the management as the fights will be held indoors. The card was good, as is usually the case at the New London show, and the winter season will find the good work going on.

PIPP'S HOMERS WIN GAME FOR THE REDLEGS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27—(AP)—Wally Pipp's two home runs over the right field fence helped Cincinnati score a 6 to 2 victory over the Philadelphia Nationals today. He hit his first with the bases bare in the third and his second with one on in the fifth. Pete Donohue held the Phillies in check with six hits, all singles, while Caldwell, Miller and Baecht who hurled off the Phillies were slammed for fifteen safeties by the Reds.

By making three double plays in successive innings Cincinnati ran its record for the season to 191.

TROLAND STRONG TEAM FOR SATURDAY

With warmer weather on the way for Saturday the record crowd of the present baseball season is expected at the Providence grounds when the Taftville A. A. and the J. B. Martin teams clash in the second game of the Norwich championship. J. B. Martin by virtue of their close win over Taftville in the first game ruled a slight favorite over Taftville A. A. but with the announcement the other day that Johnny Tillman would pitch for the Troland clan the betting went to even money.

Tillman in all probability will be pitted against Russ Fisher, former Villanova college hurler with Tillman having the slight edge because of his greater experience. Fisher on the other hand is pitching the best ball of his career and Manager Eriebeck of the Velvetmen feel that he is capable of holding anything that Troland can produce. Troland has also added to his attacking power by the acquisition of Tommy Sipples to play centerfield.

Troland refuses to state his exact lineup but says that his team will be picked from a dozen players. Tillman is to pitch and Eccleston is to do the back stop work is the only certain positions in the lineup. Who will play first is problematical as he has Lefty Dugas, Harry Mills, Lloyd Jarvis and Tommy Sipples, all capable of putting up a stellar game at the initial sack. Other infielders include Christy, Normandin, Dabrowski and Faber. For the outfield Jarvis, Sipples, Mills, Dugas, and Lamorey are available. It can be seen that Troland has a collection of ball tossers that can play either the infield or outfield with equal ability. Those that get the assignments will probably be the heavy hitters.

Arrangements have been made to handle a large crowd and the field has been roped off to take care of the crowd. A win on Saturday is what Troland is striving for and he hopes to go to the J. B. Martin diamond on Sunday with the series all even.

ATHLETICS' CHANCES OF PENNANT ALMOST HOPELESS

(By The Associated Press)

Only one more victory for the Yankees is needed and the American league pennant race will be all over but the shouting. By staggering through a double header with the Tigers yesterday, winning both games the Yanks increased their lead over the Athletics to 2 1-2 games with three contests left on the schedule for each team. The A's stayed in the running by nosing out the White Sox.

The only hope for Philadelphia now is to win all of the remaining games while New York drops three in a row to Detroit. Such an unexpected happening would put the Athletics half a game out in front Sunday night. If the Yanks win one more the A's can do no better than trail by the same margin. A tie is impossible because of the one game washed off the Philadelphia schedule.

The standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games Behind
New York	99	52	.656
Philadelphia	96	54	.640	2 1-2

Games to play: New York at Detroit 3. Total 3. Philadelphia at Chicago 2. Total 3, X

X—One game against Boston dropped from schedule.

Arthur Nehf, cast off by the Giants, kept New York from going into a tie with the Cardinals for the National league leadership yesterday by pitching the Cubs to victory in the first game of a double header. By taking the second encounter the Giants kept the Cards from regaining more than the half game they lost in Wednesday's defeat and remained within striking distance of the leaders, one game behind. The Cards played and won one game with the Braves. The loss of one game yesterday put Chicago out of the race mathematically as well as actually. They now are five full games behind the Cards with only three contests left on the schedule and can do nothing more in the pennant race than, possibly, deprive the Giants of their shot at the flag.

The standing of the two contenders:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games Behind
St. Louis	93	58	.616
New York	92	59	.609	1

Games to play: St. Louis at Boston, 2; at New York, 1. Total 3. New York with Chicago, 2; with St. Louis, 1. Total 3.

KOZELUH ADVANCES TO PRO TENNIS SEMI-FINALS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 27—(AP)—Karel Kozeluh, the famous Czechoslovakian star of the world lawn tennis courts, will stand against a trio of Americans as the professionals battle in the semi-final round for the United States single title tomorrow. On the American side stands Harvey Snodgrss and Howard O. Kinney, the Californians, and Vincent Richards, the New Yorker who is playing through in defense of his title.

Kozeluh has come through to the semi-finals with the loss of only four games to opponents. His mastery of control with the racquet as he has moved through the rounds is of the super order.

In his third round encounter with Warren Kruger, the West Side Tennis club po, the European won the first set with six games in a row, the point totals being 35 to 5 without once driving a ball into the net. It is practically a record. He had only 3 outs to 10 for his American opponent in this set, showing his uncanny steadiness. Kozeluh meets Snodgrss who is playing well, in the semi-final tomorrow.

DOANE WINS FEATURE EVENT AT LEXINGTON

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 27—(AP)—Doane, world's champion four-year old trotting gelding, owned by L. S. Hadley of Wilson, N. C., and driven by Cyrus Becker, won the historic Transylvania event today.

The first heat went to Trumpet and the second to the favorite, Dewey McKinney. The Tennessee stake for three-year old pacers went to Col. Strong in straight heats. As a result of the race Col. Strong has an unbroken series of victories in the three-year-old pacing events in which he has started this year.

The Cleveland pacer, Trampsmug, owned by George Tipling, won the 2:10 pacers in straight heats.

BRINGS SUIT BECAUSE OF PROPERTY NEGLECT

Alleged acts of neglect and waste by Alfred H. and Marie P. LaBarre of Taftville on property on which Albert LaBarre holds a mortgage for $10,500, are the basis for a suit for $3,500 damages which he has brought against them in the superior court and which is returnable in October. Papers in the case were filed here Thursday with John H. Walker, clerk of the court.

The plaintiff alleges that the property is being allowed to become out of repair, windows broken and roofs damaged and the property unoccupied so that the security for the mortgage is depreciated.

GOOD PHEASANT SEASON SEEMS TO BE ASSURED

An unusually good pheasant hunting season is anticipated in Connecticut this fall, according to Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game. Over $45,000 of hunters' money paid for hunting licenses last fall has been spent to put into Connecticut's woods over 15,000 pheasants for this year's bag. This is twice the number of such birds put out in 1926, and nearly 7,000 more than were put out last year.

What with a "critical scarcity" of ruffed grouse and federal regulations shortening the season on some other birds this year, hunters have not felt encouraged over the prospects of this fall. But in 1926 it was proven that this state is an excellent breeding ground for pheasants, and all indications are that this bird will be plentiful when the season opens on Oct. 8. Two years ago, when 7,500 birds were put out for breeding, 60 per cent of the hunters reported 15,000 pheasant cock birds killed.

This year the state, through the board of fisheries and game brought under contract these 15,000 pheasants from eighteen breeding farms. Eight of these farms were in Connecticut, the rest in adjoining states, chiefly on Long Island. The season for pheasants closes in this state on Nov. 28.

Grouse Greatly Reduced

The scarcity of ruffed grouse is a matter of the utmost concern to the fish and game officials, however, according to Mr. Titcomb. Vermin, which include birds and animals such as the goshawk, weasel, fox, etc., which prey upon the game birds, and heavy bags in recent seasons have reduced the number of grouse to the danger point, and a recent opinion of the attorney-general decides that neither the governor nor the state board of fisheries and game nor any other state body except the legislature can close the season on grouse, leaving the board helpless to protect the few remaining birds this fall.

In view of this opinion by the attorney general and the easy possibility of exterminating what is left of the Connecticut grouse, Superintendent Titcomb has sent out an urgent appeal to fish and game clubs in this state, calling upon all true sportsmen to voluntarily declare a closed season on grouse this fall. Within a few days, further appeals will be circularized among all game and hunting associations in the state. These organizations and clubs holding hunting rights over large tracts of Connecticut's territory, will be asked not only to declare a voluntary ban for their members, but to post their hunting lands against the shooting of this bird.

Other States Closed

Such posting will help materially, in the opinion of Mr. Titcomb, toward keeping out grouse hunters from neighboring states. Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York have by proclamation declared closed season for grouse this year, so greatly has this bird been reduced in numbers in those states, too. The closed season in those states will naturally send grouse hunters into an open season state—Connecticut, it is expected.

Although posting by game clubs and associations it is hoped will help in protecting the grouse, Mr Titcomb believes the standards of sportsmanship among the hunters of these neighbor states will do far more toward preserving the "last remnants" of this bird, once hunters of Massachusetts, New York, New Hampshire and other states realize the acuteness of the situation here and the "unfortunate" obstacles which prevent legal action to protect the grouse.

Fined In City Court.

George Lavasseur, who does a strong man act, was arrested at the fair grounds Thursday morning on the charge of beating his wife and was fined $10 when presented in the city court.

A charge of driving under the influence was nolled against Antoni Ciccone upon recommendation of Charles W. Cassidy, prosecuting attorney, who stated to the court that he had talked with three police officers and was satisfied they could not prove the charge. Ciccone was on his way in an automobile to his home on Jail hill when the car balked going up Cedar street and rolled back onto the sidewalk. Attorne Thomas J. Kelly appeared for Ciccone who was said to be nervous because of the way the machine acted.

STATE GYPSY MOTH AREA LARGER BY 976 SQ. MILES

Under a revision of the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth quarantine recently announced by the plant quarantine and control administration of the United States department of agriculture, that part of the quarantine dealing with the gypsy moth is modified so that the area designated as "generally infested" with this insect is being enlarged to include 50 towns of Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut, heretofore designated as "lightly infested." The devised quarantine becomes effective Oct. 1, 1928.

In Connecticut there are thus transferred to the generally infested area 976 square miles, including the towns of Suffield, East Granby, Granby, Hartland, Barkhamstead, Canton, Simsbury Bloomfield, Windsor Locks, Windsor, Hartford, Wethersfield, Glastonbury, Colchester, Hebron, Andover, Columbia, Lebanon, Franklin, Bozrah, New London, Groton, Ledyard, Preston, Norwich, Sprague, Lisbon, Griswold, Voluntown, North Stonington and Stonington.

The revision also includes a modification of the regulations governing the interstate movement of Christmas trees and greens. The shipment of these articles in the future will be authorized under inspection and certification when they have originated in the lightly infested area and are transported into the generally infested area for shipment to points outside the territory under regulation.

Ol' Mistah Buzzard Says Good By.

Though to avoid it we may try,
There's sadness when we say good by.
Ol' Mistah Buzzard.

Jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun was just beginning his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. He was just high enough to see over the treetops. On his favorite perch in a tall dead tree in the Green Forest sat Ol' Mistah Buzzard. His great wings were lifted and held out for the air to blow through them and for the warmth of the Jolly Little Sunbeams to get under them. Ol' Mistah Buzzard was facing the south. At least, he had his head turned that way. In his eyes there was a far-away look.

Sammy Jay, happening along that way, noticed that faraway look. "Good morning, Ol' Mistah Buzzard," said Sammy most politely. "You look as if you have something on your mind."

"Good morning Brer Jay, good morning," replied Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "Ah have gone somethin' on mah mind."

"I hope it isn't anything serious," said Sammy.

"Did yo' notice that it was rather cold las' night?" said Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "Ah done sleep po'ly. Yes, suh, Ah done sleep po'ly. Ah reckons Ah done gwine to sleep po'ly from now on unless Ah gets away from here right quick. The fact is, Brer Jay, Ah reckons it's time fo' me to be goin'."

"Going where?" inquired Sammy Jay, pretending not to know.

"Way down in the Sunny South, whar Ah done come from," replied Ol' Mistah Buzzard.

"I suppose yo umean that you are getting ready to leave us for the winter," said Sammy.

"That's it, Brer Jay, that's it," said Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "Ah can't stand cold weather. No, suh, Ah can't stand cold weather.

"Is Mrs. Buzzard going with you?" inquired Sammy.

"She done gone already," replied Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "She started yesterday.

"Why didn't you go with her?" inquired Sammy.

Ol' Mistah Buzzard folded his wings and scratched his ald head thoughtfully. "Ah reckon," said he, "that it's cos' Ah'm jes' nacherly lazy. Then Ah hates to leave mah fren's. But las' night settled it. Ah can't stand Ol' Jack Frost. No, suh, Ah can't stand Ol' Jack Frost. So Ah's gwine to start right away. Will yo' do somethin' fo' me, Brer Jay?"

"Of course I will," replied Sammy. "What is it?"

"Jes' say good by to all mah fren's fo' me," said Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "Ah jes' can't wait to say good by to 'em mahself."

Sammy promised that he would say good by to Ol' Mistah Buzzard's friends. Ol' Mistah Buzzard once more spread his great wings. He shook himself. Then he left his perch and his great wings began beating the air.

"Good by, Brer Jay, good by!" he shouted.

"Good by, Mr. Buzzard, good by!" screamed Sammy. "We'll all be looking for you next spring!"

Ol' Mistah Buzzard continued to flap his great wings and slowly mounted into the air. After he was up a little way he stopped flapping. His great wings were held out without motion, so far as Sammy could see, and Ol' Mistah Buzzard began to sail in a circle. Round and round he went and up and up, and all the time he was moving to the south. Sammy watched him until he was just a speck. "I don't know how he does it," said Sammy. "No, sir, I don't know how he does it. I wish I could sail that way. Well, we'll miss Ol' Mistah Buzzard. I hope nothing happens to him. We certainly would miss him if he didn't return in the spring."

WESTERLY

ELM STREET ROOF FIRE WITH HEAVY WATER DAMAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 27—About 5:30 Thursday afternoon a fire alarm was sounded from Box 34, Elm street near Calvary church, for a blaze upon the roof of the house of Frank G. Ahern, 31 Elm street. The entire Westerly department under Fire Chief George E Egger responded. The fire got a big start under the center of the square tin roof. It sent up clouds of smoke and it became necessary to throw big streams of water from the hydrants by the Ahrens-Fox and Seagraves pumpers upon the roof, thoroughly soaking the house and causing heavy water damage. The fire was gotten under control shortly after 6 p. m.

The Westerly adjournment of the September term of Washington county superior court came in Thursday at 11 a. m. at the Westerly courthouse, with Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner of Providence on the bench. Judge Sumner called the docket and of the 28 cases listed on the Westerly calendar, only eight were marked ready for trial. The remaining 20 cases were passed or otherwise disposed of. Of the eight cases marked ready for trial, three actions at law were tried together Thursday leaving only five more cases on the docket. The following cases are being tried as one: Andrew T. Whaley vs. S. Hinman Bird; John L. Rose vs. S Hinman Bird, alias; William O Whaley vs. S. Hinman Bird, alias.

The following other cases are marked ready for trial: Porter-Loveland Estate vs. The Stedman Press; William E. Cook vs. Louis Foley; Edith M. Barber et al. vs. Thomas H. Barber, guardian; Carrie L. Morris vs. Henry B. Morris; Thomas E. Wilson vs. Hall McLean. The equity case of Ettie Eteiman vs. Stephen Boris was placed at the foot of the calendar.

The cases of Frank A. Toscano vs. John Bispham, and John Bispham vs. Frank A. Toscano have been discontinued. These cases were assigned Thursday to the November session. J. R. Champlin vs. J. G. Pheips Stokes; Edwin D. Vennard vs. Harold Lihme, alias; Laura E. Waterman vs. Sumner Mowry, administrator; J. G. Pheips Stokes vs. J. R. Champlin. The following other cases were passed: J. C. Worth Co. vs. Alfred J. Richard; James Fumigaro vs. Annunziatt Serra, alias; Antonio Spera vs. Benedicitto Cersa; Ralph G. Bliven et al. vs. Antanasio Grasso, alias; Louis Leone vs. Pasquale Watz et al; John Di Santis vs Edward Liotta, alias; Clifton D. Hall vs. A. George Turano; Joseph Pickering vs. J. Edward Stenhouse, alias; Arthur Riberio vs. Edward E. Coggeshall; State, Amos L. Kenyon director of public aid, vs. James Greene; George E. Money, administrator, vs. Thomas H. Barber, executor; Fred T. Baker vs. John R. Armstrong, executor; Robert Rodman vs. George W. Tucker, alias.

The first case taken up as ready resolved itself into the trial of three separate actions. When both sides had agreed, after a conference, to have their cases go on, a jury was empaneled as follows: Carl F. Crandall (foreman) David Ribner, Albert B. Smith, Jr., and John E. Young, Westerly; Oliver J. Roy, South Kingstown; Millard C. Edwards, Alvin J Himes and Alfred Newberry, North Kingstown; Lloyd B. Langworthy, Hopkinton; Harris G. Hillman, Richmond; Byron A. Cole, Charlestown; John R. Champlin, Narragansett. Much of Thursday afternoon was devoted to the testimony of Andrew T. Whaley, the first witness. Other witnesses followed and today (Friday) the cases will go to the jury.

Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross, through its executive secretary, Miss Lucy M. Crowley, has issued an appeal for clothing to be sent to the hurricane devastated regions in Florida and Porto Rico. Thin, light weight garments are needed at once, according to Miss Crowley, who hopes to send a shipment of clothing from here on Saturday.

The benefit show at the United theatre Thursday added a sizeable amount to the relief fund being raised by the Red Cross here. Already the fund is considerably over the $1,000 mark. Checks, which should be made payable to Lewis Stanton, treasurer, may be left at the Red Cross office in the Washington Trust building or at the Westerly branch of the Industrial Trust Co.

Thursday afternoon a whist was held under the auspices of the ways and means committee of Phebe Green Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution of Westerly, at the home of Mrs. George A. Champlin on Elm street. The house was attractively decorated with garden flowers. There were 23 tables in play including four tables of the members of Mystic chapter.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Edward F. Vose

Mrs. Virginia L. Vose died Thursday noon at the private hospital, where she had been a patient for the past three weeks. She had been ill all summer. Mrs. Vose, a native of Baltimore, spent much of her life in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., but during the past few years she had made her home in Westerly with an only daughter, Miss Mary L. Vose. Mrs. Vose was the widow of Edward F. Vose, who is remembered by the older residents of Westerly as a well-known musician of 35 years ago.

Westerly Square and Compass club, No. 176 League of Masonic clubs, Francis G. Haswell, president, held its first club night of the season Thursday evening in the club rooms in the Potter-Loggworthy block. Capt. and former State Senator Abraham P. Datson was chairman of the committee in charge. Chef Alex Mitchell served one of his famous Rhode Island clam chowders. Many new signers were obtained for the club bridge tournament to begin early in October. After the chowder supper, cards, pool, checkers and arguments (possibly political) completed the evening with the serving of punch. Other members of the committee in charge were James H. Blackler, Caleb Mudge, Samuel Counsel and John O. Mills.

Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, Robert Hazard, commander, on Wednesday evening held a special conclave in the commandery asylum when the Temple degree was conferred on a class by the officers, completing the work of the commandery year. The 50th annual conclave will be held Wednesday evening next. Past Commander Eminent Lewis Stanton will preside at the election and installation of the officers, assisted by Past Commander Eminent John Albert Pawson, acting deputy grand warder.

The strong winds of the past few days so roughly treated the large Hoover-Curtis campaign banner strung across Broad street between the Washington Trust and Tragglia blocks that it was necessary to have it taken in Thursday for repairs. This banner when dry weighs some 85 pounds and displays portraits of the republican nominees for this campaign. The banner strung across High street from the Porter-Loveland to the Hinckley-Mitchell block, smaller in size, without the nominee pictures, remains up. The banners have been purchased by the Hoover-Curtis Republican club of Westerly, which has over 500 members.

Sept. 20, Angelo Adinari and wife, Angelina, sold to Nicolo Castignaro lots Nos. 79 and 80, Central Park tract.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

To quote a hackneyed old line: "The melancholy days have come." The fall has fallen upon us, as usual, before a good many of us were ready for it.

Did you ever know a New England farmer who, sooner or later, wasn't sure to remark that he might have a pretty good crop of this, that, or the other, "if the fall stays open long enough"?

The trouble is that it seldom does. It comes whooping over the hills with white frost on its hair and a hint of snow in its breath, just at the time when the corn, say, needs "three-four days" more of warm weather. Or the buckwheat is "almost" ready to cu'. Or the tomatoes and Lima beans have just set their fullest.

Summer visitors who flock to the open lands during July and August are always exuberant in their praise of New England climate. The farmer who lives with that climate twelve months in the year, including fall and winter and spring as well as "the good old summer time," is apt to talk about it from the other corner of his mouth.

What with late spring frosts and early fall frosts cutting into the already too short growing season, with occasional alternations of droughts and drenches in midsummer, with bugs and blights of 'steen varieties assailing his crops, the average New England farmer is not so likely to sing hallelujahs about his climate as he is to mutter anathemas against it.

He is apt to envy his fellow farmers who live on the fertile and easily cultivable prairies of the west, or in the sunny fields of California, or under the semi-tropic heats of Texas or Florida.

He reflects sadly upon his comparative hardships, and wishes he could plow a few acres without having to dodge stones and stumps and underSoil ledges, and plant crops without having to consider frost in every case.

He reads in his paper about the Illinois or Iowa farmers plowing hundred or thousand acre fields with tractors and gang-plows. Then he turns a page and learns how Texas farmers sow their onions in November or December and harvest them in March or April when prices are 'way up and the market howling for more. Or about California orange orchards and melon ranches, ripening their fruits with almost clocklike regularity and certainty. Or about Florida with its strawberries in early spring and its kumquats and its avocados and its grapefruit and its wide-spreading orangeries.

He's apt to envy his fellow toilers who labor under those conditions. He wishes his farm was in Illinois or Texas or California or Florida.

Ye-ah?

And yet he's alive and kicking today, while a score or more of those who dwelt, two weeks ago, in or about prairied Rockford, Ill., are lying under six feet of earth, where even the next tornado can't reach them. His house and barns are, still standing, while there is said to be hardly a structure left in the hundred-mile-wide swath which the tropical hurricane cut across central Florida. And zealous searchers are still busy burying the fifteen hundred or two thousand corpses that the hurricane crushed out of life in its terrific anger.

And there's Porto Rico—that blessed isle of tropic beauty, lying like an emerald gem in a turquoise sea, self-fertilized and enormously productive, where even a minimum of labor brought forth a maximum yield—with two-thirds of its huge sugar haciendas blown into the ocean, with more than two-thirds of its coffee plantations razed and ruined, with its big grapefruit orchards torn up by the roots with a thousand or more soil-tillers dead and at least two or three years required even to restore pre-hurricane conditions—not such an agricultural Eden, after all, you'll admit.

And Texas with its frostless winters and its almost illimitable plains, its teeming soil, its cheap lands, how many a New England farmer has, at one time or another, wished his lot had been cast there instead of in thin-soiled and uncertain Connecticut or New Hampshire! Yet the weather sharps report that no less than seventeen "twisters," each one a killer and a destroyer, have raced across it during the past season.

And southern California, where, according to the railroad advertisements, the days are always warm but never hot and the nights always cool but never cold, where orange groves are as common as chokecherry hedges along New England roadsides, where every prospect pleases and even man refuses to admit that he is vile—I know today at least three farmer neighbors who wish they could sell their hilly farms for enough to carry them to that assumed terrestrial paradise.

Wonder what they'd think, if their wish were granted and they were snugly housed out there, when the next earthquake came along and shook up the landscape as a dog shakes up the young woodchuck he's run down in the pasture?

Now, I'm not in love with farm conditions in New England. They are ungracious, harsh, rigorous, sometimes almost malevolent. Our soil is apt to be thin and poor. Our fields are usually tip-tilted hillsides. Our production is limited by a short and uncertain summer. Also it is confined to a comparatively narrow list of climatic possibilities. It's a hard row we have to hoe, and there's no use denying it.

But

It is often wiser and even more comfortable to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of.

Nor did it ever reduce the heat for any poor fish to flop out of the frying pan into the fire.

We've had, up in my corner of the bishopric, a cold, sour summer. It has rained a good deal more than any farmer I know of desired. The brooks have been high and the fields sodden. But, so far as I hear, no one has been drowned nor have any buildings been washed away. Also, the temperature has been below the average, so that crops have made but a slow and sickly growth. But they've grown to some extent, nevertheless, and, again so far as I hear, no one is in any imminent danger of starving to death, next winter. There have been several thunder storms with high winds. Some trees have broken over and some telephone and electric light poles blown down. And quite a number of us have had our hats blown off our heads.

But we haven't had a Florida hurricane, or a Texas "twisters," of a California earthquake, yet. Our potatoes are showing an unpleasant amount of rot. But there'll be enough to cook, if nothing worse happens. Our corn is badly wind-tangled and hard to cut and stook. But there are ears on it, and the hens will get quite a few calories out of the nubbins next mornings, next January. Our fruit is half or more blown off the trees before ripening. But there are some apples and pears and quinces and plums left and we're going to have apple-sauce and plum conserve, all that is good for us.

On the whole I'm rather glad I wasn't luxuriating in Porto Rico or Florida, the other day, but was ensconced in a sturdy old farm-house on a hilly old farm on the edges of rocky old New England.

When you come to think it over, aren't you able to see the lucky side of it, too?

The truth is that there isn't any perfect paradise anywhere on this imperfect world. There's always a fly in the ointment or a hair in the butter.

Many years ago I knew a couple who, rasped beyond endurance by the roukhness of the Connecticut climate, trekked out to some place in southern California where, according to the boosting residents, the temperature hardly varied twenty degrees the year round, and life was all beer and skittles. In two years they were back. "Yes," they agreed, "the temperature is as even as we were told. But the wind was always blowing and it was laden with fine sand. Nothing we could do would keep that sand out of our houses or our food. We've got tired of eating gritty bread and sanded butter."

Another friend of mine once thought to escape the chilling rigors of a Connecticut March, by going to "sunny, warm" New Orleans. He was back in ten days. "Why," he said, "I never knew before what it was to be cold all the time, with no chance of warming up. The houses down there aren't built to keep out cold, nor have they any adequate heating arrangements. When a chilly spell sets in, all you can do is to put on hat and overcoat and gloves, and sit around and suffer. No more 'sunny south' for me in March."

Probably, if the Connecticut farmer who reads about the big crops his western or southern competitor can grow with little labor should get out and settle among them, he'd find that they had just about as many troubles as he, even if of a somewhat different nature.

He can't grow lettuce and celery in March and strawberries in April, as they can in Florida. But, he's in no immediate danger of being blown in to the Gulf of Mexico in a Caribbean hurricane. He can't raise oranges and lemons and figs in his back yard as they do can in California. By the same token he doesn't have to worry lest an earthquake topple his house about his ears during the night. And as to Texas, I'm reminded of Little Phil Sheridan's comment on the booster's laudations of that empire state of the south, which ended by saying "All Texas needs is water and good society." "Just about the same with hell," remarked Sheridan.

It's often more consolatory as well as more useful to make the best of a bad ob. than to be knocked galley-west by the unexpected back fire of what looks like a good one.

NO-TOBAC USERS HEAR A TALK ON SMELT SEASON

The Aunt Sarah Peabody club, no-tobacco users, held a meeting in their rooms on Cedar street where 50 members came to hear the report for the past six months. President Billie Fitzgerald was in the chair. Secretary Lawrence Sullivan called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. Treasurer Neil Robertson reported $45 in the tin box. Different committees reported and it was voted to have a hockey team. Charles Clark was elected captain, being a last leader on a pair of skates, and knows his onions in hockey. New suits will be sent for from a company in Boston, the color to be green. Champion smelt catcher of the village, Rollin Rathburn, was asked to tell if the smelt season will be the banner year; Champion Rathburn is not a member of the club because he smokes and likes the Old Gold cigarette. Telling about the smelts, he said: "I think it will be a poor season for smelts on account of the banner season last year when fishermen were catching them without bait on the hooks. I have followed the small gamey fish for ten years and never have seen it fail—a good season, and the next one poor. It is something about the fish—they go to another place." He was thanked for his talk by the members and then Steward Gordon Malcolm had a surprise supper waiting for the members, a Blackstone chowder, and marble cake with coffee. It was so good everybody wanted to come again.

Chief Park and Mrs. Park have returned home from a short visit in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Spink and daughter Madeline, left Wednesday morning by automobile for two weeks' vacation in Maine and Canada, where they will visit friends.

Eugene Butson, known as Deer Butson, a fast runner in the fishing village and a member of Bulkeley track team, has bought the power boat Flat Iron, from Capt. Walter Buddington. Deer Butson will haul out the little boat for the winter at a local boat yard and after his school is out in June will get boat Flat Iron in shape and will try the lobster game, so to keep himself in good condition by getting out on the salt water early, before the roosters crow. He claims "That will keep me in condition, hauling the pots and taking a long ride on the water." Deer Butson is out for his fourth track letter. He is the school's best broad jumper with his short and quick jump. Daniel Robertson tried out for track as a runner but found that his wind was short and a fellow needs plenty. Butson was his trainer in the village.

Mrs. John Tourjee has moved her household goods from Riverside avenue to the Barber tenement, on High street.

Mrs. P. Morton of Boston was calling on friends in the village Wednesday.

Dave Doyle is having his house on Elm street renovated and painted.

Thomas MacCarr was helping put barrels of fish on a truck at the town dock, bound for New York, Wednesday afternoon and getting a barrel on the tail board, it slipped and came down suddenly. Thomas jumped but it was too late, the barrel hit his leg a side blow and knocked him down. Several rushed over, thought his leg was broken. But Dr. Jack Lawler of Springfield, Mass., who was putting gasoline in his automobile, came over to see what was the matter and getting out his black grip, bandaged the leg and said, "Stay off the leg for a few days and it will be all right!" A barrel of fish weighs over 100 pounds.

Raymond Rathburn has entered the Providence Wrecking Co., taking up rails.

Allie Crowell is spending a few days in Occum with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Butson have returned from a visit in Woodstock, Conn.

The "egg wizard" is the name given Miss May Norton of the United Dairies, London. She can toss them about as a juggler does billiard balls, but her specialty is passing them in front of a light at the rate of 1,440 an hour. Miss Norton's official title is egg-tester. It is her job to see whether an egg is new laid, fresh, or on the stale side. She does it by a present-day egg candling method, which consists of putting a black metal box with a hole on one end around an electric globe and letting the rays strike through the eggs when held up to the aperture. In response to a challenge by a farmer, Miss Norton once tested 360 eggs in 12 minutes. Since she started she has not had a single break.

Eggs all hitched together in a string like Christmas tree ornaments startled Clifton W. Meservey of Union, Me., when he peered into one of his pullet's nests. There were three eggs joined together and collectively they were nearly five inches long. But the ambitious pullet, in laying her freak eggs, overlooked something. Not one of them had a yolk.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pet away. And it's always ready for the cruelest pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Could Not Eat or Sleep

LYNCHBURG, VA.—"After my baby was born I was completely run-down and couldn't eat a meal a day, sleep or do my housework as I should. My husband bought me a bottle of Lydia E. If anyone wants to find out about the Vegetable Compound just tell them to write to me."—Mrs. J. W. Ore, 1209 Taylor St., Lynchburg, Virginia.

Lights

Where the dark hilltop reaches so high,
See how the lights climb, up to the sky;
And in the river, flowing so deep,
There the lights quiver, vigilance keep.

See them in long rows, over the town,
Marching like soldiers, up and then down,
Into the distance, reaching afar,
Farther and fainter, many lights are.

Lights on the roadway, speeding so fast,
Into your face flash, as they go past;
Lights to direct you, guard you from harm,
Rainbow hued sign lights, blending their charm.

Lights all for dazzle, glitter and show—
Soft lights, a haven where sick souls may go,
Lights in shop windows, buildings so tall—
But there are some lights, better than all!

Worn with the city, lights everywhere,
Spent with the tumult and bustle and glare,
Folding you softly into their rest,
There are the home lights, these lights are best!

STOCK MARKET BROKE SHARPLY AFTER SPIRITED RALLY IN EARLY TRADING

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of trend today, breaking sharply in the last hour after a spirited, but irregularly distributed rally in the early trading. Many of the early gains of 1 to nearly 8 points were substantially cut down, or wiped out, and a number of the high priced industrials and specialties broke 5 to nearly 10 points below yesterday's final quotations. Judged by the average of 26 leading industrials, it was the sharpest decline since July 11.

Fears of a huge increase in federal reserve brokers' loans, which proved to be unfounded, probably inspired the selling movement. The actual figures, published after the close of the market, showed a gain of $54,232,000; bringing the total to $4,524,108,000. Wall street had heard reports that the total would exceed the record of $4,563,240,000 established last June.

A reduction in the call money rate from 6 1-2 to 6 per cent, with loans arranged in the "outside market" as low as 5 1-2, furnished the chief stimulus for the early buying movement. Wall street also derived considerable encouragement from the report that Argentina was shipping $12,500,000 in gold to this country, although the statement that the proceeds would be used to pay off the expiring Argentine government loan were denied by that country's bankers, who said the loan was paid off in the "ordinary course of business." Failure of the Argentine government to renew the loan here was attributed to the high interest rates prevailing in New York.

Rails developed much better selling resistance than the industrials, due to the strong buying support created by the announcement that freight traffic in the week ended Sept. 15 had touched a new high level for the year, and was more than 10,000 cars above the corresponding week a year ago. Texas & Pacific ran up 5 3-4, but retained only 2 points of its gain, and St. Louis Southwestern cancelled its early gain of 4 points. Great Northern preferred advanced 2 3-4 to 101 3-4, closing at the top, and Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred retained all of its 3 1-2 point gain. Jersey Central, Rock Island, Norfolk & Southern and Pere Marquette closed a point or more higher. Delaware & Hudson was one of the few railroad soft spots, breaking from an early high of 200 to 193 1-4, off 4 3-4 net.

Popular industrials were the targets of "bear" attacks in the late selling movement. U. S. Steel common, which had established a new record high at 161 5-8, broke to 157 1-4 and rebounded to 158, off 3-4 net. General Motors dropped from an early high of 215 1-8 to 209 and closed at 210, off 4 5-8 net. Atlantic Refining, Commercial Investment Trust, Curtiss, Greene Cananea Copper, Keith-Albee preferred, Montgomery-Ward, Motor Products, Warner Bros. A and Wright Aeronautical closed 5 to nearly 10 points lower. National Radiator preferred broke 13 points on the omission of the divinded.

New high records were established in the early trading by A. M. Byers, Coty, Gillette Safety Razor, Pressed Steel Car, Johns Manville, Household Products, and Electric Storage Battery.

Time money and commercial paper rates held firm although a large supply of funds was reported to be available in these markets. Higher call money is expected over the month-end.

A slightly firmer undertone in sterling exchange, with cables on London reported at $4.85, and a slight discount on the Canadian dollar were the principal developments in the foreign exchange market.

Most of the commodity markets were higher. Cotton rallied about 32 a bale or buying influenced by reports of colder weather. September wheat advanced more than a cent a bushel and the other options improved fractionally. Coffee quotations dropped 16 to 23 points and sugar prices held steady.

DANIELSON

ICE BOX BANDITS FACE SENTENCE WITH GRIMNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 27—With the grimness that has been characteristic of them since they were first arrested, Albert J. Raymond and Roland G. Lalone today in their cells at the Brooklyn jail appeared to be pondering deeply over the fate that awaits them. As has been the case since the first day of their incarceration at Brooklyn, they remain under heavy special guard day and night, and will so remain until such time, following sentence next Tuesday, as they are removed to the state prison at Wethersfield. It was said today that their transfer from the county jail to the state prison will not be long delayed following sentence.

Persons who were in such close touch with the convicted murderers following the verdict by the jury and subsequently said today that the verdict apparently had no more effect upon them than though they were not in the least concerned with the matter. They are said to have made no comment of any nature relative to their fate.

There was much speculation in Danielson today as to what phase or phases of their deliberations kept the jury out so long a time, but no direct information was available on this point. A popular theory, not substantiated by anything any of the jurors are known to have said, is that some of the twelve men desired to return a verdict of murder in the first degree, which verdict would have resulted in the death penalty for Raymond and Lalone.

The reaction to the verdict in Danielson, where the murdered state officer was stationed for a long time prior to his untimely death, is that justice has been done.

October 2, the Danielson Building and Loan association will pay off another series of its shares—the second series—issued more than twelve years ago. It is already forecasted, and in a number of instances arranged, that some of the holders of these shares will take certificates of deposit in the place of them, these certificates bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, was declared, and that reports showed that the past six months were good ones for the organization.

At the present time the assets of the association is well in excess of $200,000.

Incident to the paying off of the second series of shares a new series—the 27th—will be put out with the coming of October. It will be recalled that the last series of shares issued, back in the spring were more heavily subscribed than any previous issue, 350 being taken.

This afternoon at the home on South Main street funeral services for Mrs. Martha G. Allen, widow of J. Edward Allen, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. The bearers were John G. Shepard, Charles Shepard and Everett Shepard, brothers of Mrs. Allen's and Mortimer Johnson, Frank Johnson and Alonzo Johnson, nephews. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Baseball in Danielson this Sunday. Starts 3 p. m.—adv.

The case of Vitto Bauza of East Killingly was continued in the town court today to October 12. Bauza will face a charge in which it is alleged he stole a set of mowing machine gears.

As suits individual convenience, time pieces that have been on daylight time since last spring will be set back an hour either Saturday night or next Sunday morning.

Again this morning a frost that did damage to growing things was reported from various parts of the town of Killingly.

Next week Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department will take up his new duties as public safety marshal.

Polls will open at 9 a. m. at the town hall building, next Monday for the annual town election. The business meeting will be held in the afternoon.

Again today coal dealers were under pressure to make deliveries of all the orders that came to them for coal, the sudden, early chill weather finding many families without fuel.

Edward Lovely, who has lived at various places in eastern Connecticut, was arrested today by State Officer Donald J. Geddes to answer to a charge that he stole a suit of clothes, a shirt, gold watch and other things that are the property of Emil Gauthier of the town of Plainfield.

Miss Mabel A. Gents of Springfield, Mass., is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

Out of this territory hundreds of bushels of Brussels sprouts are being sent to big city markets these late September days. Growing of this crop has been greatly expanded within the past few years in eastern Windham county, and is said to be producing very satisfactory returns.

Miss Evelyn Miller of Boston has been visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller at Dayville.

Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., who visited here in Danielson a few weeks ago, is again busy with his pastoral duties at Estevan, Sask., and among other things has a big bazaar planned for October.

A feature picture, The Big Parade, drew capacity audiences to the Orpheum theatre this afternoon and evening.

Next Wednesday the Killingly Woman's club will begin the series of meetings that it has arranged for the fall, winter and spring season. The schedule calls for two meetings a month with the exception of December, for which only one is scheduled, and closing with the annual meeting on May day. The meetings will be made notable by addresses by a number of distinguished people and the subjects discussed will deal with education, literature and art, music, service, civics and other matters.

Mrs. Charles Rowe Vickery is to be the speaker next Wednesday at the first of the educational meetings, and her subject will be India. The second October meeting is scheduled for the 17th, and at that time some Portraits and Sketches of Connecticut Women will be presented by Mrs. Arthur W. Loges and Miss Elizabeth R. Woodworth, teachers in the schools of this town. The meetings of the year are to be held in the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church unless otherwise announced.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Delage was held from her home in Moosup with a solemn high mass of requiem at All Hallows church, Rev. Philip Massicotte being the celebrant and Rev. J. H. Quinn and Rev. Harry Chenard deacon and sub-deacon. Burial was in All Hallows cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Morin, Edward Dion, Frederick Bolleau, Aime Bolleau, Andree Coderre and Edward Frechette. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

With the town election out of the way after next Monday, democrats of Killingly will swing at once into the state and national campaign, holding their opening rally here on Thursday evening of next week. A Smith-Robinson dinner at a local hotel will be one of the features of this opening event of the big campaign. Up to this afternoon no announcement of a republican rally had appeared. It will be recalled, however that the republicans of Killingly may not have many rallies this fall, prefering to expend their campaigning energies in enrolling as many new voters as possible and getting them to the polls on election day. It appears a practical certainty, with the heavily increased enrollment in town, that Killingly's vote on November 6, will be the heaviest in the history of Killingly.

From the home in Dayville this morning the funeral of Mrs. Etma D. Mowry was held, with services at the chapel at Grove street cemetery in Putnam, Rev. Albert Abbott of the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church officiating. Burial was in Grove street cemetery. The bearers were Postmaster John J. O'Neill, William P. Moran, Charles Franklin and Fred Bellows. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

Confusion among the selectmen over the signing of a warning for a special town meeting was given today as the reason why the meeting has not been called. The petitioners, 66 in number, desired the meeting to be held tonight. The purpose of calling it was to see whether the town would authorise some outside accountant to audit the books of the town and to make an appropriation of $2,000 therefor. It was said today that such a meeting likely will be petitioned for again after the annual town meeting.

PUTNAM

ICE BOX BANDITS TO GET SENTENCE IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 27.—Putnam will see Roland G. Lalone and Albert J. Raymond, Worcester youths, known throughout New England as the "Ice Box" bandits and alleged slayers of State Policeman Irving H. Nelson of Pomfret on the night of April 6, last, receive their sentence in the superior court rom at Putnam on next Tuesday, October 2, when the court convenes.

In Putnam today nearly every reader learned of the verdict returned by the jury in Willimantic Wednesday evening.

From the appearances in Putnam today, the little court room where judgment is to be passed will be jammed several hours before the court is called to order on next Tuesday morning.

Together with the passing of sentence, the court will hold a naturalization session at which several aliens who have already taken out their last papers that will make them citizens of the nation.

The offering of a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of vandals destroying signs the property of the Putnam chamber of commerce has been offered by the directors of the chamber to any person furnishing information that will bring about the apprehension of those causing the damage.

During the past few months signs erected on the highway between the cities and towns leading into Putnam have been destroyed, most presumably by the flinging of stones against them. In one instance is the "welcome" sign south of Mechanicsville through which a rock has been thrown, wiping out all the reading material and leaving just the frame. The police were successful in catching three culprits who destroyed the advertising boards of a Putnam hotel and the result was they were fined in a Woodstock justice court, yet the acts of vandalism did not stop at this action and such signs in the north and south highways continued to be destroyed.

A considerable change in the delivery of morning mail relative to the railroad has come about on the Norwich line, much to the satisfaction of the Putnam merchants and banking houses who have suffered throughout the summer season due to the late arrival of the morning train. The chamber of commerce at a recent meeting voted to take the matter up with the mail and railroad officials, but the improvement of the past week has tended to have the matter dropped at the present to await further developments.

The last half holiday for the clerks in the retail houses came to a close this afternoon. During the summer and up until early fall each Thursday at noon, the stores of the city closed their doors and allowed the employes the remainder of the day at leisure. The year was considered by the chamber of commerce as a successful one and indications are that the weekly half holiday will be again observed next year.

The hunting season will on most game officially open on October 1, being next Monday. During the past week, many of the hunters have appeared to Town Clerk H. N. Benoit and filed application for their licenses which will permit them to spend their days in the field in quest of game. Clerk Benoit stated today that the annual early season swamp for licenses has not been in evidence yet, due to the state issuing the combination angling and hunting license, which is a "bargain" for "he" men who enjoy the both forms of outdoor sport. With the opening of the season the game patrol will be increased and the deputy wardens in this vicinity will be on the watch for the hunters who take more than a day's allotment of game and for those who go farther and shoot the game that are hunted out of season.

According to a "story" in a local paper today word has come that Miss Hazel Ware, a well known dancing instructor, with classes in Putnam, was married in Worcester last Friday to Warren M. Cramwell, also of Worcester. Miss Ware is well known in this city and has made many friends in Putnam during the past number of years that she has practiced her profession.

A remarkable improvement is being brought about at St. Mary's church through the erecting of two additional exits in the front of the church. The work on the north side has already been accomplished through the efforts of Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the large parish, and now the contractors are devoting their interests to the work of the second door. An entry way, consisting of brick construction, is being built at either side, and two large memorial windows are also being installed. The windows bear the following inscription. "In Memory of Rev. Charles P. Bedard, Pastor." Father Bellerose, successor to the late pastor, has arranged to have the wording read in the two languages, French and English.

When completed the exits will be beneficial to the emptying of the church at the masses on Sunday, saving time and eliminating a great fire hazard that previously existed when the church was filled to capacity.

The case of Morris Fisher vs. Samuel Knunin, stated to have been heard in police court this morning was announced by Judge Geissler as settled out of court. Fisher entered a complaint and brought Knunin's arrest about after the defendant had struck him in the eye. The case Fisher alleges grew out of a family argument, in which he (Knunin) attempted to settle.

Her classmates attended the funeral in a body. The floral remembrances were beautiful. When she was graduated from Broadway school she was one to deliver an essay. There was a real frost here Tuesday morning, Sept. 25, grass and roofs even, being white and the mercury around 32 degrees. In some farms on the hills, however, little harm resulted.

Mrs. John P. McCrea who has been with her brother, Dr. George N. Lawson and family in Middle Haddam, since she returned from her school in Alabama, came to Union this week. Doctor Lawson has been seriously ill for a long time and he and his family have the sympathy of many friends here.

PENDLETON HILL

The first frost is reported Tuesday morning. On top of damage done by last week's wind and rain, the beautiful Hill gardens are seriously threatened.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Thompson have one of the finest displays of flowers on the Hill. Mexican sage and cadna in quantities are now in full bloom.

There was a magnificent display of flowers at the Hill church Sunday morning. Five dozen prize dahlias from the gardens of Jess Stinson of Mystic were the gift of Mr. Stinson to Mrs. Clifford Thompson who decorated the church with them and later divided them among various flower loving friends. In addition, Miss Cecile Palmer furnished from her gardens as many astors, noticeable among them were a large bouquet of the Heart of France, and another bouquet of equal size of Wawn Favorites. Another large bouquet from Miss Palmer's gardens consisted of white and golden bronze dahlias and another vase of huge red dahlias adorned the organ. Mrs. Charles Cotrell furnished beautiful baskets of zinnias and mixed flowers. The front of the church was literally banked with choice products of the gardens.

The No. Stonington Fair was well attended by hill people. The principal event was an address by the National Grange, lecturer, Farmer by name. During the address he presented eight basic points for which grangers should work.

Potatoes raised by the school children who received two pounds of seed in the spring was an interesting feature of the exhibit. It is said that one boy in an adjoining town raised one hundred twelve pounds from two pounds of seed.

Carrol Maipp of Clarks Falls had an exhibit consisting of thirty-one different kinds of vegetables of his own raising. A most commendable exhibit on the part of the fifteen-year-old boy. He won for himself and younger brother who had been a most able assistant a prize of five dollars.

Mrs. Edgar O. Silver and her sisters, Miss Dora Maine and Mrs. Bessie Maine Whitman, accompanied by Mrs. Reuben Cook and Ernest Gray, called on Hill friends Sunday afternoon.

HANOVER

Sprague League of Women Voters has made out a very attractive program for their meetings during the year. They will be held alternately between Baltic and Hanover. The first one of the season was held in the visiting nurse's room in the Town hall at Baltic Monday evening, the president, Mrs. William G. Park, presiding.

Mr. and Mrs. Junius Root and Miss Mary Papineau were called to Burlington, Vt., recently to attend the funeral of an uncle.

Miss Mary Burgoyne of South Coventry has been making a visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Reed.

Hanover visiters at the Springfield Fair last week included Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison, Jr., Oswold Mereroft, Frank Still, Edwin Tinkham, Henry Smith and William Pacquette.

Miss Jane Deering of Norwich has been making a visit at the home of her uncle, Alvin Waters and aunt, Miss Katherine Waters.

Friends of Miss Jennie G. Benney of Norwich Town were glad to welcome her in the audience at the Congregational church recently. She occupied in the Lee pew.

The food sale held at the Parish House last Friday afternoon under direction of Miss Caroline Gallup was well patronized and the Guild of the Congregational church realized a neat sum therefrom. Wednesday of this week a social gathering was held under its auspices at the same place with the same result, and an entertainment is planned next week.

Miss Gertrude Ladd left Monday for New York to resume her studies at Columbia university. Sunday morning she drove to Walpole, Mass., taking with her her sister, Mrs. John Robish and Miss Ruth Lee. They reached there in time to attend the service in the United church, of which Rev. Roderick MacLeod, a former pastor at Hanover is now the minister.

Mrs. Fred. Lebourveau drove to Keene, N. H., Friday, returning Monday. She took with her her mother Mrs. Julia Moffatt for a visit at the home of a niece who resides there, also Mrs. Frank Crombie and Mrs. Helen Wilkins and daughter of Norwich who were thus enabled to call upon relatives and friends in the vicinity.

Theodore Bamford is the first to bring one of the new model Fords into Hanover.

Miss Dorothy Thornes is in the toy department with the Cranston company at Norwich.

ARMISTICE COMMITTEE SURE OF 3,000 IN PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27—The general committee for the Armistice day celebration in New London Nov. 12, met this evening with Gen. Morris B. Payne, chairman, in the municipal building and canvassed the arrangements so far perfected or contemplated. General Payne outlined what had been done and what it is proposed to do. It is certain that the procession will be made up of more than 3,000 men in uniform and that number will be augmented by civilian organizations. The 11th of November falls on Sunday, and on that day the clergy of the city, in their sermons will refer to the signing of the armistice. On the day following, Monday, the whole city will join in the observance of the anniversary, a legal holiday in Connecticut. The whole state will be represented, as there is to be no celebration elsewhere in the state except at Manchester on that day. New London and Norwich have a sort of working agreement which provides that when either city is making a demonstration the other will assist, or refrain from, demonstrating. The governor and his Foot Guards, the Putnam Phalanx of Hartford, the New Haven Grays, and other organizations of similar character will be the guests of the city and every American Legion post in the state will be represented. Col. Henry S. Dorsey of New London will be the marshal of the day, appointed by the chairman, General Payne. The admiral in command at the Submarine base will provide every man who can be spared and the commandant of the coast guard will do likewise. The National Guard and the marine corps will be in the line and the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans, with Veterans of Foreign Wars and Spanish War Veterans. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will also march, with fraternal and patriotic organizations. Some 500 Shriners and Knights Templar will join the column of marchers. There will be a banquet and dance at the Mohican hotel in the evening and other entertainment will be provided, perhaps including block dances.

A report of the finance committee was presented with an estimate that $3,000 would be necessary for the citizens to raise to defray the expense of the plans contemplated. The visitors will be entertained at the theatres and at the state armory. General Payne laid stress on the fact that the committee should be zealous in entertaining distinguished military and civilian guests and a committee to have charge of that duty will be selected. Col. Thomas Troland explained what had been done to secure the presence of citizens in general and the fraternal organizations. He said the committee had been unable to insure the presence of a battleship here, but was assured that the commandants at the Submarine base and of the coast guard will lend their assistance to provide such vessels as are at their command. Some 5,000 buttons have been ordered and badges are to be provided for guests of the city.

Dr. Bettles, 159 State street, Lena building, complained to the police this afternoon that the markers on his car had been stolen from the Young's parking garage on Water street. His machine, a Ford coupe, has been there for several days getting a paint job and when he went up to look over the work being done this morning, he discovered the tags missing. The markers bore the Connecticut numbers H-114-538.

A telegram was received by the local police this afternoon from the Providence authorities that Hubert L. Canada was wanted badly by the latter officials. When last heard of in the Rhode Island city he was headed for New London and it was thought that he might be seeking a night boat from here to New York. The fugitive is 33, six feet one inch in height and has a sore on his right cheek. When last seen he was wearing white striped overalls, blue shirt, light soft felt hat and a blue coat. The reason the Providence police are searching for him was not disclosed in the telegram.

YACHT CLUB PROPOSED BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27—As a means of encouraging yachting activities in this port, the New London chamber of commerce is considering the feasibility of organizing a local yacht club. Backers of the proposed project argued at a meeting held today, that such an organization would secure an increased boating industry for the city as well as being an inducement for more yachtsmen to visit the local harbor. Should a recognized club be formed here it would mean that shipyards would be started and all-year employment would be furnished a large number. At the meeting of the directors of the board of the chamber of commerce, Joseph R. Kennedy was elected to the secretaryship of that body, to fill the unexpired term of Elmer H. Shumacher, deceased. Two new names for membership were brought in by Thornton N. M. Lathrop, reporting for the membership committee. R. B. Chappell, director, was appointed chairman of the committee to take charge of Fire Prevention week, to be nationally observed beginning Oct. 1. During the week a general inspection of business houses of the city will be made and the usual material for fire protection will be displayed.

At the meeting of the Rotary club today at the Hotel Mohican, a strong plea for the rights of the Negro citizens of the country was made by Samuel A. Allin, executive secretary of the Boston Urban league. He brought out the idea that should leeway be given the Negro in communities a more equitable general development would result.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Thomas Meighan scored another triumph last night at the Palace theatre in his role of Captain McQuigg in "The Racket," a picture of the underworld. The picture was produced by Caddo Productions and released by Paramount, and will serve to boost the favorite actor's stock by many points, with his innumerable movie fans.

"The Racket" is one of the most powerful stories ever filmed which has to do with the modern underworld that manifests itself in the larger cities. The story, or rather the play, was written by a newspaperman, Bartlett Cormack, who used materia. gained from his own observations and experiences. The picture version of the play of the same name, adheres strictly to the original plot, only elaborating in places where the picturization could be best served, such as the mob scene.

The supporting cast could almost be termed all star. Marie Prevost, herself a movie stellar light of no dim proportions, has the leading feminine role; Louis Wolheim, he of the broken nose; Lee Moran, Skeets Gallagher, John Darrow and many other well known character actors all add to the brilliant performance.

There have been many underworld movies made recently, some of which were outstanding, but "The Racket" will always stand out as one of the best pictures made of this character. It should be seen by all means. The main plot is centered around the feud of Captain McQuigg and Nick Scarsi, portrayed by Mr. Meighan and Mr. Wolheim respectively. Wolheim continually escapes prosecution, due to his connections with political forces, despite the energy expended by Thomas Meighan to land him behind the bars. How he finally wins out over the underworld crowd, is enacted in the most interesting manner, in which Mr. Meighan's performance, along with the others, will be remembered for some time to come.

Broadway Theatre

Rich in romance and action and with John Barrymore giving the finest performance of his illustrious screen career, "Tempest," a spectacular picture having as its background imperial and revolutionary Russia, last night opened at the Broadway theatre. Judging from the reception accorded Barrymore's new United Artists film, it will challenge all attendance and popularity records at the Broadway.

"Tempest" is crammed with action, not to mention plenty of humor, from the opening of the story, when the star is a peasant officer plunged into the gay life of pre-war Russia, to the final scenes, when he rescues a princess, his sweetheart, from bloodthirsty hordes and escapes with her to a new life of happiness.

The story is original, the direction by Sam Taylor nothing short of brilliant, and the work of the large supporting cast exceptional. Lavish settings and marvelous photography have their share in making Barrymore's vehicle a 100 per cent example of screen entertainment.

Those who like romance will revel in the love scenes played by the star and his beautiful leading lady, Camilla Horn, a blond who makes her American debut in "Tempest." Previously she was a European star, and her convincing portrayal of the princess opposite Barrymore stamps her as one of the year's outstanding finds.

Barrymore himself never had a more powerful role than the one in "Tempest." As peasant soldier, dashing officer, lover, prisoner and revolutionary he imbues his characterization with the fire and sincerity of his unrivaled histrionic ability.

Among the other players are Louis Wolheim, George Fawcett, Ulrich Haupt, Boris de Fas and Lena Malena.

W. T. Grant Co., Willimantic

The W. T. Grant Co. store, one of the great chain of 200 stores, will participate in a national promotion of Amoskeag Week starting Saturday, Sept. 29. Amoskeag Week, which will bring to shoppers rare values, is planned to introduce to merchandising what is probably the first attempt at a "vertical co-operation" of loom, manufacturer and retailer.

Back of this unique sales promotion is the idea of definitely proving that Grant merchandise, although sold in chain stores, is dependable in quality and workmanship.

Close co-operation with the Amoskeag Mills, a New England concern, and with makers of ready-to-wear merchandise sold at Grant stores, has resulted in practically every department of the Grant stores being represented in this event.

The mills turned over their products at the order of the Grant organization to manufacturers. These manufacturers in turn made up the goods into merchandise according to Grant specifications. The merchandise was sent direct to Grant stores. Costs all the way through this cooperation were controlled, the idea being to bring well made garments of Amoskeag products to the Grant customers at economy prices. The Willimantic store will enter the week on an extensive scale. From the special window trimmings, which will be part of an Amoskeag Week contest among Grant stores, to the counters brimming with unusual bargains and economy buying opportunities, this new departure in merchandising will be noted at the store.

Breed Theatre

Maintaining the standard of previous pictures, especially those which have won him such a tremendous following in the short time of two years, Ken Maynard has made another winner, "The Upland Rider," his latest First National western feature which opens today at the Breed theatre.

The rise from a star circus rider to that of a world famous motion picture star, all in the short space of two years, is indeed a feat, and this has been brought about by a combination of excellent stories, acting and direction. "The Upland Rider" is another example of that type of entertainment. It is replete with action, daredevil stunts, and spectacular horsemanship and the type of thrills that will have the audience gasping and applauding.

This is an original story by Marion Jackson written especially for Ken. It tells of two rival ranches in the southwest which raise horses for the world market. One of the ranches raises and sells reliable and tough cowponies, known throughout the country for their success and stamina. The other endeavors to replace these with an Arabian strain of ponies, whose beauty surpasses the cowpony but not in intelligence and stamina. The question is finally settled by a cross-country race that is by far the most daring and spectacular stunt that has ever been shown on the screen.

The races on the card for this (Friday) afternoon include a 2.20 pace, purse $1,000, a 2.27 pace, purse $500 and a 2.22 pace, purse $500.

Five horses are listed to start in the 2.20 class, a dozen in the 2.27 pace and 11 in the 2.22 event.

Vaudeville Events

Between the race heats a high class vaudeville programme was given on the large stage, Swahn's band providing the accompaniment for the artists. The feature events on the programme, the high dive by Dare Devil Oliver, and the diving horse, were unavoidably delayed, one by the strong wind and the other because of the fact that there was considerable difficulty encountered in filling the large tank with water. A small pipe line and lack of pressure made the filling of the tank into which the horse dove a slow process. It is expected that this difficulty will be overcome today (Friday).

The first act was staged by Le Vasseur, introduced as the world's strongest man. His feats included the breaking of an eight inch spike, with his bare hands, the breaking of a chain, lifting a dozen men who stood on a table, with his back and a pulling contest in which he held two teams of two horses each, pulling in opposite directions at the same time.

Leo and May Jackson were seen in a wheel act that made a decided hit with the audience. They performed fancy and trick riding on bicycles.

The Four Trumpeters, who proved a big attraction in the midway, were heard in several finely rendered selections given from the vaudeville stage and Slivers the clown staged a comedy juggling act.

Dare Devil Oliver, the high diver, intended to make his plunge from the 125 foot ladder about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The act was announced and Oliver climbed to the top of the high ladder, where he stood for a time, uncertain whether or not to attempt the plunge. There was a stiff wind blowing, making the drop at that time most hazardous, as the slightest deviation in his downward plunge to the 13 foot steel tank containing but 5 feet of water, might have meant death for the plucky performer. Waiting in vain for a lull in the wind, Oliver finally gave up the attempt and climbed down from the dizzy height. About 5.45 o'clock, however, the wind had died down considerably and back up to the top of the perpendicular ladder went Oliver. A minute or two later, he dropped, making a complete somersault in the air and landing gracefully in the tank of chilly water.

The other feature act, the Carver diving horse, was also late in getting underway, because of the difficulty encountered in filling the specially constructed tank. Efforts to get the tank filled in order that the horse could make its dive betwen 4 and 4.30 o'clock were unavailing, because of the small stream and low pressure, and it was not until within a few minutes of six o'clock before there was sufficient water in the tank. Most of the crowd remained to see this act.

The horse, a beautiful white animal, extremely intelligent, was led to the foot of the steep runway leading to the platform. The rider, an attractive girl in a bathing suit, had preceded the horse to the platform. Quickly climbing the steep incline the horse stopped at the edge of the platform while the girl rider mounted. Then without a word from anyone, dove from the platform, landing with a splash in the tank, 50 feet below. This event with the high dive by Oliver were among the most spectacular ever seen on the grounds.

The same programme was repeated at the night show, starting at 9 o'clock and a beautiful display of fireworks brought the evening to a close.

BAKERY AT TAFTVILLE DAMAGED BY FIRE

The bakery of Joseph MarcAurelle on Bolduc Lane, Taftville, was completely gutted by fire of unknown origin late Thursday evening. The work of the Taftville fire department under the able direction of Chief Louis Paquette saved the building from complete destruction. The fire which apparently started in the cellar ate its way up through the flooring about the ovens and the entire interior wood work was charged. Assistance from Norwich was summoned and the Greeneville company with Deputy Chief Taft responded to the appeal for help. The firemen were handicapped by low water pressure, otherwise the blaze would have been extinguished with little damage being done.

12 BANDITS KIDNAP PORTER; GET OVER $10,000 IN CASH

Abduction Was Perpetrated at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, New York—Porter Was Taking Mail Pouch From a Train to Guards at Lower Level of the Station—Kidnaped Negro Was Found With Arms Handcuffed Around a Trunk at Englewood Cliffs, Across the Hudson River From New York City.

RAHWAY, N. J., Sept. 28—(AP)—Twelve men kidnaped a Negro porter, five feet tall, at the Pennsylvania railroad station here today and escaped with a mail pouch estimated to contain $10,000 to $30,000 in cash and securities after leaving their victim handcuffed to a tree about 25 miles from Rahway.

Joseph Van Cline, the porter, who weighs about 125 pounds, was taking the pouch from a train to guards at the lower level of the station, when one of the men shoved a revolver against him and escorted him into one of three limousines in the street.

The bandits, with their prisoner, drove off in the cars so quickly and quietly that no one noticed what was happening until one of the speeding cars nearly collided with another in the getaway. This aroused the suspicions of a bystander who told a policeman.

Van Cline was found with his arms handcuffed around a trunk at Englewood Cliffs, across the Hudson river from New York city. He was detained for questioning by the police.

The money was shipped by the New York Federal Reserve bank to two banks in Rahway.

NO ACTION YET ABOUT COOLIDGE AUTO ACCIDENT

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 28—(AP)—With police and county officials non-committal, the status of John Coolidge, who yesterday drove Gov. John H. Trumbull's sedan into a second machine, sending two persons to a hospital, remained uncertain tonight.

As a result of the crash, Wilfred Veno, professional hockey player, and Mrs. Mary Veno, his mother, were injured. Mrs. Veno suffered bruises and was badly shaken up, while Veno received scalp injuries and is in a serious but not dangerous condition.

Today, Deputy Coroner James J. Corrigan refused to state whether or not he would or had already taken action in the case but it is known that Policeman Henry Miller, who investigated the crash, was called to the coroner's office yesterday afternoon and that Joseph Candee, photographer for the state's attorney's office, was ordered to take pictures of the machines involved in the collision.

Corrigan also declared that he was unable to say whether young Coolidge was driving the governor's car when it crashed with Veno's machine but the accident report filed in the fifth police precinct by Policeman Miller describes John as the driver of "vehicle number two" and the explanation of the accident is that "vehicle number two struck vehicle number one" at a street intersection.

At the general offices of the New Haven road it was said that young Coolidge was out of town all day yesterday on railroad business after he had reported for work directly after the crash, but he is known to have visited the hospital.

HOOVER TO SPEAK IN MADISON SQ. GARDEN, OCT. 13

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28— (AP) — Herbert Hoover will speak in New York city, the home town of his democratic opponent, on Oct. 13 instead of Oct. 17, the change of dates being made so that he could obtain Madison Square Garden with its quadruple seating capacity over Carnegie hall.

The change was made today after Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the eastern campaign advisory committee, had reported that the advance demand for tickets for the New York speech was so great that the Carnegie hall would not afford sufficient space to accommodate the crowd.

At the Hoover headquarters it was said that the 5,000 odd seats in Carnegie hall would have been filled with Hoover workers from the various precincts in Greater New York and for that reason the decision was made to hold the meeting in the new Madison Square Garden which has a seating capacity of approximately 20,000 and is one of the largest halls in the country.

The meeting probably will start at 8 o'clock, eastern standard time.

MARY AKELEY, MYSTIC, INHERITS $31,176 ESTATE

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—Carl E. Akeley, explorer and big game hunter who died Nov. 17, 1926, in the jungles of the Belgian Congo, left a net estate of $31,176, a transfer tax appraisal revealed today. The entire estate goes to the widow, Mary Akeley, of Mystic, Conn., the explorer's second wife, who accompanied him on his last expedition.

Referring to his first wife, Delia Y. Akeley, from whom he was divorced in 1923, Akeley wrote in his will:

"This will is made with full purpose and intent that none of my estate shall be taken or received by my wife, Delia Y. Akeley, who deserted me in July, 1918, after having received as a settlement and provision for the future all the property I then possessed."

YALE FRESHMAN KILLED BY FALL FROM WINDOW

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 28—(AP)—Edward Lee Randolph, 19, of Pleasantville, N. Y., a freshman in Yale college, who fell from a dormitory window to his death today, was regarded by class officers as one of the promising youths among those who had come to Yale. He formerly lived in East Cleveland, Ohio, was an honor student in East High school and winner of the Cleveland Alumni Yale scholarship.

Randolph probably was not fully awake when, in rising after his alarm clock had made him spring out of bed and mistaking a window for a door leading into a lavatory, opened it and, losing his balance, fell to the ground five stories below. Campus Officer Hugh Gilday found the student unconscious and had him sent to the hospital where death came a few minutes after admittance.

DISTRESS IN FLORIDA IS ON THE INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28— (AP) — Reports which have reached President Coolidge recently from Florida are to the effect that the distress arising from the recent hurricane is on the increase, necessitating a further appeal from him to the country to aid the Red Cross relief funds.

MIMIC HOLD-UP STAGED BY POLICE CHIEFS ASSOCIATION

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 28—(AP)—Elected first vice president of the New England Association of Police Chiefs, Supt. Charles A. Wheeler, this city, was also appointed tonight as chairman of the committee for the formulation of plans for the training of policemen of the New England states along the lines being followed in New York state.

The selection of the committee on police training, which is composed of Superintendent Wheeler, Chief Fred Coon, of Woonsocket, R. I., and Chief John L. Sullivan, of Pittsfield, was the last official action of the New England police chiefs' convention, and preceded the demonstration of the pursuit and capture of bandits equipped with chemicals by the use of them.

Following adjournment of the convention shortly after noon the chiefs gathered at the old Calhoun farm house, Madison avenue and Burnsford avenue, to witness the spectacle of bank bandits being apprehended by police who were supplied with smoke and gas bomb equipment.

Fully 1,000 people gathered in the vicinity of the farm house for the event. The bandits' car, containing Patrolmen Joseph Meaney, Luke Clancy, John O'Connell and Thomas Mullane, of the Bridgeport police department, sped up Madison avenue, behind a smoke screen they had laid down to offset the pursuers, and the bandits sought refuge in the deserted farm house.

The police car in pursuit, containing Patrolmen James Coleman, Albert Grosshart, Thomas Donnelly and Thomas Gaffin, accompanied by Motorcycle Officers William Fink and William Hennessey, of Bridgeport and Sergeant Amos Anderson, the "lone wolf" of Darien, pursued them and surrounded the house.

Under cover of a smoke screen the officers were able to approach the hiding place of the bandits and fire into the house by means of revolvers and tear gas bombs. It was not long before the white flag was waved and the bandits staggered out to be captured and carted away in stretchers.

So realistic was the battle that those present do not know yet whether some of the policemen were faking or were really overcome by the tear gas.

The demonstration was staged under the direction of Sergeant Robert Grandfield, of the night patrol, and Lieut. Colonel B. C. Goss, of the U. S. A., Cleveland, Ohio, who had delivered the concluding address of the convention on "chemical warfare and peacetime applications."

BUSINESS ACTIVITY IN NEW ENGLAND SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

BOSTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Business activity in New England in August showed some improvement over July, although the rate was lower than a year ago, due to the depression of textile industries, the federal reserve bank of Boston reported in its monthly review today.

"While New England industries are fairly well diversified and are being even more so," the report said, "it cannot be denied that the influence of the condition in cotton textiles on general business at this time is considerable. Only total building, employment and department store sales, aside from cotton and woolen textiles, were lower in August than in the same month a year ago, whereas increases have been taking place in check payments, car loadings, electric power production, sales of new motor cars, residential building, silk mill activity and shoe production.

"The textiles, although on a much lower plane than a year ago, showed some improvement in August as compared with July. Cotton consumed by New England mills and the production of fine cotton fabrics were larger, after seasonable adjustment, than in the preceding month."

AUSTRALIAN DOCK WORKERS CONTINUE TO BE RIOTOUS

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 28—(AP)—The government tonight was hastening recruiting of volunteer constables as the result of a series of acts of violence connected with the strike of the waterside workers.

Homes of stevedore foremen have been bombed and the police have been forced to use their batons to prevent crowds of strikers from forcing their way into bureaus opened to recruit labor for the docks. No one was injured by the bombs but considerable property damage was done.

Premier Butler of South Australia has declared that the issue is mob rule or constitutional government and has called for citizens to enroll as special constables. The government today announced that a force of 2,000 is expected to be in readiness by Saturday night to protect the volunteer cargo handlers. The South Australian cabinet has proclaimed a state crisis.

The front room of the home of a foreman at Mill Park was wrecked by a bomb today which also damaged another room in which two children were sleeping. One child was injured by falling plaster. A hole was blown in the roof of another house at South Melbourne, but no one was injured.

Every Policeman In Phila. Transferred

Mayor Mackey Has Ordered the Most Drastic Reorganization in the History of the City.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28—(AP)—In an effort to eliminate alleged police corruption as revealed in the grand jury investigation of bootleggers and their "rackets," Mayor Harry A. Mackey tonight issued the most drastic police reorganization order in the history of Philadelphia, directing the transfer of every policeman in the city.

More than 4,500 men, from patrolmen to captains, will be affected by the shakeup. Secrecy will surround the making of transfers, the mayor emphasizing that "no captain, officer or patrolman is to have the slightest information of his ultimate destination."

Before the wholesale transfers are made the captain in each of the 48 districts in the city was ordered to file a report giving in detail the "true" conditions in his precinct. The order calling for this report will be read at roll call tomorrow and the captains will be given until Monday to submit their reports.

The captain's reports will be filed with the mayor. Then the shakeup will begin. New police will be sent into each district with orders to check up on the men they supplanted.

New district commanders will be given a week to report on conditions as they find them. Their findings will be checked against the reports previously submitted. The same will hold good for their subordinates and on the checkup will depend the future of all the men.

Captains or any other members of the force found to have been covering up vice, crime, bootlegging and graft will be suspended forthwith and the mayor indicated that he would prefer charges against every district commander if necessary to rehabilitate the force.

WOULD CHANGE AMENDMENT TO THE COMPENSATION ACT

HARTFORD, Sept. 28—(AP)—An appeal to the state legislature to change the amendment to the compensation act which requires, among other things, that in hernia cases the employe shall prove that inability to work immediately followed the accident which later caused the hernia, the employe could not recover compensation. The majority opinion, written by Associate Justice John W. Banks, dismisses the appeal of Thomas O'Brien, a Hartford carpenter, who claimed compensation for a hernia injury from his employer, Wise & Upson Co., Inc., and its insurer, the Maryland Casualty Co.

The majority opinion, concurred in by Associate Justices Maltbie, Haines and Hinman, sounds the death knell to more than 50 similar hernia cases throughout the state, which had been held up by lawyers on behalf of claimants, pending the supreme court's decision in this important test case.

$5,000 REWARD POSTED FOR CAPTURE OF CARNES

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 28—(AP)—Chief of Detectives Lamara L. Poole announced tonight he had been advised by police of Winnipeg, Canada, that Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer of the Home Mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, had been taken into custody there.

The message received by Chief Poole read:

"Have C. S. Carnes held here. Admits identity. Wire instructions. Signed, C. H. Newton, chief constable."

Chief Poole wired Canadian authorities to hold the man, and advised them of the $5,000 reward posted for his capture. Poole said he would rush photographs and fingerprints in order to be certain of his identity and would not send officers to return him to Atlanta until he was sure the man was Carnes.

Carnes whose accounts officers of the board have announced show shortages of approximately $1,000,000, disappeared from his home here Aug. 15 after telling relatives and business associates he was going to Raleigh, N. C., on a business trip.

Two indictments charging embezzlement, one charging misappropriation of $50,000 and the other $88,000, have been returned against Carnes by the county grand jury.

While the search for him was in progress, the prison record of C. S. Carnes was disclosed. Records of the Atlanta federal penitentiary showed that C. S. Carnes had served a sentence of 13 months beginning in 1916 for misuse of the mails. Another record of C. S. Carnes having served a five months prison term was unearthed at Clinton, Mo.

Bertillion experts who checked Carnes' measurements against those at the penitentiary here said they were identical.

Carnes had served the Home Mission board for nearly ten years.

During the investigation of his private affairs after the shortage was discovered his activities in financing the moving picture aspirations of two young women became known.

The Last Town Crier Passes.

Not so long ago the newspapers made quite a feature of the passing of the last town crier. In colonial times the town crier was a public institution. That's the way they got the news.

Today we turn to the newspapers for our news—and to the advertising columns for news of merchandise, and advertising is as indispensable as the news, for advertising is news.

Advertising is the news of the moment just as surely as the latest press despatch. It tells us what and when and where to purchase to save money, and time and energy. It touches our daily lives in a thousand ways—it affects the health of our children, the happiness of our families and our own well being.

Read the advertisements in The Bulletin. They are vitally important to you and yours. They are your loyal friends and advisers.

U. S. REJECTS THE FRANCO-BRITISH NAVAL AGREEMENT

Objection is Based on the Contention That It Would Restrict Only Types of Ships "Peculiarly Suited to the Needs of the United States"—Has No Objection to Any Agreement Between France and Great Britain Which Those Countries Think Will Be to Their Advantage—Note Sent to Great Britain and France Was Marked Throughout by Sharpness and Indicated Irritation in Washington Over the Franco-British Procedure.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—A blunt and critical rejection of the Franco-British naval agreement has been transmitted to London and Paris by the United States government.

"The government of the United States feels that no useful purpose would be served by accepting as a basis of discussion the Franco-British proposal," an American identic note to the two powers, made public tonight by the state department, said.

"The American government has no objection to any agreement between France and Great Britain which those countries think will be to their advantage and in the interest of limitation of armaments, but naturally cannot consent that such an agreement should be applied to the United States."

Specifically the American objection to the Franco-British accord was based on the contention that it would restrict only types of ships "peculiarly suited to the needs of the United States," and leave unlimited combat ships of greatest value to any nation having widely distributed fueling bases or great merchant marine tonnage.

The note was marked throughout by a sharpness in tone and frankness in stating the American viewpoint that plainly indicated irritation in Washington over the Franco-British procedure. It also disclosed textually the vital part of the Franco-British agreement which London and Paris, up to this time, had declined to make public.

After recalling that the Franco-British understanding was based on a proposal to submit the agreement to the next meeting of the preparatory commission for the disarmament conference as a basis for considering further naval limitation, the American note expressed willingness to "submit certain suggestions" as summarized in the British note. "From the communication of the British government," the American reply continues, "it appears that:

Limitations to Determine

"'The limitations which the disarmament conference will have to determine will deal with four classes of men-of-war:

"'(1)—Capital ships, i. e., ships of over ten thousand tons or with guns of more than eight-inch calibre. (Copy of British note).

"'(2)—Aircraft carriers of over 10,000 tons.

"'(3)—Surface vessels of or below 10,000 tons armed with guns of more than six-inch and up to eight-inch calibre. (Copy of British note).

"'(4) — Ocean-going submarines over 600 tons'"

The first categories of ships, capital ships and aircraft carriers over ten thousand tons were dismissed by the American note as already regulated by the Washington treaty. That would leave the Franco-British proposal, it declared, as restricting only types of cruisers "peculiarly suited to the needs of the United States," a distinction between types of surface combat craft "the United States cannot accept."

"It is further clearly apparent that limitation of this type only would add enormously to the comparative offensive power of a nation possessing a large merchant tonnage on which preparation may be made in times of peace for mounting six-inch guns," the note added

At another point in commenting on the proposed Class Three cruiser restriction, the American note declared that "it could not be claimed" that smaller cruisers would be left unlimited "are not highly efficient fighting ships." "No one would deny," it continued, "that modern cruisers armed with six-inch guns, or destroyers similarly armed, have a very high offensive value, especially to any nation possessing well distributed bases in various parts of the world. In fact, such cruisers constitute the largest number of fighting ships now existing in the world."

Three Power Conference Recalled

The note recalled that at the three power conference last year in Geneva, called by President Coolidge, the British delegation proposed division of cruisers into two classes for purposes of limitation, of those carrying eight-inch guns and those carrying six-inch guns. The British project then contemplated rigid limitation of eight-inch gun ships but provisions for larger tonnage in small cruisers.

"The limitation proposed by the British delegation on this small class of cruisers was so high that the American delegation considered it in effect, no limitation at all," the note said. "This same proposal is now presented in a new and even more objectionable form which still limits large cruisers which are suitable to American needs but frankly places no limitation whatever on cruisers carrying guns of six inches or less in calibre. This proposal is obviously incompatible with the American position at the three power conference. It is even more unacceptable than the proposal put forward by the British delegation at that conference not only because it disregards altogether the principle of limitation as applied to important combatant types of vessels."

The note said that much the same holds true as to the Franco-British proposal for submarine limitation, the American government being unable to accept a distinction which would limit underwater boats of over 600 tons and leave unlimited all below that type.

"Six hundred-ton submarines are formidable combat vessels," the note continued. "They carry the same torpedoes as are carried by larger submarines and are of equal destructive force within the radius of their operation. They can also be armed with guns of five-inch calibre.

Would Abolish the Submarine

"The United States would gladly in conjunction with all the nations of the world, abolish the submarine altogether. If, however, submarines are to be continued as instruments of naval warfare, it is the belief of the American government that they should be limited to a reasonable tonnage or number."

The note declared the American petition that attempts to further limit construction of war vessels "should include all combatant vessels, submarines as well as surface vessels." It added that the United States "had earnestly and consistently advocated real reduction and limitation of naval armament" and would be happy to continue efforts towards finding acceptable methods.

"But it cannot consent," the note continued, "to proposals to leave the door wide open to unlimited building of certain types of ships of a highly efficient combatant value and would impose restrictions only on types peculiarly suited to American needs."

"The American government seeks no special advantage on the sea, but clearly cannot permit itself to be placed in a position of manifest disadvantage. The American government feels, furthermore, that the terms of the Franco-British agreement, in leaving unlimited so large a tonnage and so many types of vessels would actually defeat the primary object of any disarmament conference for the reduction or the limitation of armament, in that it would not eliminate competition in naval armament and would not effect economy."

Original Proposals Reviewed

The note then reviewed the original proposals made by the American delegation to the Washington naval conference of 1921, which brought about limitation of all classes of combatant craft of over ten thousand tons. It pointed out that the United States then made sacrifices in naval building plans and "in the actual destruction of ships already built" to achieve that end. The American original proposal, added, contemplated a total cruiser tonnage limitation of 250,000 to 300,000 tons for the United States and Great Britain, and 150,000 to 180,000 for Japan, with similar rigid reduction of destroyer strength and curtailment of submarines to a basis of 60,000 to 90,000 tons for the United States and Great Britain and 36,000 to 54,000 for Japan. At that time, it said, the American delegation invited any power which desired even greater reduction in these tonnages to present its views with the assurances that they would be welcome to the American government.

In conclusion, the note expressed American willingness to continue efforts to obtain a basis for further naval limitation, satisfactory not only to these three powers, but to all naval powers, "including those not represented in the three power conference at Geneva."

AMAZING STUNT FLYING OVER PORTLAND AIRPORT

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 28—(AP)—Racing, aerial acrobatics, bomb dropping and balloon breaking, performed by 50 airplanes of all types, provided the thrills for the opening session of the two-day dedication of the Portland airport at Scarborough field today.

The greatest thrill of the day came from three marines, Lieuts. L. H. Sanderson, W. C. Brice and Master Technical Sergt. B. F. Belcher, who performed some amazing stunt flying over the field in their Curtiss Hawks, after leading an aerial parade over the city earlier in the day.

Kiddy Barrows, of the Hartford, Conn., airport, who never flys without his monkey mascot, won the bomb dropping contest by dropping three missiles at an average distance of 17 feet from the center of the 50-foot circle.

P. H. Spencer, of Hartford, piloted his Thomas-Morse sport plane over the 15-mile course in 5 minutes, 57 1-2 seconds to win the OX-5 open cockpit race. In the race for Wright J-6 engine open planes, Crocker Snow, of Boston, won over the same course in 7 minutes, 22 1-2 seconds, in a Stearman.

A parachute jumper, Eric Lindgren, from Curtiss field, N. Y., was dragged 20 feet by a high wind after he had landed from a jump of 1,500 feet. He was uninjured.

A telegram expressing regret at not being able to attend the dedication was received from Edward P. Warner, assistant secretary of the navy, for aviation.

RECORD VOTE EXPECTED IN WINDHAM MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 28—Politicians who figured on an 11th hour localizing of election interest today are expecting that the town elections next Monday will bring a record vote for Windham. In arriving at this conclusion they point to the great interest in the state and national elections and the fact that the town voters will turn out in numbers next Monday so that the votes will create a form of barometer of what Windham will do when state and national candidates are presented. Another factor for a large vote is the fact that about 600 new voters will join the procession to the polls. This brings the total voting list of the town to 6,866. The presence of considerable new timber on both tickets will also react favorably toward a large vote as several of these candidates are men who have been on previous tickets, in most instances for offices other than those sought this year. The tickets call for entirely new boards of assessors and relief, this being due to the fact that this is the first biennial election, permission to change from annual to biannial having been granted the town at the last session of legislature. The change in the chronology also affects the school board to a considerable extent. For the coming elections each party has three candidates for the school committee, five of whom will be elected.

The big contest, as previously stated, centers about the office of the town clerk, with Lewye G. Gerry, who has served one term as a member of the board of assessors, competing for the office against Frank P. Fenton, democrat, incumbent of the office for 18 years and on nearly every occasion receiving the endorsement of the republicans. Mr. Gerry has had experience as a town clerk in Sanford, Me., and since coming here in 1917 has been identified as a diligent worker for the republican party. Captain Fenton is known through Connecticut. At present he is candidate for lieutenant-governor on the state democratic ticket in the November elections and was minority leader of the house in 1925, having been a member of the general assembly from Windham for two sessions.

The full tickets follow: Republican—Assessors, George E. Gifford, Frank C. Smith; board of relief, John H. Wilcox, Cyril A. Lamoureux; selectmen, Ernest P. Chesbro, C. Arthur Keeney; town clerk and treasurer, Lewye G. Gerry; agent of town deposit fund, George H. Spencer; auditor, Charles J Dondero; collector of taxes, Lester H. Blish; registrar of voters, A. Linn Weatherhead; town school committee, Christopher C. Case, Charles H. Backus, H. Clinton Lathrop constables, Wilbur G. Stevens, Alfred P. Abbe, Ralph J. Lussier and James G. Larkham.

Democrat—Assessors, Alexis Caisse, M Eugene Lincoln; board of relief, Charles H. Palmer, J. O. Blanchette; selectmen, William A. Buck, Jeremiah Healy; town clerk and treasurer, Frank P. Fenton; agent town deposit fund, no nomination; auditor, John M. Bransfield; collector of taxes, Conrad E. Dubeau; registrar of voters, Thomas A. Shea; town school committee, Dr. W. P. S. Keating, L. Leo Thompson, Robert O. Snow; constables, William D. Kelley, Wilfrid A. Blanchette, James W. Simpson and Thomas Marra.

George E. Gifford and Frank C. Smith, republican candidates for assessors, were members of the board last year. Alexis Caisse, democratic candidate, served two terms as alderman-at-large and was member of the board of city assessors for two terms in years past. M. Eugene Lincoln, the second candidate, served one term as town clerk, was member of the borough board of burgesses for two terms, assessor one term, tax collector of the borough two terms and held several other offices of trust. Both candidates for selectmen have had previous experience in that office. Ernest P. Chesbro, republican, is now completing his sixth year in office as first selectman, having served on the board in 1915-'16-'17 and 1926-'27-'28. He also represented the town in the general assembly and was a member of the board of burgesses in 1892 and a councilman when the city was incorporated in 1893. C. Arthur Keeney, candidate for second selectman on the republican ticket, has served two years in that office. William A. Buck, democratic candidate for first selectman, has served two terms as alderman-at-large and held various other town and city offices. Jeremiah Healy, his running mate, is present minority member of the board, having served for two years.

The fight for the position of tax collector is expected to be one of the major activities of the elections. Lester H. Blish, republican candidate, seeks re-election and points to his record of the past two years as a guarantee of what he will do in the future. He previously served as town auditor for three years and has been a deputy sheriff of Windham county for the past three years. His opponent Conrad E. Dubeau, democratic, has yet to hold a political office but he has the strong backing of his party.

The Windham democrats, working under the leadership of Valentine L. Murphy, chairman of the town committee, are working on plans to cut down the republican majority in the 1927 election of 434 and are optimistic of the outcome of the coming contest. The G. O. P. headquarters, through Mayor Charles A. Gates, predict "The bigger the vote the greater the G. O. P. majority." Last year a total vote of 3,100 was cast, about one-half of the number of voters on the list. In the event of good weather conditions it is hoped by party leaders to bring out 4,500 voters Monday. Fleets of automobiles will be used in this work.

The polling places will be in the customary places and the polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m., with the voting done by machines.

The annual meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union was held in the Y. M. C. A. this afternoon. Besides her husband she leaves eight children, all of Branford; her mother, Mrs. Jennie Birbarie; two brothers, Frederick of Bridgeport and George of Haselton, Pa., and three sisters, Elsie and Emily of Bridgeport and Mrs. William A. Haddad of this city. With her parents she came to this city from Mt. Lebanon, Syria at an early age and attended the Natchaug grammar school and the First Congregational church and Sunday school.

Rev. David P. Gaines, pastor of the First Baptist church of Waterbury, delivered an excellent sermon-address on Our Contribution to the Church, at the annual roll call of the First Baptist church held Thursday evening in charge of the pastor, Rev. David W. Lovett. A supper was served by the Ladies' Aid society with covers laid for over 200 members and friends.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 28—The report of Town Tax Collector Lester H. Blish, but recently filed with the board of selectmen, shows that 93 1-2 per cent of the total amount collectable on the 1927 tax levy has been collected, thus establishing what is believed to be a new record for collections made by that office. But one-half per cent of the personal property assessments have been collected. The tax collector has paid to the town treasurer a total of $249,669.20, representing the amount collected on the 1927 levy and income from following other sources: Amounts on back taxes of the 1918, 1924, 1925 and 1926 levies; cash on hand, assessors' errors and exemptions on 1927 levy; liens by statute. STATE'S ROAD PAVING HITTING NEW RECORD

During the past summer the Connecticut highway department has had under construction a greater road mileage than at any time during its 33 years of existence, according to a statemen made today by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. At the midway point of the summer paving season July 1, there were 185 miles of Connecticut highway either being paved or being prepared for paving, a total which exceeds by nearly 50 miles the average summer's work.

The road building work laid out for the past summer, in addition to being the department's largest program, included the reconstruction of some of the state's most important arteries of traffic, among them being the practical completion of the Boston Post road from the New York state line at Portchester to the Rhode Island state line at Stonington; the laying of several important stretches of road on Route Two between Hartford and New Haven through Meriden; and putting the finishing touches on the new road over Southington mountain.

Another important piece of highway engineering in process this summer was the building of a new road between Danbury and New Milford, one of the most largely used highways in the northwestern section of the state. The reconstruction of the State street road between New Haven and North Haven an optional portion of the New Haven to Hartford route was another of the more important projects.

Of the concrete paving, the largest single stretch placed in the hands of one contractor was the laying of about seven miles of paving on the road from Canaan to Salisbury and extending from Salisbury toward Great Barrington, one of the most important routes into Massachusetts, upper New York state and Canada. In North Haven and North Branford on the Middletown-New Haven highway 28,875 feet of concrete were laid this summer, while 31,777 feet of concrete were built through Woodbridge to Seymour, one of the many routes connecting Waterbury and New Haven. Nearly five miles of concrete were laid on the Plymouth Hill route between Thomaston and Plainville, establishing a greatly improved artery to link Torrington and Winsted and the western part of the state with the cities in the central area.

Other important concrete jobs consisted of 20,755 feet on the Bantam road in Litchfield; 28,977 feet between Glastonbury and Portland along the east bank of the Connecticut river, 34,856 feet between West Hartford and Avon; 28,602 feet on the Boston Post road through East Lyme, Old Lyme and Waterford; 21,267 feet on the Portland-East Hampton road; and 20,739 feet on the Waterbury and Middlebury road

Five important sections of waterbound and bituminous macadam were also in process during the summer. Between Bethel and Redding 21,636 feet were built on the New Fairfield-Sherman road, another route out of Dabury to the northwestern sector of Connecticut and into New York and Massachusetts. In Ashford 31,799 feet of macadam were laid on the Warrenville-Phoenixville road; 31,000 feet on the Bloomfield-Tariffville-Granby route, and 32,360 feet through Windsor Locks.

This work, most of which will undoubtedly be completed before the close of the year, finishes the highway department's program for 1928 with the exception of a few short stretches of state aid road which are likely to be taken care of in addition.

DANIELSON

REPUBLICAN SELECTMEN GIVE VERSION OF CONTROVERSY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 28—Selectmen John A. Gilbert and Napoleon P. Gingras, republican members of the Killingly board came right back today with a version different from that of First Selectmen A. D. Sayles, democrat, as to why a special town meeting desired for this week had not been called. Mr. Sayles' version of the slip-up was given local publicity yesterday.

Mr. Gilbert is agreed that he opposed calling a special town meeting less than a week ahead of the annual town meeting. The special meeting, petitioned for by 66 electors, was desired to see whether the town would authorize an audit of the town's books by some "outside" accountant, and to see if the town would appropriate $2,000 therefor. Mr. Gilbert felt that it was a matter that could have been arranged to be considered at the annual meeting, had the petition been received in time, and that it would hardly seem good business to put the town to the expense of calling a special town meeting at this time.

Selectman Gingras said today that he signed the call for the meeting Friday afternoon, Sept. 21, at 4 p. m., in the presence of Town Clerk Frank T. Preston. As Mr. Sayles already had signed there was ample time to publish a legal notice of the meeting in last Saturday's Bulletin, and give it heavy circulation here, also meeting the five days' notice requirement, as the proposed meeting was to have been held on Sept. 27. This was not done, however.

Meanwhile, the petition for the special town meeting was not available at the office of the selectmen when the representative of this paper asked to see it this morning. It was said that it has been taken from the office, though now part of the official records of the town.

However, a request to inspect the record of the selectmen's meeting of last Wednesday, Sept. 26, was granted, and the folowing is a copy of it as officially entered, and it is interesting as to discussion of the proposed special town meeting:

"While the selectmen were in meeting as recorded of September 17th, 1928, on page 220, a petition signed by Frank J. Gorman and sixty-five other legal voters of Killingly was received, asking that the selectmen call a special town meeting for Thursday, September 27, at 7 o'clock p. m. standard time: "To see if the town will vote to authorize the employment of outside accountants to audit the books and accounts of said town and to appropriate the sum of $2,000 dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the expense thereof."

To this proposal for a special town meeting, only four days before the annual town meeting, Mr. Gilbert declined to sign at any time; Mr. Sayles expressed himself as being "neutral"; and Mr. Gingras wished for further time in which to consider.

On the 19th September, 1928, copy for the printer's notice of special meeting was prepared in selectmen's office, and Mr. Sayles signed one copy and took same with him; the other copy was left on desk in office, and was signed in the presence of Town Clerk Frank T. Preston, at about 4 o'clock p. m. September 21 1928,—as attested to by Mr. Preston on back of notice.

From some misunderstanding as between Mr. Sayles and Gingras, concerning a further conference between these men upon the matter, the meeting was not advertised as required by statute.

On Wednesday, September 26th, 1928, Mr. Sayles asked clerk in selectmen's office for the petition calling the special town meeting, and Mr. Dean delivered the petition into the custody of Mr. Sayles. This occurred at 10:45 a. m. morning,—just after Mr. Elmer Wood left the office on the occasion of Mr. Wood's presentation of his bill for the 1928 audit.

Attest, John A. Gilbert,
Clerk.

Both Messrs Gilbert and Gingras desired today that their version of the matter be given to the public. Meanwhile, it would appear that there are other dis-harmonies in the board. It was asserted today that Selectman Sayles during the current week ordered the placing of road oil on the East Killingly road, without a vote of the board and that the oil was delivered and spread by a Providence concern. Following that up Messrs Gilbert and Gingras held a selectmen's meeting, with Mr. Sayles absent, and voted to oil a stretch of highway running out of Elmville from near the Killingly Worsted mill, and this oil was being spread today.

This all becomes of special interest to the people of Killingly on the eve of the annual town election next Monday.

At the home in Brooklyn at 9:30 this morning funeral services for William Henry Bishop, former United States consul in Italy, were conducted by Rev. Richard D. Hatch and Rev. J. Rees Jones. Following the service, with motor cortege, the body was taken to East Haven for burial. The bearers were M. J. Frink, S. Irving Frink, Clare Hill, Elbra Baker. Among the many beautiful floral tributes was a wreath from Yale university, where Professor Bishop formerly was an instructor in modern languages and another from the New Haven Institute of Arts and Letters, of which he was a graduate. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. At East Haven there was present at the burial service a delegation of the members of the faculty of Yale university.

Cars owned by Raymond Saucier of this town and Bertram Leuonson of Brighton, Mass., were in collision at 7 o'clock this morning in South Main street opposite the Keystone block and near the junction of South Main and Water streets.

Saucier was tarveling south in South Main when the Leuonson car swung out of Water into South Main, striking the rear of the Saucier car. In the accident the Leuoson car tore off the left front wheel and mounted the sidewalk. The rear end of the Saucier car also was damaged. Chief John McFarland investigat the affair and found Leunson and Saucier agreeable to adjusting the damage between themselves.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Elmville funeral services for Henry H. Harris were conducted by Rev. Albert Abbott of the Danielson Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in the High street cemetery at Dayville. The bearers were Sidney H. Perry, George O. Thomas, Harold Holehouse and Earle F. Winslow. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

There are 63 pupils from other towns enrolled at Killingly high school this year. Of these 47 come from Brooklyn, as against 34 enrolled from that town at the high school last year; 10 are from Foster, R. I., as against 12 from that town in 1927, 2 are from Pomfret and 4 from Sterling. All of these are tuition paying pupils and representative of towns that do not maintain high schools.

Tonight the body of Joseph Lindley, who died at Norwich, was brought to Danielson. Mr. Lindley, who was 74 years of age, was the father of Mrs. Joseph Birch of the West Side. He was a native of Lancashire, England, but had been a resident of this country for about 25 years, spending them between residences in Danielson and New Bedford. In addition to his daughter, Mrs. Birch, Mr. Lindley leaves a brother, Charles, and a sister, Mrs. Martha Wooler, both resident in New Bedford, and two other brothers who are in England.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the church in North Foster, funeral services for Mrs. Mary Boucher of East Killingly were conducted by Rev. H. W. Gaylord of Danielson. During the service Mrs. Harris Hammond, Mrs. Silas Spink and Elmer Ellsworth sang Abide With Me and Safe In the Arms of Jesus. The bearers were Harris Hammond, Elmer Ellsworth, W. F. Young, Walter Simmonds, Harry Perkins and Silas Spink. Burial was the Hopkins-Stone cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of arrangements.

A death in North Sterling today was that of Clifford H. Crossman. Mr. Crossmas was born in North Sterling June 21, 1861, the son of Nathan H. and Mary Griffin Crossman. He was a farmer by occupation. Mr. Crossman leaves a daughter, Miss Hazel A., a son, Henry E., and two sisters, Mrs. Henry Plice and Mrs. Makin.

To the voters of the town of Killingly. My attention has been called to certain statements that have been circulated regarding my candidacy for the office of first selectman, to the effect that it is my intention to resign if elected. This is a deliberate misstatement and if elected I shall endeavor to fill the office to the best of my ability. I am in this campaign to stay, and I solicit your votes. Permit me to urge all republicans to vote a straight republican ticket. Charles A. Tillinghast. —Adv.

PUTNAM

WEBSTER MAN ONLY ONE TO LAY CLAIM TO REWARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 28—Now that the trial of Albert J. Raymond and Roland G. Lalone "Ice Box" bandits and convicted slayers of State Policeman Irving H. Nelson of Danielson barracks is ended, there again arises the question as to whom is justly entitled to the $1,000 reward offered by Governor John H. Trumbull, shortly after the murder of the officer had been committed, to any person giving information that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the slayers of the officer.

To the knowledge of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, only one man has made application for the claim of the reward. Thomas L. Martin of Webster, a member of the police department of that city, who in his affidavits claims he traced out and forwarded to the police officials of Webster information that led to the arrest of the bandits in Worcester.

In an interview State's Attorney Howard Bradford explained that Martin had made the proper claim for the reward and had received a letter of notification from Governor Trumbull.

It will be remembered that the arrest of the two slayers was brought about through the alertness of Motorcycle Officer Raymond P. Gallagher of the traffic bureau of the Springfield police department, whom Lalone and Raymond attempted to kill while in the effort to evade arrest on the evening of April 6. Gallagher learned that the car in which the bandits had ridden had been abandoned in Dudley on the evening of April 6. On Saturday he went to Webster where he identified the car as the one from which bullets had been directed at him on the previous evening when he attempted to apprehend the car and its occupants. On the following Monday Officer Gallagher went to the Worcester criminal bureau of the police department and identified a picture of Lalone. Later he was asked to pick Lalone from a group of men and he exclaimed, "Why you've got them both," and he immediately distinguished Lalone and Raymond from the suspects presented, branding them as the "Ice Box" bandits.

Gallagher's wor kwas performed several hours before Martin had succeeded in tracing out the route taken by the men from Webster into Worcester, which he later forwarded to the state.

Harold Lester of Willimantic, the boy at the gasoline station who furnished valuable information that led to the conviction of the youths most presumably will be a leading contender for the reward, although he has made no claim for it.

A meeting of several representatives of the state will be held before any of the claimants are given their share of the reward, it was thought today. No information as to when such meeting will be held could be obtained in Putnam today.

W. L. LIGHT MAY LOSE SIGHT OF ONE EYE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 28—Walter L. Light of Pomfret street, this city will probably suffer the loss of his right eye, as the result of being in an automobile collision with a horse drawn vehicle, the property of Gilbert Shippee of Putnam Heights, this noon at the intersection of Walnut and School streets. Light was operating a Rhode Island registered car and was proceeding north on School street, when the horse and team driven by Shippee, who had his wife as a passenger, came out of Walnut street. Light crashed into the horse, injuring it somewhat and inflicting damage to the team and throwing its occupants from the seat to the sidewalk. Neither Mr. or Mrs. Shippee were injured as the result of the fall. When Light's car struck the team, the windshield broke and glass flew into the face of the operator, rendering a severe gash in the eye and several cuts about the face that bled freely. Light was rushed to the Day Kimball hospital by a witness of the collision and was treated for the injury to his eye. Early this afternoon he was discharged from the institution with information that he would probably lose the sight of his injured eye.

The accident was investigated by Police Sergeant George Liard of the Putnam police. Sergt. Liard held that Light is free from all blame, as the intersection is blind and it was impossible for a driver to be aware of any approaching vehicle coming from the side street. The investigation also showed that Light has used necessary tactics in his attempt to avoid striking Mr. Shippee's horse. The car was the property of James McCormick of Pascoag, R. I.

From the office of the Windham County Farmers' association in Putnam today came the announcement that the annual agricultural and homemaking institute programme of the county members would this year be held in the Ekonk grange hall in Sterling on October 4. The programme as arranged will commence at 10:30 a. m. This year there will be a joint programme arranged for the men and women members, containing topics pertaining to both classes. Several state wide agriculturists have been engaged to speak, among them being County Agent Raymond W. Wing of Putnam, who has assisted with the arranging of the programme. The addresses will prove most interesting to every attendant and all interested are urged to attend.

The church bazaar night, was held Thursday evening in the newly renovated basement of St. Mary's church and was attended by several hundred members of the parish as well as by numerous others. The fete was planned and carried out by Rev. Father U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church assisted by Fathers Casey and Boileau, curates at the church and by committee's from the various church societies. The evening was successful and a substantial sum was netted, which will be devoted to the financing of the newly constructed exits in the front of St. Mary's church.

Saturday October 6, will mark the closing of the textile department of the state trade school at Putnam, according to information received today from Director H. H. Ellis of the institution. The reason offered for the discontinuing of this branch of learning was lack of interest on the part of the newly entering students, who had chosen the other crafts offered at the large school of manual learning.

The textile department is one of the original departments inaugurated when the school was established several years ago. Until recently it has proved to be one of the most successful departments. A general slump in the textile conditions in the north might possibly be given as a major factor why the youths have not considered entering into the department.

The department will be supplanted with another branch of trade and many rumors as what trade will replace it have been circulated yet none have been confirmed by Mr. Ellis, who said that the state board of education will decide that feature.

The faculty and teaching staff of the Putnam Evening school, which will open on Monday evening, October 1st, was announced this afternoon by Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin. Miss Emma J. Dutton, for several years a member of the faculty of the Israel Putnam school has been chosen as principal and teacher of Americanization. Mrs. William J. Jarvis, has been appointed head of the commercial department and will instruct in bookkeeping, supplanting Mrs. Minnie Gannon Macdonald, who supervised this work last year, but resigned this year to take a position on the town school committee. Mrs. Jarvis is a graduate of Putnam high school. Miss Louise Drude, of North Grosvenordale, has been appointed as instructor of typing and shorthand. Miss Drude is also a high school graduate and has had previous teaching experience.

Attorney Irving H. Miron of this city was in Willimantic today on business.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin announced today that the state board of education is planning to hold a meeting in Putnam on October 15th, at 8 o'clock at Putnam high school, where they will hear reports of the commission appointed for the revision and codification o fthe school laws. Another school note from the superintendent received today was one that referred to a demonstration of teaching reading in the lower grades of schools by a representative of the Newson company, which will be held at the Israel Putnam school on October 27.

WHY ROOT IS FOR HOOVER

While men of prominence are declaring their preference in the present campaign and are giving their reasons therefore it is interesting to note whether their decision is based solely upon the way the candidate leans concerning one question or whether consideration is given to the equipment of the man to handle all the problems that will arise and to the general effect of the candidacies upon this country and its prosperity.

Elihu Root is a republican leader of national prominence, a former secretary of state and a man in whom New York, as well as the country, has much confidence. Mr. Root doesn't find himself in agreement with Mr. Hoover in regard to prohibition but he does not throw Mr. Hoover into the discard because of it.

To Chairman Work of the republican national committee he expresses himself as follows: "I intend to vote for Mr. Hoover although I do not agree with his views about prohibition.

"I think the country will come to a more intelligent way of dealing with that subject than is contained in the present laws, but that will probably be a slow process, and in the meantime the task of carrying on our free government, with all its many difficulties and dangers, must be performed by us. We need the very best man possible to be the head of that business.

"Among all the men available for that place I think Mr. Hoover far the most competent. His clearness of thought, his proved depth of human sympathy, his quality of complete devotion to whatever task he undertakes, his long executive training, his wide experience in large affairs, his practical knowledge of national administration—all these make his election seem to me an exceptional opportunity for the good of the country."

Mr. Root gives consideration to other than the prohibition question. He has his own views in regard to that, he has confidence that it will eventually be handled right, but in the meantime he sees the need of such a master hand at the helm of the ship of state as Herbert Hoover. Mr. Root hasn't allowed himself to be swept off his feet or to allow the wet question to eclipse everything else. His judgment will be that of huge numbers of thoughtful men and women.

THE TAX ON COAL

Because of the strong opposition that has been displayed from the beginning against the anthracite tax in Pennsylvania, there will be much interest in the efforts which are now being made in that state for the removal of that tax.

When Pennsylvania imposed that tax it placed an additional burden on the coal users of New England. It was a tax that aroused much resentment. It was a tax which did much to turn people to substitutes for anthracite for it came when the price was high and when the consumer was willing to do most anything to escape the clutches of the coal situation, with high prices, shortages of fuel because of strikes and special taxation.

It has been evident to the coal industry of Pennsylvania that other fuel was being used. It has recognized the falling off in business and it is not surprising that the hard coal men attribute part of the antagonism to the state tax on coal. This is shown by the petition which has been submitted to Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania urging the repeal of the tax.

It is estimated that this tax will put $5,500,000 in the treasury of that state. Such a revenue is helpful. It means that either the state is getting a reduced tax as the result of it or else there is being provided for the commonwealth certain funds which could not otherwise be had. Once established there is a reluctance on the part of the state to give up such an income. It doesn't like the idea of abandoning the work that is done with it or of imposing a larger tax to make up for it. At the same time the anthracite men regard it as decidedly detrimental to their business but as yet have been unable to obtain a repeal.

That tax was the straw that broke the back of many coal users, not only in New England but in the midwest. It will not be possible, even with repeal, to bring back those consumers to coal if the tax is removed, but it would be possible to further reduce the price of coal and thereby keep the present consumers from turning to those substitutes which come from other states than Pennsylvania. There is always a chance to have a good effect through a reduction in the price of coal.

BETTER OUTLOOK

Just what the outlook is that is regarded as so favorable that it may not be necessary for President Coolidge to act under the Watson-Parker law for the adjustment of the situation existing between the railroads and their employes in the west. Nevertheless it is to be hoped that it is so and that an agreement can be reached without resort to further deliberations.

The federal board of mediation has been endeavoring to bring about an agreement as the result of the demands of the 70,000 railroad employes. It was a question of wages and as the result of its work it was possible for the board to announce that a basis for agreement had been reached between the officers of the railroads and the officers of the unions. That gave hopeful prospects of an amicable settlement until it was set forth by the board that in spite of that understanding the ratification of it by the employes was not forthcoming. The men had voted to strike but the officers had held them in check although in view of the strike vote they had not been able to have their action in dealing with the railroad officials approved.

Evidently new influences have been brought to bear, or the men have recognized the undesirability of refusing the guidance of their officers and having the whole matter placed before a board that would be named by the president. Such a board would have 30 days in which to hear the case and for a similar period thereafter it would be impossible for any parties to the controversy to make any change in conditions.

It is unusual that the attitude of the men differs in this way from that of their officers. Evidently the officers believe a fair understanding has been reached which would seem to impose the burden upon them of convincing the members of the various unions to accept their judgment. The desire is to prevent a strike for the interest of all concerned in which the public should not be denied its part. The harmful effects of a strike deserve to be sidetracked whenever possible.

DAYLIGHT SAVING ENDS

With today daylight saving comes to an end for this year. The official ending comes at 2 a. m. Sunday morning when new railroad schedules go into effect as they are readjusted to the change and the season. Under the existing five months period for daylight saving it runs this year as late as is possible for Sunday is the last day of September, and yet there are many who are so delighted with the benefits of the increased daylight that they would like to see it run through October. They desire the benefit of the longer days at this rather than at the other end of the daylight saving season.

The Providence Journal is among these and in its behalf it says: Every year we have this unpleasant experience of seeing the afternoon daylight period unnecessarily curtailed an hour on the last Sunday in September. It is a doleful event in the year's calendar, far worse that the first faint manifestations of a lessening period of daylight when the summer solstice is newly passed. There would be general satisfaction if October were added to its old and rightful place among the daylight saving months."

It is believed that there has been the same general satisfaction throughout the past summer over the benefits of daylight saving. Certainly it has been a year when there has been less friction in regard to it and wherever there is reduced friction a much better spirit prevails.

There are unquestionably many who would express greater appreciation even if there should be a return to the seven months period for daylight saving, but it is probably true that the shorter, five months' season of daylight saving suits the larger number of people.

SHOULD KNOW BETTER

It is unfortunate that there are those political speakers who try to present so many claims to the people that are not so. They are ready to pick up gossipy untruths and pass them along as facts in their efforts to get votes. They don't seem to realize that denials will be made and when they are made and backed up the effect is going to be that of a boomerang.

Senator Bruce of Maryland is one of those speakers. He set out to lessen the chances of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis by connecting them with liquor. He told stories about each of them and attempted to quote individuals who would back him up, but he finds himself in the embarrassing situation of having those referred go back on him. When two of the men quoted as being involved in these stories were questioned they gave absolute denials. Denials were of course offered by or in behalf of Messrs. Hoover and Curtis and there is no question about them being emphatic.

The result is that the Maryland senator is left in an unpleasant and undesirable situation. He is shown up as dealing in political slanders and it adds nothing to his side of the case when he tries to explain that they were stories that were told to him. That simply makes the situation all the worse. He appears to be caught red handed in the distressing practice of what ought not to be expected of a member of the United States senate.

If his conduct proves detrimental to himself and to his choice for the presidency and feacts to the advantage of Hoover and Curtis it will be no more than might be expected. He is due to reap as he sows.

It is a bit tough to have to burn next winter's coal in what should be the balmy days of September.

Senator Bruce talks about things that are not so. Senator Curtis declares the Bruce statement a malicious lie and even one of the democrats named by Bruce in the story denies the alleged drinking party. Thus does the Ananias club increase in membership.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

As these lines are written we are exactly midway between the two solstices. Astronomically the sun is directly over the equator journeying with his usual deliberation into the region of the shorter days, where the limit will be reached on the same date in December. This scientific fact has been moralized upon by preachers, religious editors, and professors of moral philosophy. The usual point made is that the day of life for us is growing shorter, and that means, of course, for the young as well as old. Whether we are in the nineties, or whether in the first decade, slowly but surely, the day of life is fading away, and the end will come to us all at some time. While this is true in fact it is not taught by the sun sinking into the southern hemisphere, simply because after Dec. 21st the length of the day begins to increase again. The journeying of the sun north and south is not a good illustration of the trend of life.

This astronomical fact gives us a much better illustration of human life than it does of the fading day. As we all know, the real value of a day is not to be measured so much by its length as by its character or quality. So it is with the life of man, we do not guage his value either to himself or to society so much by his ninety or more years, as we do by what he has put into those years. Why should we deplore the obvious fact that days—with both young and old alike—are constantly growing shorter if they are really all the time growing richer? It is not so much the length of the day as what we put into it that counts in the estimation of both God and man. We have men in our insane institutions and penitentiaries who have passed beyond the three score and ten mark. We have also had men like Mendelsohn who died in their thirties, but they were crowned with immorjality.

Quite recently the whole country has been shocked by the toll of death and wholesale destruction of property by the West Indian tornado. Of course such terrible disasters arouse the deepest sympathy of the entire world, but what is vastly more important, it sets those agencies to work that will relieve the sufferings imposed just as far as it is humanly possible. Just what is the cause of these super-violent storms science has not yet determined, and yet it is clear that the reason why the wind should blow at the rate of 30 miles an hour makes it possible to blow at three times that velocity. Of course it does not explain anything by saying that there was a combination of favorable circumstances that made the result possible. At least it relieves the situation of the old pagan superstition that the calamity was sent by some angry spirit for the purposes of revenge. The Bible settles that view of the case.

There are two distinct types of men who live the hermit life off in the wilds away from the haunts of men. One of them is the unfortunate derelict whose habits have made him a social outcast. He is the man who comes once or twice a week from his shack off in the pasture into the village with a meal bag over his shoulder and carries it back usually with something more in it than provisions. It was "that something more" that sent him to the shack in the first place and has kept him there ever since. The other type of man who lives alone in the solitudes is the keen lover of nature, who has become disgusted with the trend of human society and has cut loose from it. This may be unwise, but some great spirits have done it. Take the case of Thoreau, the naturalist, who was a peculiar man, but his writings have been translated into almost every written language. We are thankful for hermits of this character.

There are a great many reasons for believing that no age in the past was quite so good to live in as the present one. This is true from every point of comparison. Think for a moment what science has done for our comfort and pleasure that our forefathers knew nothing about. There are many people now living who have not yet reached the nineties who can readily remember that the tallow candle was the only means of artificial light for home use. Think of the evolution until we have the electric light. Other things are in comparison. How greatly has machinery come into use to lessen the farmer's drudgery! What utensils are now used in the home that the dear old grandmother would like to have used! But what impresses the writer most of all is the freedom that we now enjoy in the expression of our ideas. One hundred years ago Charles Guignebert would hardly dared to have written a work on Christianity that is now impressing the world.

While comparing this age with any one preceding we ought not to forget the place radio is occupying in this day of scientific progress. Remember what it does when the telegraph and telephone fail to function, and even where the wireless under some atmospheric conditions cannot communicate. No wonder when we hear speakers at a great distance so clearly that they seem to be in an adjoining room, and we can almost feel their personality, that we are inclined to say that at last the miraculous has been accomplished. Then pause long enough to compare this wonderful day of our Lord to that of the tallow dip and the stage coach. If you are inclined to do this you will be less disposed to rave over the good old days that had their limitations far greater than ours. One can do this without under-rating the past. Even if the present has its imperfections, as it doubtless has, let us estimate it at its true value.

The value of an exposition of the character of the New England exposition at Springfield cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, while of course this side of it cannot be ignored. But from the standpoint of sociology it was worth while. The number present was so great that most of them were strangers to one another, but nearly everybody met some old acquaintance whom he had not seen in years. All about the spacious grounds could be seen friends of other years greeting one another in the most cordial fashion. Of course it goes without saying that everything the farm produces was seen in its finest shapes, and also from all other branches of industry. Taking it all in all, such monster exhibitions are well worth while from all points of view. One element of its success no doubt is the wide area from which its material is drawn. It stands to reason that New England as a whole can put up a larger and better show than any single county can possibly do. While not exactly in the center of New England, yet its geographical location makes it accessible to all the inhabitants except those in the farther parts of Maine. The railroads are quite accessible, but the automobile is far and away the great modern carrier.

"You and your husband seem to get along better nowadays, Mrs. Higgins."

"That's because we have set aside one day in the week to do all the fightin', sir. On the other days we keep the peace."—Passing Show.

NINE PORTS OF SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND

Nine ports of southern New England are described in the latest volume published by the government in its port series. These studies are made by the army board of engineers for rivers and harbors in cooperation with the bureau of operations of the shipping board. The ports now considered are Providence, Newport, New Bedford, Fall River, New Haven, New London, Bridgeport, Norwalk and Stamford. They afford illustration of the economic value of a location on tide water because, it is stated, "none of these ports serves as a gateway for the movement of traffic between the interior of the country and foreign and domestic markets reached via ocean routes." We read further:

At New London, traffic to and from Canada and the west is transferred from rail to water, or vice versa, but this traffic is in transit to or from New York, and the movement by water in a sound steamer of about 1500 tons is merely incidental to the rail movement and for the convenience of the rail carrier. * * * Import traffic moving via this route includes wood pulp from Sweden, hemp from India, lithopone from Holland, coffee from Brazil, crude rubber from Straits Settlements and tapioca from India. Some shipments of Canadian automobiles destined for Australia and New Zealand have been handled over the state pier at New London. With the exception noted, the water traffic of these ports moved by rail beyond the limits of New England is insignificant.

Ports for Home Use

Accepting as correct the statement that "with the exception noted, the water traffic of these ports moved by rail beyond the limits of New England is insignificant," we have here a group of ports which may be described as New England assets devoted exclusively to New England purposes. They may be described as New England ports for home use. If, with one exception, ocean liners do not visit them, they nevertheless are in touch with the great world. We read that southern New England in 1925 had imports of lumber from the maritime provinces and British Columbia, petroleum from Mexico and the West Indies, pig iron from Germany, coal from Wales, pulp wood from Denmark and Canada, salt from Turk's island and gypsum from Canada.

It always to be remembered that these always to be remembered that these cities along the southern New England shore are important as transfer points for traffic which is transferred to and from ocean carriers in New York. Figures showing the volume of coastwise traffic cover that which consists of goods in transit to and from foreign countries. Movement of raw materials for New England manufacturers and finished goods destined for foreign parts is, in many instances, facilitated because of the existence of these ports on the rail and water routes to New York where frequent sailings to all parts of the world are available.

Providence stands pre-eminent among the nine ports as far as direct connection with lands beyond the seas is concerned. It is the only southern New England port having regular service to foreign lands. The Fabre line runs its ships between Providence and the Azores, Lisbon and ports of the Mediterranean. It puts the Rhode Island city in touch with Greece and the near east as well as with southern France. Notwithstanding the statement that "nine of these ports serve as a gateway for the movement of traffic between the interior of the country and foreign and domestic markets reached via ocean routes," it is significant that the maritime business at Providence shews a tendency to increase. Thus the Providence Journal, in a recent issue, said that "no fewer than thirteen ocean steamers have been tied up on the west side of the harbor this week at one and the same time. Three of these came from Archangel, Russia; another hails from Kobe, Japan; and a fifth is from Puget sound by way of the Panama canal."

Commenting on this showing, the Providence paper expresses the opinion that "the marine business of the city is gradually increasing. It is various in character and connects us with many remote sections of the world in the course of a year. The next decade will undoubtedly witness a further great development of our trade as our modern facilities and the convenience of our location as 'the gateway of southern New England' become better known."

To Meet New England's Needs

Further emphasis upon the value of these ports to New England is placed in a section headed "Commerce." As the ports do not serve as gateways to the west it is stated, "nor even to or from any extensive portion of New England territory, their commerce consists mainly of commodities related to the needs of local industries and domestic life." So it appears that in traffic averaging 11,000,000 tons annually, imports of coal, petroleum, petroleum products, sand stone, lime and lumber accounted for 79 per cent. of the total.

These are bulk commodities of low value, relatively speaking. But there is a different story to tell of the remaining 21 per cent. of the tonnage. It includes a package freight traffic principally with New York, amounting to 1,500,000 tons annually. It accounts for the high total value of the traffic at some of the ports. In 1926 the value of the commerce of the nine was $1,240,000,000, which may be taken as a pretty good indication of the prosperity of New England, remembering that "their commerce consists mainly of commodities directly related to the needs of local industries and domestic life."

The Panama canal, of course, figures in the business of these southern New England ports. Providence, New London and Fall River are said to have developed an important intercoastal trade. At Providence the business is of a miscellaneous character, with petroleum products and lumber predominating. New London's share in the trade consists chiefly of lumber; New Beedford's of petroleum. The Norwegians, whose flag follows the trade routes of the seven seas, have a share in the lumber trade, their vessels bringing cargoes from British Columbia. They are, of course, barred from the coastwise trade between Pacific and Atlantic ports of the United States.

Again the Differentials

Any discussion of the business of New England ports, big and little, sooner or later includes allusion to the system of railroad rates which has caused the differentials against Boston and other New England cities to figure in the proceedings before the interstate commerce commission and to continue as a source of controversy. After saying that southern New England ports have found it difficult to attract regular steamship lines to foreign ports and the Pacific coast, the report continues:

This is due in no small measure to the proximity of the two large ports of New York and Boston, having excellent service to all parts of the world. It is also due in some measure to the fact that, considered both from the standpoint of geographical location and of railroad rates, the territory reached by each of these ports on a favorable basis is necessarily limited. The history of American ports shows that a port cannot become truly great unless it is in a position to serve a large and productive hinterland. The needs of local industries for raw materials inbound and for economical transportation of finished products outbound do not ordinarily supply cargo of sufficient amount to serve as the main reliance of an extensive steamship service. Even the great port of Boston has had difficulty in securing bulk freight for export in sucient amount to induce vessels to make that port their main terminus.

Many-Harbored New England

There is further echo of the differentials in a statement general in character in the introduction to the report. It is said: "The railroad situation is frequently a controlling element in port success. . . . . Not only should the physical characteristics of the terminal with regard to co-ordination between railroad and ship be examined, but the railroad rates should be scrutinized, as in various instances a commensurate utilization of a port has been rendered impractical by unfavorable rate conditions." It goes to emphasize the fact that Boston is not alone concerned in the question of railroad rates which operate to the disadvantage of New England ports.

But as things are with these ports of southern New England the story told in the report is one that speaks eloquently of the economic advantage of a man-harbored coast. The great ships which ply the main trade routes of the seas come and go from great ports, but the smaller ports are still doing business. They are factors of importance in building up the country round about them. They make possible the establishment of new industries. The cement plant at Rockland, Me., comes to mind in that connection. Then have their function in keeping railroad rates within bounds. The home ports are of inestimable value to the home industries. They give the coast community an advantage over the inland community. It is good news that they continue to prosper.—F. G. Fassett in Boston Transcript.

YOUR HEALTH

THE POSTURE OF CHILDREN

By Clifford Sweet, M. D., Oakland, California.

Every child passes through certain normal, racial changes in gait and posture. These changes, taking place principally during the first six years of life, being normal, should not be interfered with.

When the infant first stands upright he has one object to accomplish—stability. He therefore broadens his base as much as possible by standing with his feet well separated, rolled in upon the inner borders with the toes pointing outward. This is the exact position of the flat foot of adult life. With this position the swayed back and compensating forward thrust head and stooping shoulders are necessary to complete the balancing process. These back curves are likewise undesirable when continued past infancy.

Walking is begun also with attention to stability. The body balance is carefully maintained the feet being planted forward in turn and the body, and the body moved forward to each new base by successive side turning movements. It is only after considerable practice with increasing muscle co-ordination that the foot is used as a fiucrum, gripping the ground while the body is lifted over it by muscular action.

Stiff-soled shoes make standing easier since they increase the width and rigidity of the base, but they interfere with the proper development of the function of walking. The infant lacks the strength and skill to overcome the resistance offered by the sole, so continues walking in the infantile manner long past the natural time. So long as the infantile gait is used, the muscles of the foot arch, and on the inner side of the leg, fail to develop; and on the development of these muscles depends the prevention of the weak flat foot.

Short shoes, or short sox force the feet into the everted or turn-out position with the weight on the inner borders (flat foot) in order to relieve pressure on the toes when the feet are bearing weight.

At least one hour daily barefooted is of great value to the infant after he begins walking. A flexible sole shoe (preferably of the moccasin type) which allows function to develop without interference, is of great importance at this period.

All normal infants are bow-legged. Apparently this fact is not generally known, as a great many mothers are concerned about it, and all too many are attempting to correct it by manual pressure on the child's legs. The legs straighten within a few months after walking begins and therefore no child, heavy or light, should have his normal activity curbed for fear he will be bow-legged. After the bow legs of infancy disappear nearly if not all children become knock-kneed. Knock-knee reaches its height at three years of age and normally in the following year or two corrects itself.

As the child passes through these stages of development we must decide whether or not he needs mechanical help for a time. Certain individuals should be under the care of a skilled orthopedic surgeon. The great majority of children need only to be kept in a proper state of nutrition to be kept free from infection, or, if this is not possible, to be protected during the weakened periods that follow infections, and to be unhampered in the normal development of their functional powers.

ARM CHAIR JOURNEYS TO OTHER LANDS

Polish Peasant Women Seldom Rest

LODZ, Poland, Sept. 28—Peasant women of Poland seldom are allowed a complete day of rest.

Women do the bulk of the work on Polish farms. Even wealthy girls are required to work in the homes of their parents and, after marriage, are treated as part of the working force of their husband's establishments.

The work on the farm is strictly divided—the men plough, sow and harvest; the women take care of the entire house, cook, bring up the children, sew for themselves, their husbands and children, take care of all the livestock, keep up correspondence and accounts, and, in addition to all this, help their husbands, fathers and brothers with the heavy farm work. As a result the peasant women never have a holiday.

While the men remain almost idle in the winter time and enjoy a perfect rest on Sundays and holidays, the work of the women is the same all the year round, and though they try to transfer to Saturday evening all work for Sunday, still the cows and pigs are to be attended, and during the harvest they work overtime.

Centuries of hard work have made the Polish peasant woman prematurely old. A woman of 25 or 28 is already an old woman.

By taking care of all accounts, correspondin, with children during their absence and sons serving in the army, by deciphering instructions and orders coming from communal and governmental authorities, the peasant women have continuous practice in reading and arithmetic, while the men often forget what they have learned at school. Therefore, on Sunday afternoons, when the entire family gathers outside the house, or, in the winter, before the fireplace, it is the women, not the men, who read aloud the newspapers or books.

The western Polish provinces are accustomed to daily newspapers, but the central part of Poland reads only once a week.

Men appreciate the wisdom of their women and in most cases peasants do not vote without consulting their wives.

The men realize the tremendous importance of the women's work. Therefore, when marrying, they select girls who seem to be good workers. They attribute their success or failure invariably to the industry or laziness of their wives.

In the rural schools girls outstrip the boys in all subjects. The new generation of peasant girls compares in life with that of women in other classes and the girls endeavor to change their destiny by marrying rural teachers, postal and railway employes and small tradesmen.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Glory on the Mount

The longing of Jesus cannot be gratified. It is not possible for the cup to pass from Him, but as He prays His face becomes radiant—the glory within shining through the veil of His mortal flesh. We behold His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the father, John I, 14. We know that this flesh of ours is more or less transpareat, and in moments of exaltation the faces of even ordinary persons will shine as with a heavenly lustre.

We should not wonder then that it should have been so with our Lord, only in an immeasureable degree; that His face should have shone "even as the sun" and that though He could not yet ascend to heaven, heaven's brightness should have descended on Him and wrapped Him round; so tha even "His raiment was white as the light," and also a heavenly company appeared, Moses and Elias talking with Him.

It is one of the innumerable notes of truths found, whenever aught that is marvelous is recorded in the gospel, that the Glory on the Mount is not appealed to to confirm the faith of any but the three who witnessed it. Upon them it did produce a deep and abiding impression.

John evidently has it in his mind both in the beginning of his epistle and his gospel as when he says: "We geheld His glory, the glory as of the only jegotten of the Father," and Peter says: "We were eye-witness of His majesty when there came such a voice to Him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased, and this voice which came from heaven we heard when we were with Him in the holy Mount." When God speaks it is always with a purpose, and they do well who listen and take heed to what He says.

A Washington Bystander

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The time seems almost at hand when Dr. C. C. Wu—Wu Chao-chu would be the Chinese version of his name—will be able to open some sort of conversations with the Washington government looking to ultimate abolition of extra-territoriality so far as Americans in China are concerned.

He has been here for many weeks, honing for a chance to win political credit by packing home a signed, sealed and delivered renunciation by the nited States of the exemption from Chinese laws and court processes its citizens have enjoyed in China time out of mind.

Whether the extent to which it now appears the Washington government is willing to go in that direction will satisfy Wu's personal needs and afford him a possible stepping stone to return to the office of minister of foreign affairs of the Chinese nationalist government at Nankink he once held is not so clear. The jow is now held by Dr. C. T. Wang, another of the western educated Chinese younger set.

Wang is reputed to be a henchman of Feng Yu-hsiang, sometimes called the "Christian general" and who is still somewhat of an enigma in Chinese political developments. Wu is, or was prior to a quarrel, very friendly with General Chang Kai-shek, and his exact place in the present scheme of things in and about Nanking is not apparent.

What is clear is that Wu and a good many other of the western educated Chinese very much dislike Wang, and that despite the fact that Wu is at least nominally a special representative of the nationalist government in Washington, authorized to negotiate a bilateral commerce treaty. There has been no presentation of credentials, however, and in Washington government eyes Wu ies still just a distinguished Chinese visitor.

Entourage Up-To-Date

Dr. Wu comes of an old and wealthy family in the Canton area. He maintains a multiple-room establishment in a big Washington apartment hotel and has quite a personal staff, all very western in dress and language.

It's a fardeparture from the old Manchu rynasty days when a diplomat from the Flowery Kingdom traveled with a train of silk clad attendants and himself affected Chinese costume and the red-buttoned Mandarin hat of h is aristocratic rank. The shades of Wu Ting-fang and Li Hung-chang must shudder at the change marked by Sze and Wu and their slim Chinese aides, all invariably faultlessly tailored with the hallmark of Bond street's best about them, all talking fluent English with an Oxford accent, or, more often than not, purest college American, snappy, up-to-date slang and all. Wu is in the lattere class.

Life Imperiled

Wu was the target for a double attempt at assassination when he was in Singapore en route from China. A fanatic said to have been inflamed by radical propaganda and Wu's anti-communist activities, cracked down on him with an automatic as he came out of the Chamber of Commerce building. He successfully ducked four shots, skipping nimbly behind an automobile, and his assailant was captured. Just a minute later, however, as he drove away, a small but highly destructive bomb exploded on the spot where his car was expected to have been perked to await him. The British authorities prepared to take harsh measures against the prisoner, and Wu interceded to urge clemency, successfully, he maintains.

"They only gave him a 30 year sentence," is the way Wu demonstrates his point.

Jerry Muskrat Gets to Work

Though there is much of joy in play,
A greater joy in work doth lay.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Jerry Muskrat had spent rather a lazy summer. He had had a good time around the Smiling Pool. There had been no need to work. Now Jerry, you know, is not naturally lazy. When there is work to be done Jerry can work as well as any one I know of. But summertime is more or less playtime with Jerry. Now this bright morning he sat on one of the little rafts he had made for himself to sit on. He had just had three clams, as the fresh water mussels are called. He had opened them and eaten them and he was trying to make up his mind whether to go home and take a nap or go down the Laughing Brook to the Big River.

He happened to be looking over toward the Green Forest. He saw Ol' Mistah Buzzard come sailing out of the Green Forest. Jerry watched him sail round and round and up and up until he was hardly more than a speck in the sky. Jerry had watched him many, many times, though he didn't think much about it until he happened to notice that Ol' Mistah Buzzard was growing smaller and smaller and smaller in the south. Jerry watched him until he disappeared. Then he scratched the tip of his nose.

"Ol' Mistah Buzzard doesn't fly that way usually," he said to himself. "When he goes up in the sky he's usually around in sight. Now he has disappeared. I do believe he has started for his home in the Sunny South. Yes, sir, I believe he has started for the Sunny South and we won't see him again until spring. That means that it is time to get ready for winter. I've felt it in my bones for some time that I ought to be getting ready for winter, but somehow I haven't felt like it. But if Ol' Mistah Buzzard has left for the Sunny South it is high time for me to be getting busy. I ought to have started my house long before this."

Jerry sat a few minutes longer, turning things over in his mind. Then he slipped off into the river, dived, and when he came up he was on the other side of the Smiling Pool. He came out on the bank and for the next half-hour Jerry was a very busy small person. Sometimes he was on the bank and sometimes he swam about among the bulrushes that grew in the water by the side of the Smiling Pool. He was looking the ground over, so to speak. It looked as if he were looking the water over, but really he was looking the ground over. Finally he swam out to the Big Rock, climbed out on it and sat there, looking the Smiling Pool all over.

"I suppose," said he to himself, "that I could fix up my old house and make it do. But I've done that two or three times and I think I'd like a new house. That's a first-class place over there in the bulrushes for a house. There isn't any current over there. The water is deep enough for a good passage out there beyond the danger of ice. It isn't very far to the Laughing Brook. Yes, sir, that looks to me like a good place for a house, and the sooner I get to work the better."

Jerry slipped into the water, swam over to the place he had selected, and presently the water became very muddy at that point. Jerry Muskrat had started work. He had started work for the foundations of his new house. Now and then he poked his head out for fresh air and to rest a bit. Then he went back to work. Jerry's vacation days were over until winter should arrive."

CHURCH MASS MEETING ON RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Several of the churches will unite their evening congregations to hear Prof. Luther A. Weigle of Yale university who is to speak in the United Congregational church at 7:30 o'clock on the theme: "Religious Education and the Schools." Dr. Weigle has recently been made dean of Yale Divinity school, succeeding Rev. Charles R Brown, who recently resigned that important position. Dr. Weigle spent last year in the Holy Land and near-by countries, and was a delegate to the Jerusalem conference on Religion.

At the union service Sunday evening local clergymen will participate in the period of worship and song and the quartet of the United church will lead the singing. The education of the people in religion is to be the general theme for the day in the Protestant churches. In some of the pulpits the sermon will stress this theme, while in others a layman will tell in five-minute speeches why he believes in the church school.

Dr. Weigle comes to Norwich under the auspices of the Norwich Council of Religious Education with the State Council co-operating.

APPALLING NEED IN FLORIDA AND PORTO RICO

Pointing out the appalling devastation wrought by the Florida hurricane and the vast extent to which aid is needed there and in Porto Rico, an officer of the Norwich chapter of the American Red Cross said Friday:

It might be well to have brought before the reading public of Norwich a few of the actual figures bearing on the actual work which the American Red Cross as an organization is doing in the areas suffering from the recent storm; figures are usually dry reading but they often, as in no other way, can indicate the magnitude of an undertaking, and especially at the present time they will show the nature of the problem presented to the Red Cross for their solution.

Reports from Florida indicate that in Palm beach county, about the size of Delaware or Rhode Island, 40 miles square, an estimate of 2,300 deaths will not be an exaggeration, the first figures were 50; this means that from the standpoint of loss of life this is the second greatest disaster that has been recorded in our country; 15,000 are homeless and many towns have no buildings standing, an estimate of 95 per cent, of all of the buildings being damaged and 25 per cent. totally destroyed not being considered an exaggeration and farms with all implements and live stock washed away. In money total, this territory, with a population of 50,000 has lost $50,000,000 of its property in addition to lives lost. The statement is made by Red Cross officials on the ground at the time of both disasters that the devastation wrought in Palm beach county is twice as great as that of two years ago in the Miami area. In this latest disaster the people have expected that the reports would be modified and the first figures greatly reduced, but just exactly the opposite has been the case and it has been necessary to greatly increase the figures of the actual need as further information based on later reports are received.

In Porto Rico relief, supplies of food, clothing and medicines are being distributed daily from depots in 52 of the 77 municipalities on the island; 1,000 tons of beans, rice, flour, fish and meat costing $150,000 reached San Juan on Tuesday on a naval transport and 36,000 blankets, 2,000 tents and 7,000 cots have been donated by the army and in addition 1,000 tents and 10,000 more cots are being shipped from New York. Two 1,000 bed hospitals have reached San Juan and vaccines and medical supplies to take care of the health conditions for four weeks are on the ground as well as chlorine gas for the purification of the water. At the present time the health situation is regarded as a major problem, 210 having been killed, 2,771 injured and there are 9,847 ill with malaria influenza and other diseases as the direct result of the hurricane, and further spread of the influenza epidemic is feared. The number of homeless families now receiving Red Cross aid is 56,777 and it is expected this figure will increase. The number of individuals who will need Red Cross aid is estimated by those in authority in Porto Rico as being 400,000.

In view of the above figures and facts, all taken from the latest reports of the Red Cross, it is evident that a major disaster has taken place resulting in awful destruction and absolute want and the official figures representing the actual needs in the stricken areas are mounting. The responsibility of aiding those in distress has been assumed by the American Red Cross, the organization always ready and willing to take up the burden at such a time with their trained workers; the Norwich chapter of the Red Cross has been asked to raise $1,400 as its minimum share in this responsibility and the public of Norwich are asked to give their assistance to this most worthy cause, so that this quota figure may at least be reached and it is hoped exceedd, as has always been the case when contributions have been solicited for simliar objects in the past.

SECOND DAY OF COUNTY FAIR BRINGS OUT GOOD SIZED CROWD

A crowd estimated at nearly 8,000 men, women and children, attended the second day of the 74th annual fair of the New London County Agricultural society at the local fairgrounds Friday. Again the weather man smiled. With the exception of a slight wind, chilly at times, the day was almost perfect. There were a couple of light sun showers during the afternoon but little water fell, hardly enough to dampen the ground.

With the increased attendance the midway was a busy place. The merry-go-round and ferris wheel had considerable patronage and the numerous stands reported much more activity than on the opening day. Outstanding events of the day were the fiddlers' contest in the midway, an automobile procession around the track, three exceptionally good horse races, nine heats in all, the vaudeville programme on the outdoor stage in front of the grand stand, the 125 foot dive by Dare Devil Oliver and the 40 foot dive by beautiful white diving horse.

Friday was sheep day. The morning's activities opened at 9 o'clock with the judging of bees and honey, Allen Latham, supt., and at 10 o'clock occurred the judging of fruit and vegetables, Samuel E. Holdredge, supt. A half hour later came the judging of the dairy cattle, Walter T. Clark, supt.

In the afternoon at 1:30 o'clock the old fiddlers' contest was held and about 2 o'clock there was a demonstration of sheep herding by J. B. Pritchard's dog, "Scottie." The judging of the domestic and fancy work entries, Mrs. L. B. Smith and Mrs. Albert Avery, superintendents, took place at 3 o'clock.

The races, track events and vaudeville got under way soon after 2 o'clock and it was around 5:30 o'clock when the final race was run. The grounds remained open, however, for the midway atractions and for the night show. There was a good sized crowd on the grounds for the night show which included the vaudeville acts. Another brilliant display of fire works, large set pieces and aerial bombs marked the close of the second night of the three day fair.

Announcement was made Friday afternoon by fair officials that the race programme and vaudeville attractions will start an hour later this (Saturday) afternoon. This is to allow the employees of industrial plants and others who have the Saturday half holiday an opportunity to reach the grounds in time for the races and other atractions.

Many people visited Coleman Brothers' carnival during the afternoon and evening and there were good sized crowds in the main exhibition building, at the auto show and along Merchants' row and the farm implement exhibits.

Under the auspices of the New London County Farm Bureau, 4-H club members are holding varied demonstrations. The demonstrations are as follows:

11:00—Poultry, Junior Poultry club, Norwich; 11:30—White Club Uniform, Clover Leaf Clothing club, Waterford; 1:00—Apron, Nimble Workers, Franklin; 1:30—Canning, Cochegan club, Montville; 2:00—Grade Those Eggs, Junior Poultry club, Norwich; 2:30—Cream soups, Do Wells, Preston City; 3:00—Club uniform, Thimble Wearers, No. Franklin; 3:30—Canning, Do Wells, Preston City; 3:45—Posture, Happy Health Workers, No. Franklin; 4:00—Putting a Sparkle Into Your Smiles, Happy Health Workers, No. Franklin.

Today (Saturday) is Children's Day. All school children under 12 years of age will be admitted free if accompanied by a parent or guardian.

THREE NORWICH DIVORCES IN SUPERIOR COURT

Three divorces to Norwich residents were among the six granted by Judge John Richards Booth in uncontested cases in the superior court at New London Friday morning.

Victoria Rokowski of this city was granted divorce from Anthony C. Rokowski of Bridgeport on the ground of intolerable cruelty since May 1, 1927. They were married Sept. 5, 1921. She was also given the custody of two minor children.

T. John Tracy of this city was given divorce from Florence H. Tracy of England on the ground of her desertion of him three days after they were married on Feb. 19, 1919.

On the grounds of desertion alleged since Dec. 13, 1924, Mabel G. Wright of this city was given a divorce from Henry Wright. The couple was married August 12, 1915 and the petitioner, represented by Attorney Hibbard R. Norman, was given the custody of two minor children.

On the grounds of desertion alleged since July 20, 1920, Franklin De Lance of this city was given a divorce from Angeline DaLance. They were married Jan. 22, 1919.

After he had testified and brought witnesses to corroborate his testimony that his wife, Nellie Strickland Beckwith, had "nagged him," thrown vases, stove lids and flatirons at him, while she called him many profane names, Archer E. Beckwith of Waterford, was given a divorce on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. The couple was married Jan. 26, 1915 and they separated eight years ago. The case was at first slated to be a contested one but the defense made no fight in court.

Jessie R. Reagan of New London secured divorce from Harry Q Reagan, a former sailor, but now a timber man and farmer in Arkansas. The grounds were intolerable cruelty. They were married in November, 1925, and the wife testified in court that when they reached Arkansas her husband sent her out to work in the fields, holding the plow hitched to horses. Out there she said, he beat her on a number of occasions and one time gave her a sound whipping with a leather belt while she was in bed.

Mrs. Reagan, after having reduced in weight from 134 pounds to 98, fled from the great open spaces of Arkansas and came back home to New London.

TAFTVILLE A. A.-J. B. MARTIN GAMES BASEBALL FEATURES FOR WEEK END

All roads will lead to Taftville this afternoon and will terminate at the Providence St. grounds where the Taftville A. A. will take the field against their hated rivals, the J. B. Martin team in the second battle of their "Little World Series." The third contest will be held Sunday on the J. B. Martin grounds and from what can be learned, the third game will be the last as far as J. B. Martin is concerned. Of course "Big Brother" Troland will have something to say about that and he insists that with Johnny Tillman in the box, probably for both games, he will, therefore, be at least one game ahead in the series after Sunday's encounter.

The Martins took Taftville over last Sunday to the tune of 8-7 in an 11 inning contest as thrilling a one as has ever been played. The Martin boys went on a hitting rampage and drove three of Taftville's men off the mound, something unusual to happen to the Troland men. With Tillman in the box, Taftville says that nothing like that will happen again.

The J. B.'s are bringing down McElroy, former Providence college slab artist to do the work for them, and needless to say Mac will hold his own with Tillman. In fact it looks like a "natural" as far as the moundsmen are concerned, and if last week's game is any criterion, today's encounter will be just as thrilling and probably just as close.

Taftville has added to their lineup Tommy Sipples, late of the Manchester club, and one of the best semi-pro players in the state, and one of the hardest hitters. With the rest of the hard hitting Taftville team the fans can look forward to a vicious encounter, even if they have to wear their overcoats. Saturday's game will start at three o'clock sharp.

Sunday's Game

The scene of the battle of the "Little World Series" of Taftville will be shifted tomorrow to the J. B. Martin diamond when the Taftville A. A. and the J. B. Martin teams clash in the third game of their series. In the first game of the series the Velvetmen nosed out in a eleven inning contest by the score of 8 to 7, both clubs playing remarkable ball.

As rivalry of these two clubs is keen there is no doubt that the fans will have a chance to see a game full of thrills and fast ball playing. It is rumored about that the north-end manager has strengthened his lineup considerable for the week end games. This worries the Velvet makers very little for a confident feeling prevails in the team that regardless of who represents Taftville A. A. tomorrow's game will be the final game of the series and the baseball honors of Taftville for 1928 will again be sewed up in a velvet bag as in the past seasons.

The lineup for the Velvetmen under the able direction of Manager Eribeck will be composed of players that were seen in the first encounter. "Russ" Fisher again will be assigned for the mound duty after performing so brilliantly in his first contest. King will do the backstop work with Campbell taking care of second. In the outfield will be seen Smith, Ryan and Couillard. On account of the time changing Sunday this game is scheduled to start at 2:15 p. m. standard time. A record breaking crowd is expected at the game Sunday and police protection has been provided. The field will be roped and will be in the best of condition for the battle. There will be plenty of parking space and an ideal place to spend the afternoon. Taft and Simcox will officiate. The lineups follow:

NO ARMY-NAVY GAME BEFORE 1930 AT LEAST

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—There will be difficulties in the path of an early football reconciliation between the Army and Navy, in spite of indications that this will be brought about much sooner than expected by withdrawal of the Navy's demand for the three-year varsity player rule.

Foremost among the obstacles, it was pointed out today, are the contracts with other teams which both the Army and Navy have signed to fill out their slates, not only for this year, but for 1929 and 1930.

These engagements tend to prevent a resumption of gridiron relations until after 1930 but the belief prevails that means will be found to restore the service classic to the program, at least by next year, especially if the Navy proposes peace terms calculated to fit the Army's point of view. There has been a suggestion that an effort would be made to play this year and thus keep the historic series intact but the present outlook is against this.

If there have been any definite peace moves so far, Army officials profess ignorance of them, although it is definitely known the two new superintendents, Major General Smith of West Point and Rear Admiral Robinson of Annapolis, have had at least one conference, presumably with athletic relations as one of their topics of discussion.

Since the initiative, however, is expected to come from the Navy, if at all in the near future, West Point's stand-pat position is not considered significant. The whole matter apparently rests upon when Annapolis authorities consider a move on their part timely and desirable.

BOWLING LEAGUE TO OPEN ON OCT. 8TH

The opening of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league has been postponed from Monday night, Oct. 1st, to the following Monday, Oct. 8th. The postponement was brought about by the dropping out of the Plainfield community team. The Jewett City public alleys have taken the place of the Plainfield quintet and round out a loop that will be one of the best leagues ever conducted in the eastern part of the state. Everyone is anxious for the opening of the league and from present indications there will be plenty of competition throughout the winter. The schedule which is being drawn up will be published next week.

Andre Routis is New Featherweight Champ

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—With one of the most spectacular finishes staged in many a day, Andre Routis, fiery little French fighter, won the featherweight championship of the world tonight from Tony Canzoneri, New York Italian, in a slashing 15-round match in Madison Square garden.

Hopelessly outclassed, knocked down once and badly battered through out the first half of the fight, Routis came back in whirlwind fashion to outpunch the champion and take the title amid scenes of the wildest enthusiasm the new garden has seen in some time.

It was a sensational fight and a close decision but the game and gallant little Frenchman won the official verdict by the way he turned the tide in the eighth round. From then on he clearly outfought Canzoneri, who tired under his challenger's relentless pounding and lost the edge of an attack that had given him a commanding lead.

Routis thus takes back to France the same featherweight title that his countryman, Eugene Criqui, war scarred veteran, won from Johnny Kilbane in 1923 but lost two months later to Johnny Dundee.

Routis staged his comeback after nearly being knocked out in the first round. He was floored in the first two minutes of the fight by a terrific right hook that swung him clear around and to the floor with a thud. Only the Frenchman's unusual powers of endurance enabled him to weather the storm of gloves that struck him from every direction during the rest of the opening round.

The champion, by the end of the 7th as he outpunched and outboxed the challenger, appeared to have a lead that was insurmountable. At least it might have been so against any fighter of less rugged calibre or persistance than Routis. The Frenchman never gave up. When he realized, after the seventh, that Canzoneri was tiring fast, he leaped in with a ferocity that quickly turned the tide and put Tony on the defensive.

Routis won seven of the last eight rounds but his furious two fisted attack in the last four rounds proved the decisive factor. He pounded the champion's body ceaselessly and frequently connected with short hooks that shook the chunky little Italian.

At the finish, however, it was so close that the officials were unable to agree. One judge cast his ballot for Canzoneri but the other judge, together with Referee Eddie Forbes, decided the fight in favor of the Frenchman. On the Associated Press score card Routis was given seven rounds, and Canzoneri six, with two even.

In the ten round semi-final Lope Tenorio, hard hitting Filipino, punched out a victory over Basil Galiano, New Orleans welterweight. The Filipino weighed 137 1-2 and Galiano 141 1-2.

Irish Bobby Brady, Jersey City, stopped Tony Pellegrino, Williamsburg, in the sixt hround of a ten round match.

Brady punched Pellegrino all over the ring, flooring the Italian four times. Once in the second round and thre times in the sixth before the referee stopped what was a one sided contest from the start. Both weighed 128 1-2.

Joe Barlow, Boston, 178, stopped Sid Angestreiche, East Side pugilist, 186, in the second round of a four round preliminary match.

ATHLETICS BEAT WHITE SOX BUT LOSE PENNANT

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 — (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics dropped out of the American league's 1928 baseball picture today, although defeating the White Sox, 7 to 5, in a wild slugging contest.

The New York Yankee's victory over Detroit made it impossible for the Athletics to overcome the Yank's two and one-half game lead in the two remaining days of the season.

The White Sox outhit the Athletics 16 to 14, but three home runs, one each by Cochrane, Simmons, and Miller, wrecked the hope of the Sox of squaring the series. Cochrane's home run, his tenth of the season, came in the first inning with no one on base. Simmons' homer, his fifteenth of the season, came in the ninth also with the bases empty. Miller had a perfect day at bat, with four singles, in addition to his home run, in five trips to the plate.

Jack Quinn, the veteran spitballer and Grady Adkins, White Sox rookie, started on the mound, but neither finished. Walberg hurled the last six innings and received credit for the victory. Cox and Lyons finished the game for the Sox after Adkins had been knocked out in the third.

KOZELUH AND RICHARDS IN PRO TENNIS FINALS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 28—(AP)—Karol Kozeluh and Vincent Richards, respectively professional champions of Europe and of the United States will clash in the final of the American title tournament tomorrow. On form and the record of series abroad the title of this nation is about to pass to the holding of the Czecho-Slovakian.

Kozeluh in his semi-final today against Harvey Snodgrass, the Californian played cat and mouse most of the time winning in straight sets, 8-6, 6-2, 6-1. He practiced shots as if in anticipation of Richards' net assaults. He was, however, easily master of the rallied and his wealth of stroke production today is not likely to let down.

Richards has not touched his top form in this tournament. His net attacks have been uncertain and his many errors of volleying into the barrier nearly cost him his match against Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, this noon, Richards finally won 2-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2, 10-8.

Kinsey and Snodgrass meet in a special match at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

GIANTS HAVE BUT ONE SLIM CHANCE

(By William J. Chipman, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—Giant pennant hopes for 1928 were placed neatly in the grave this afternoon, but they won't throw on the dirt until tomorrow. There is still some slight chance that the corpse may come back to life.

The Cubs mussed up Larry Benton in a disgraceful manner this afternoon and showed no better manners when Joseph Genewich was introduced from the mound. Old Jack Scott finally dashed to the rescue in the ninth, but the damage already had been done in the shape of a 7 to 5 victory for the Bruins.

The Cards and the Braves were still at it in Boston. Was it possible that the derelict Braves could turn back the leaders. Giant showers waited upon the necessity some thirty steaming young athletes felt of crowding about the ticker in John McGraw's office in the club house, but what they read burned their eyes.

That grand inning gave the forces of William McKechnie the big end of the bacon by 10 to 3 after the Braves had made as if to scurry mischievously off with the winning run on several occasions. It further increased the margin of the Cardinals over the Giants to two full games with noly two more to go.

The race will end with another Cardinal victory or another Giant defeat. All of McGraw's fight will have been wasted if the Cards are strong enough tomorrow simply to push over the Braves. That Sunday game now looks very much like it will be for exercise only.

The Cubs proved annoying to Lrry Benton from the start today. Two were picked up in the second on Hartnett's force-out of Grimm, who had singled, and safe one base blows by Beck and English, mixed intelligently with Bush's out. The Giants got to Bush for one run in the home second, but Mike Gonzales and English put the Cubs safely ahead again in the fourth with a pair of home runs.

Singles by Welsh, ODoul and Ott and a double by Terry netted only two to the New York cause in the 5th, and Benton gave way to a pinch batsman in the eighth. Genewich was rudely assaulted in the ninth when among other things Cuyler tripled with two on. Grimm's single accounted for another run and the Cubs were in the lead by 7 to 3.

True to their tradition, the Giants rallied in the ninth, but the distance was too great. They prodded for two runs, but Hal Carlson spoiled the party before the game could be tied. Score:

GLENNA AND VIRGINIA IN GOLD FINALS TODAY

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 28—(AP)—Two long hitters, Glenna Collet of Providence and Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, will have their day in the women's single golf championship tomorrow with the national title the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Both women can hit a golf ball farther than the average man player and they meet for the championship as a result of their victories today in the semi-finals.

Miss Collett, has won the championship twice—in 1922 and 1925—while her 19 year old opponent from Chicago is knocking for the first time at the women's golf hall of fame. The former champion won the right to bid for the title again by defeating Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, Philadelphia, who also has worn the crown, four up and three to play. Miss Collett played a high brand of golf as testified by her score over the first nine she was out in 36, even four's and one over men's par. Her medal score was six under the more liberal allowance for women. She was seven up at the turn, Mrs. Stetson's best having been halves at two holes.

Coming home, Mrs. Stetson played six holes two under women's par and by winning three holes and halving two carried the match to the "Vanity Fair" fifteenth hole in front of the club house before she could be shaken off.

Miss Van Wie in the meantime was having to work for her victory over Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, the sterling Philadelphia player, who has been three times champion of the United States and in addition twice held the title in her native Britain. Mrs. Hurd fought heroically to the last but this was no novel experience for the slim, young western girl and she came out victorious.

ACADEMY OPENS FOOTBALL SEASON TODAY AT NEW LONDON AGAINST TECH

The Academy opens its 1928 football season this afternoon at Morgan park, New London, meeting the Chapman Tech outfit. This also opens the newly formed eastern-Connecticut-western Rhode Island Interscolastic league's season.

There is no favorite this afternoon. Chapman Tech, with a rather impressive 25 to 0 victory over Plainfield high last Saturday in the season's opener brushed aside all prophecies about an easy Academy victory as has been the case in most sports between these two schools of late. The Academy presents but a handful—five, to be exact—of veterans this afternoon in its first showing of the new season while, though Tech is little better off in this respect, still the new men on that team have one game under their belts and one game's experience at this time of the season means quite a lot.

Coach Whitney has been drilling his local charges hard for just a day over two weeks now. The sessions most every afternoon have lasted close onto three hours. Not too much can be expected of the Wildcats today, although the majority of their followers feel that they can pull through a victory, though it be not by one-sided scores as of previous campaigns.

Whitney had Capt. Buck LaCroix, Jack Marks, Mish, Fox and Kahn upon which to build his team. All save Marks were linemen last year so that it can easily be seen that the main problem is among the ball carriers.

However, among the boys reporting from last year's squad were some who had seen considerable service and who, of course, will have to carry the burden for this year.

Archie Brock, quarterback, Chet Berghinzo, end, Cruickshank, tackle, Abugel, center and Hertz and McInnis, another lineman, are making strong bids for the vacant berths.

There was no definite starting lineup divulged for today's game as the competition has been especially keen and the announcement will probably not be made until just prior to the kickoff.

Chapman Tech will probably lineup as follows:

The game will start at 3 o'clock and a large crowd of local fans is expected to witness the opener.

TUNNEY MAY BE MARRIED IN ROME

ROME, Sept. 28—(AP)—After a few hours experience here today with the formalities necessary for his approaching wedding with Miss "Polly" Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, decided that if his fiancee agrees, they will be married in the eternal city.

Miss Lauder and her parents, together with several friends, are voyaging toward Naples, where they are due next Tuesday. Gene said today that he was not certain just when he would go there to meet them but he intends to leave Rome within a day or two. It was made plain, however, that the change in the wedding plans will not be made definite until Miss Lauder has had opportunity to decide for or against Rome as opposed to Sorrento, the romantic situated spot on the bay of Naples which was first picked for the ceremony.

Tunney was aided in his quest for special writs from government sources by Thomas L. Daniels, second secretary of the American embassy. His assistance with the church authorities probably will come through the Very Rev. Mohsignor Joseph A. Breslin, who was Tunney's parish priest in New York and is now vice rector of the American college in Rome. Monsignor Breslin visited Tunney at the latter's hotel and they had a long talk.

Henry P. Fletcher, American ambassador, placed his staff at the disposal of Tunney when the two met today.

LACK OF LINE MATERIAL IS PROBLEM FACING STEVENS

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 28—(AP)—An emergency call for linesmen was sent out today by Head Coach Stevens and Line Coach Lovejoy to strengthen the Yale rush line, riddled with injuries. From wing to wing excepting the center position, material is needed and husky fellows without experience are being sought, said Stevens.

With the opening game of the season only a week away, the team was sent back today to learn the fundamentals of football after two weeks of practice. Yesterday's scrimmage showed up a number of weaknesses after which the head coach began to look about for some good sturdy linemen.

At present the varsity line is temporarily without the services of Greene, Kell and Hall, three lettermen guards, and to further increase his services, two freshmen Coach Stevens was banking for reserve strength are not available for duty. They are Truxton Hare and Frank Vincent, the latter tackle and captain of last year's freshmen eleven. Steven's need for ends has been a constant bother since the opening of practice.

HOLLYWOOD COLIN TAKES ASHLAND STAKE AT LEXINGTON

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 28 —(AP)—Hollyrood Colin disposed of his opposition in handy fashion in winning the Ashland stake feature of today's grand circuit races. Another son of Peter Volo, Bennet Volo, was second. The Indiana for two year old pacers was won by Petro Guy after Betterwin, topheavy favorite, was distanced following a break on the first turn.

The judges not liking the drive of E. J. Kirby behind Betterwin declared the betting off and reserved their decision further regarding the race until later. This is the first time this has been done here in some years. The eastern mare Summers Worthy won the second division 2:18 trot. For horses that have not won on the grand circuit this year but not only after losing the second heat to the three year old Michigan colt Donald Belwin. The cup race was hard fought and was won by Princess Gay, the entry of Harkness Edwards, son of Dr. O. M. Edwards, Walnut Hall Farm.

MERE HANDFUL SEE RUSSELL BEAT INDIANS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—(AP)—Before less than 200 cash customers Jack Russel, Boston hurler emerged victorious in a pitching battle with Wesley Farrell, of the Indians today, defeating the tribe, 1 to 0.

Loepp's triple in the first inning was responsible for the only run of the game. The attendance was said to have been the smallest here in many a season.

YANKS WIN AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT

DETROIT, Sept. 28 — (AP) — The Yankees clinched their sixth American league pennant and their third in succession by defeating the Tigers here today by 11 to 6 in the third game of the series. The Athletics won from Chicago, 7 to 5, but the Yankees retained a lead of two and one-half games with only two more to be played by each of the contenders.

George William Pipgras, a leading cog in the Yankees' remnants of a pitching staff but a failure until today on this trip west, turned in the flag-winning victory. The Tigers prodded him hard, but he had a good lead from the start. Gibson, Stoner, Smith and Page failed to stop the Yanks.

Babe Ruth hit his fifty-third home run in the eighth inning with Koening on base. Page was then in the box for Detroit. Only a landslide now could give the Babe enough homers in his two remaining games for him even to tie his major league record of 60 set last year, but he may possibly get two more to make 1928 his third best season.

The Yankees first won the American league championship in 1921 and proceeded to reel off three in a row. Then after a second-place finish in 1924 and a dip to seventh in 1925, the club regained the top in 1926 for the start of its second run of three. By winning six flags, the Yanks move into a tie with the Athletics and the Red Sox, each of whom took six in their palmy days.

The winning campaign of the Yankees falls naturally into three divisions. Through the first two months they were invincible, winning 39 and losing only eight for a percentage of .830. Experts were likening them to the famous Cubs, who won 116 games in 1906, and wondered how badly the champions would shatter that mark. Some estimates ran as high as 125 games. They were thankful today to win their 100th.

Then came the awakening. The Yanks stumbled along at a gait of about .550 for the next six weeks, but the Athletics did little better. Even while they were skidding, the champions retained their strange power to defeat the Athletics when and where they willed. A double victory over the Macks at the Rupper stadium on July 1 gave Miller Huggins an advantage of thirteen and one-half games.

Next came the closing phase of the Yankee battle—the long war of attrition in which the Yankees fought not so much to win as to keep from losing. The Athletics started on their way up and finally dislodged the champions by half a game on Saturday, September 8. Barring a few days early in the last three campaigns, it was the first time the Yankees had been out of the lead in three seasons.

The Mackmen moved confidently into the Yankee stadium for four battles in three playing days, but found the Yankees still possessed their knack of winning from Philadelphia when no other team would yield. The Hugmen regained the lead and broke the back of the Athletic drive by taking three out of four to run their season's records against the challengers to sixteen victories and only six defeats.

That finished the Athletics. The Yanks gave them other chances to recoup in the west, but the A's themselves were faltering.

Millions of fans were pulling for the Athletics, but that final debacle at the Ruppert stadium weaned many of these from the challengers. Almost everybody felt that if the Athletics did win after such a rout that the better team would be defeated.

Of the Yankees champions of 1921 only Miller Huggins, the midget manager, Waite Hoyt, Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel remain. Hoyt in particular deserves great credit for his labor in pulling through a team which in a season lost a Ruether, a Shocker and a Moore, and had to finish without Pennock, and with Lazzeri and Ruth injured.

CARDS NOW TWO GAMES IN LEAD

BOSTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—The Cardinals clinched at least a tie for the 1928 National league pennant by defeating the Boston Braves by 10 to 3 in 15 innings here today after the Cubs won from the Giants in New York by 7 to 5. This combination of events increased the Cardinal lead over the Giants to two games with only two more to be played.

The Giants can tie the Cardinals for the flag and force a three game play-off only by winning from Chicago tomorrow and from St. Louis on Sunday—if the Cardinals lose to the Braves here tomorrow. One more Cardinal victory or one more New York defeat would settle the race in favor of the Missourians.

Bob Smith held a margin over the Cards until the ninth when the score was tied at 3 to 3 on two passes and High's single, and then fought them on something just a shade better than even terms until the deluge descended upon him in the fifteenth. Kent Greenfield rushed to the rescue, but the Cards ran wild to score seven runs.

Grover Cleveland Alexander toiled through the first eight innings, but gave way to a pinch batsman in the ninth as the Cards tied. Sylvester Johnson then carried the burden through the 14th. He also gave way to a pinch batsman, but got credit for the victory. Flint Rhem hurled the last half of the 15th without incident.

It required three hours, 34 minutes to play today's game at Braves field. The blow-off came with one out in the 15th when Richbourg, playing right field for the Braves and who had been putting up a remarkably good game at bat and the field, made a three base muff of George Harper's long high fly. Wilson walked and so did Thevenow. Then Pinch-Hitter Ray Blades walked and forced in the run which broke the three-all deadlock. That would have been ample to win the game for the visitors. Farrell made an error on Douthit's harsh grounder, Andy High, whose single had driven in the tying run for the Cards in the ninth, crashed out a two bagger. Frisch walked, Bottomley singled and there was a double steal and the stunning total of seven runs had crossed the plate for the Cardinals.

After Frisch walked, Kent Greenfield succeeded Bob Smith. It was rapidly becoming dark. The Cardinals became nervous lest the inning be prolonged to such an extent that the game would have to be called because of darkness and the score revert to even innings. But the Braves then went out in order. The fifteenth inning lasted 35 minutes. Hornsby's homer off Alexander in the first inning scoring Jack Smith ahead of him, gave the Braves their first two runs. Their other run was made on a pass to Mueller in the fourth, two successive sacrifice hits and fielder choice plays and an infield out.

Boston's 3 to 0 lead looked good. Bob Smith yielded few hits, but was wild. However, in the sixth High, a former Brave, led off with a single and doubles by Bottomley and Hafey gave the Cardinals two runs. Bob Smith started the ninth by passing Wilson. Orsatti batted for Alexander and walked. Douthit fouled to the catcher but High hit the first pitch lazily to short left centerfield and Wilson easily scored from second base with the tying run.

Boston had several chances to win the game in the twelfth, with one out and men on first and second. Mueller singled to left. Jack Smith tried to score from second on this fairly smart hit, but was easily thrown out. In the fourteenth, a Richbourg single and a Sisler walk set the stage for Hornsby but he fanned.

Bob Smith yielded only nine hits in 14 1-3 innings but walked 12 men in that same time. Sylvester Johnson's work as relief man for Alexander for six innings was gilt-edged.

NOANK

ENORMOUS SCHOOL OF COD REPORTED BY CAPT. ELDREDGE

Fishing schooner Reliance, Capt. Grover Eldredge and a crew of nine came from George's banks fishing grounds with a large catch of cod. A truck loaded from the schooner 50 barrels of cod, about 10,000 pounds. The wind was blowing hard for a few days and they could not fish, but when favorable days came it was as much fun hauling them in as it would be eating peanuts with your best girl at a circus. Capt. Eldredge told the flat-fish fishermen at the north dock on Thursday morning that the fish were boiling in the water, the biggest school of fish that he ever saw in his life at one time—enough, he said to supply Fulton market, in New York for 25 years. "My crew was singing 'Fish to the right of us, fish to the left of us, where do all the fish come from?' Now it is sport to go fishing down to No Man's land, to catch cod. Different from when an old-time fisherman sits all day in a dory and doesn't get enough for a cat!" They have loaded up with supplies, 25 tons of ice and 200 gallons of gasoline, all ready to leave again for the fishing grounds It takes 12 days for a trip to the banks and back to the town dock.

Tony Passi was working in an open lot near the oral school Thursday and was down deep, when in one shovelful he saw something that looked like a coin. Still, it did not look like money. Putting on his glasses, sure enough it proved to be a one-cent piece. Calling over his pals to see his find, the date was 1801, making the penny 127 years old. On one side was George Washington's head. "Is it worth anything?" one fellow asked. "Don't know! but I will keep it for a while to show my friends in the village!" Jake Olona was in the gang and said: "My grandfather told me many times about the Indians and the white men fighting over this land Probably one of the early settlers dropped this for the lot has been plowed a number of times." Only about two years ago a workman from New York was digging in the same lot and found bones that were part of a man's skeleton. It was thought of an Indian. Toney Passi is some happy to find a rare coin with a picture of George Washington. He said "I don't care if the boss don't pay me for I've found a coin that some day is going to be worth money!"

Eddie Mahoney has returned from New York.

Raymond Jones has gone to Stamford for a week's visit.

Two officials of the New Haven railroad out of Providence came to the village Wednesday. One man was stationed on the railroad crossing on Spicer avenue, while the other was put on the East Main street crossing for 24 hours to keep track of the number of automobiles and the people walking over those crossings during that time. With a long sheet of paper and plenty of lead pencils the men kept busy during the first part of the night. Many reports were going around the village as to why the men were on the crossing, rumors of putting on an extra man, making it a three-trick job of eight hours each for 24 hours. Another story got started about putting gates up, making it safe at both crossings Also another report was that it was just to see how many automobiles go over the tracks in a day, also about speeding. Then if a train comes and no watchman is on duty and perhaps the engine goes dead, a fast express coming at full speed, who is to blame for the accident? Not the railroad company for a sign on the post reads: "Flagman off duty—better wait a minute and look before crossing the tracks."

About 20 from the village attended the fair in Norwich Thursday and saw the horse racing, also saw the old-time fiddlers do their stuff on the violins

37-41 MAIN STREET NORWICH, CONN.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the old two-story Giddings house in Preston was destroyed by fire. The reflection of the fire, several miles from Norwich, could plainly be seen in this city. The building was owned by Charles Davis of Preston and used by him as a canning factory. A large amount of canned goods was destroyed in the fire. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of September, 1878, are as follows

Monday, Sept. 23, 1878—The Rev. Mr. Chamberlain is to address the citizens of this city on temrerance, at Breed hall, this evening at 8 o'clock. As Mr. Chamberlain's views and methods are well known and are of a character to commend themselves to the good judgment of all, it is unnecessary for us to bespeak a crowded house.

The trees around the city are fast donning their russet livery, part of which is due to the pencil of autumn and a still larger share to the presence of dirt.

The Norwich Pistol Co. are running overtime in order to fill their orders.

Apple tree blossoms of the second crop are now in order. Mr. Otis M. Dorrance of Preston brought them in.

There was an intimation of frost in the air last night.

The wild-grape crop is a total failure this season.

Large quantities of manhaden have been captured during the past week by the oil companies.

Tuesday, Sept. 24, 1878—Mr. James Mahoney, who began his 500 mile walk to be completed in six days, in Stelzer's hall, yesterday morning, at 6 o'clock, was in his 72nd mile at twenty-five minutes to twelve last evening. His best time was one mile in eight minutes, three miles in succession in ten minutes each, followed by two successive miles in nine minutes each.

The street commissioner is making extensive repairs to the road bed on on the West Side. The road leading to East Great Plain has been put in excellent condition, new gutters and bridges have been added to West Main street, and the wooden pavement of the east bridge on Central Wharf is being replaced by fresh material.

The City Guard will make a street parade this evening, accompanied by the Third Regiment band, starting at 8 o'clock. The line of march will be through the central part of the city and the band will give a concert on Franklin square at 7 o'clock.

Wednesday, Sept. 25, 1878—Mr. Richard Stack, late an employee of the Richmond Stove Co., who is about to leave Norwich, was visited last Monday by his friends and fellow workers who presented him with a beautiful water pitcher bearing the inscription, "Presented to Richard Stack by the employees of the Richmond Stove Co. as a testimonial of their regard." Mr. P. H. Riley made the presentation, to which Mr. Stack responded briefly. Songs and recitations rendered the occasion a happy one to all who participated.

The Norwich City Guard, accompanied by the Third Regiment band, gave a very fine street parade last evening. The streets during the march were lined by spectators.

There will be a temperance meeting in Breed hall tonight, at which the Rev. Mr. Montgomery will present the statistics which it was announced at the Monday evening meeting would be presented on next Sunday. This change has been made in order to accommodate church goers who might not have been able to attend on Sunday. A large gathering is anticipated.

Thursday, Sept. 26, 1878—Several Norwich gentlemen went down the river to Massapeag yesterday to an open air fish chowder. The seine was drawn three times before a sufficient number of suitable fish were captured. In the three hauls about a bushel of crabs were taken and over a half a ton of bony fish. The latter fish were never more plentiful in the river. So say veteran fishermen.

The nominations in the greenback and democratic caucuses, yesterday, were celebrated by Mr. Alex Troup in a lengthy address on Franklin square in the evening. A small gathering listened to his views of the situation of the country and the general demoralization of everything except rag money, which was destined to live on and after the American Eagle had toppled off his roost with old age. Mr. Troup predicted a pathway of glory and calcium lights for the greenback party, who would never rest till they sat down with the goddess of liberty on the dome of the national capitol.

Mr. Charles F. Barker, who has been for some time connected with the Western Union Telegraph office in this city, has accepted the position of general ticket agent in the railroad office at Atlantic City, N. J. Mr. Barker, who leaves tonight, will be followed by the best of wishes of his many firends.

Friday, Sept. 27, 1878—The blaze that was seen in the Preston sky early on Wednesday morning, was the reflection of the conflagration that destroyed the old two-story Giddings house on the Corning cross road, a few miles from the city. The house had not been inhabited for sometime and the origin of the fire is an unsolved mystery, though the probability that it was kindled by an incendiary is undoubted. The building was owned and used by Mr. Charles Davis of Preston for canning purposes and a great amoun of canned fruits, especially tomatoes, was destroyed. The loss on the building will not be large.

Our worthy chief of the fire department visited Middletown, Wednesday to participate in the firemen's parade there and also to examine the improved truck of that department, which is said to be as fine and as portable as any in the state.

The last and probably the best of McWhirr's popular excursions by the steamer Ella tomorrow. Ample time given for a good dinner and dancing. McWhirr's tickets give the entree to all parts of the house.

Saturday, Sept. 28, 1878—Independence Hose Co., make an excursion to Willimantic, today, to attend a parade of the fire department. Tickets can be procured at the West Side depot at reduced rates.

Temperance rally at Breed hall this evening, at 8 o'clock. The Rev. George A. Morse and other will speak. Mr. Morse's address is pronounced very able and interesting.

The late frost considerably injured the buckwheat crop. The speculators who get a "corner" in buckwheat cakes this winter will come out a millionaire in the spring.

The Stonington railroad has refused to receive trade dollars for more than ninety cents and Mexican dollars for 85 cents.

Corn-huskings are raging mildly in the country. The traditional red ear is considerably above par.

CANTERBURY GREEN

Mr. Crofts of Hanover is expected to supply at the church next Sunday. After Oct. 1, the new pastor, Rev. Harry Small, will be located here.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Graves spent a few days in Springfield recently with their daughter. They visited the New England fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart have returned from their wedding trip to Montreal and are at present making their home with Mr. Hart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lathrop entertained their son, Parker Lathrop, and family of New Haven over the week-end. Sunday there were additional dinner guests from Norwich. The little granddaughter, Borrodell, remains for a visit with her grandparents.

At the grange meeting Wednesday evening the lecturer's hour was under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Bennett, who presented an entertaining program of readings, musical selections by Mr. and Mrs. Webberly and Mrs. Emma Appley and a talk on his recent trip to Washington by Milo Appley. Doughnuts, cheese and coffee were served by the committee.

Canterbury grange took first premium among grange exhibits at Brooklyn fair last week. Much hard work had been done by the various committees to put on so creditable an exhibit. The Ladies' Aid society also received second prize for work done by members and belonging to the organization.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Miss Perkins Resumes Teaching.

Having returned from an extended vacation Miss Helen L. Perkins will resume teaching today. Sept. 29th All branches of the art of singing are thoroughly taught. It is desirable for those wishing appointments for voice trials and lessons to communicate with Miss Perkins either by mail or telephone, as early as possible, in order to plan the season's work.

Women's Club Current Events.

The course of lectures on current events, to be given under the auspices of the Woman's City Club of Norwich, promises to be a most interesting and instructive one this coming season. Nine lectures have been arranged—six to be given by Mrs. Marion Gaylord Atwell of New York city; and three by Prof. Ralph Henry Gabriel of the Department of History at Yale.

Those who took the course last year will be glad to welcome back Mrs. Atwell, remembering her unusual ability as a fascinating, able speaker, along political, social and historical lines, and on topics of the times. This past summer Mrs. Atwell attended The Institute of Politics at Williamstown.

Those who have never heard Prof. Gabriel have a treat in store. The authority with which he speaks is based upon his life of varied experience and his scholar's outlook. He has been a soldier in the World war, has been a member of "Yale in China," a professor of history, and editor of the recent book, "Pageant of America." America's Foreign Policy and her relations with Latin America, are subjects upon which Prof. Gabriel is particularly fitted to speak.

All the lectures, which begin the last of October, will be given in the evening, in the Wauregan ballroom. They are open to all members of the club, and to the men of their families, for a fee per course, which is nominal, considering the worth of the lectures.

Next Week at United Congregational

All women of the parish are reminded of the mass meeting for Congregational women to be held at Center church, Hartford, on Tuesday, beginning at 10 a. m. Those who can go are to notify Mrs. Charles T. Bard, Mrs. F W. Lester or Miss Pullen, for assignment, if possible, in the corps of motor cars provided for transportation.

The executive council is to meet at the Community house at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening.

There is to be a church prayer meeting in the church school rooms at 7:30 on Thursday evening.

MARKET STAGED IMPRESSIVE RALLY AFTER MARKING UP OF CALL MONEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment characterized today's stock market, which staged an impressive rally after call money had been marked up from 6 to 8 per cent. Final quotations were irregular, but disclosed a large assortment of substantial gains in some of the high priced industrials and specialties. Total sales fell below the 4,000,000 share mark for the first time this week.

Prices started upward at the opening on the large volume of overnight buying orders attracted by the unexpectedly small increase of $54,000,000 in brokers' loans and the sharp drop in federal reserve bank rediscounts. Calling of $30,000,000 in bank loans, which quickly sent the call money rate from 6 to 7 per cent., started a wave of selling which wiped out many of the early gains and sent a number of issues 2 to 7 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Trading showed a tendency to turn dull on the decline. Despite rather heavy liquidation by frightened investors and speculators who had been advised by commission houses to take profits, pools then stepped into the market and began to buy stocks in large volume, forcing 'shorts" in several of the "blue chip" issues to run to cover, and bringing many small speculators back into the market. The rally continued through the close despite the further advance in call money to 8 per cent. in the last hour of trading.

The calling of loans today was attributed to the preparation of banks to meet the unusually heavy quarterly disbursements next week. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

Chrysler assumed the leadership of the upward movement today by soaring more than 7 points to a new high record at 118 1-2 on a turnover of 325,000 shares. General Motors dropped from 212 1-8 to 207 5-8 and snapped back to 211, up 1 point net. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally lower at 157 7-8 after having fluctuated between 156 5-8 and 159 1-2.

A. M. Byers was another spectacular performer, soaring 13 1-2 points to a new high record at 138 1-2 on buying influenced by the successful manufacture of wrought iron pipe under a new process. Allied Chemical, Atlantic Refining, Case Threshing, General Ice Cream, Gillette Safety Razor, Montgomery Ward and Radio all closed 3 3-4 to 7 3-4 points higher. New high records for the year were established by Coty, Johns Manville, Elsenlohr, First National Stores, McCrory preferred and Paramount Lasky.

Wright Aeronautical broke from an early high of 168 1-2 to 156 1-8 and re bounded to 164 1-4, up 3-4 net. Curtiss fell from 141 1-2 to 135 1-4 and rallied to 138 1-2, up 1-4. Adams Express broke 15 points and recovered 5 and Allis Chalmers, International Harvester, Midland Steel Products preferred, Motor Products, National Radiator preferred, Outlet Co., and Rossia Insurance showed net losses of 4 points or more.

Except for the publication of the Wall Street Mercantile Review, which stressed the impetus given to retail trade by the colder weather, there was little in the day's business developments to influence the price movement.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat prices showed little change. Cotton dropped $1 or more a bale on week-end profit taking. Coffee and sugar showed little change.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits with sterling cables quoted around $4.85.

The average call money renewal rate this month will run about 7 1-4 per cent, the highest in years. This compares with 6.75 per cent. in August and 3.77 per cent. in September, 1927.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—The bond market was uneasy today under shifting credit conditions. Firmness of prices in early trading, encouraged by heaviness in the afternoon when the call money rate went to 8 per cent. and banks called upwards of $30,000,000 in loans. Time money remained above the 7 per cent. level. Total sales were less than $9,000,000. Price trends were irregular throughout the day, with rails as a group holding steady when the general list eased off.

Utilities, which have been strong of late, apparently encountered profit-taking. Brooklyn Union Gas 5 1-2s slid down 11 points, Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s more than a point and others showed fractional losses. Coppers were pressed for sale, Anaconda 7s closing nearly 4 points lower and Andes 7s yielding a point.

Dodge Brothers 6s, Pressed Steel Car 5s, Murray Body 6 1-2s and Humble Oil 5s were among the few industrials which gained in the face of declines of a point or more by Barnsdall 6s with warrants, Goodyear Tire 5s, United Drug of Delaware 5s, Liquid Carbonic 6s and National Radiator 6 1-2s.

St. Paul 5s of 2000 were among the few railroad liens to close lower. Louisville & Nashville 4 1-2s, Southern Railway (Memphis division) 5s, and Mobile & Birmingham 4s made net gains of 1 to 4 points. Mobile & Ohio 4 1-2s, New Haven 4 1-2s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s and Hudson & Manhattan 5s improved fractionally.

The foreign list was irregular and without features. U. S. government obligations showed some improvement, especially among the treasury certificates.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Sept. 26 were $6,772,497.97; expenditures $22,829,914.95; balance $248,478,140.93.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—The curb market was markedly irregular today, as nearly a dozen issues were bid up to new high levels in buying largely on individual developments, while profit taking and week end adjustments sent a large portion of the list lower. A rise in the call money rate from 6 to 8 per cent. was a factor in the selling.

Bancitaly rose nearly 7 points to 132 on the distribution of Bank of America stock, and Columbia Graphophone more than 6 points to a new top at 85 1-2 in sympathy with recent strength on the London market. Hygrade Food rose nearly 6 points to a new peak at 49 3-8 in buying inspired by reports of increased earnings. Libbey Owens jumped more than 6 points to a new top at 146 1-2 and Checker Cab, Franklin Manufacturing ad U. S. Asbestos extended their gains in smaller advances.

Sparks Withington encountered heavy realizing after its recent advance and sold down 8 points. Wayne Pump sold down to about 4 points under yesterday's close after touching a new top at 52 1-8, and Marion Steam Shovel extended its gain only to encounter selling pressure later. American Rolling Mill also yielded a fraction in profit taking. Bliss, Caterpillar Tractor, Firestone Tire, Hart Parr, Niles Bement Pond, U. S. Gypsum and others sank 2 to 4 points. Chain Stores generally declined, Safeway and Sanitary 15 and 12 points. Mines were less active but some improved. Newmont and Phelps Dodge made 3 point gains, while Hudson Bay improved fractionally. SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

"When the Paper Doesn't Come

My father says the paper he reads ain't put up right;
He finds a lot of fault, too, he does,
persuin' it all night;
He says there ain't a single thing to it worth to read,
And that it doesn't print the kind of stuff the people need;
He tosses it aside and says it's strictly on the bum,
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

He reads about the weddin's and he snorts like all get out;
He reads the social doin's with a most derisive shout.
He says they make the papers for the women folks alone;
He'll read about the parties and he'll fume and fret and groan;
He says of information, it doesn't have a crumb.
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

He's the first one to grab it and he reads it plumb clean through.
He doesn't miss an item, or want ad—
that is true;
He says they don't know what we want, the darn newspaper guys;
"I'm going to take a day some time and go and put 'em wise;
Sometimes it seems as though they must be deaf and blind and dumb."
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

The Bridge-Builder

An old man, going a lone highway,
Came at evening, cold and gray,
To a chasm, vast and deep and wide.
The old man crossed in the twilight dim.
The sullen stream had no fear for him;
But he turned when safe on the other side
And built a bridge to span the tide.
"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,
"You are wasting your strength with building here:
Your journey will end with the ending day,
You never again will pass this way:
You've crossed the chasm deep and wide:
Why build you this bridge at even-tide?"

"Good friend, in the path I have come," he said,
"There followeth after me today,
A youth whose feet must pass this way:
This chasm that has been naught to me,
To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be:
He, too, must cross in the twilight
dim—
Good friend, I am building the bridge for him!"

Swellitis

Somebody said he'd done it well,
And presto! his head began to swell;
Bigger and bigger the poor thing grew—
A wonder it didn't split in two.
In size a balloon could scarcely match
it;
He needed a fishing pole to scratch it—
But six and a half was the size of his hat.
And it rattled around on his head at that!

"Good work," somebody chanced to say,
And his chest swelled as big as a load of hay.
About himself, like a rooster, he crow-
ed;
Of his wonderful work he bragged and blowed.
He marched around with a peacock
strut;
Gigantic to him was the figure he cut;—
But he wore a very small-sized suit,
And loosely it hung on him, to boot!

HE was the chap who made things hum!
HE was the drumstick and the drum!
HE was the shirt bosom and the starch!
HE was the keystone in the arch!
HE was the axis of the earth!
Nothing existed before his birth!
But when he was off from work a day
Nobody knew that he was away!

This is a fact that is sad to tell;
It's the empty head that is bound to swell;
It's the lightweight fellow who soars to the skies,
And bursts like a bubble before your eyes.
A big man is bumbled by honest praise,
And tries to think of all the ways
To improve his work and do it well;—
But a little man starts of himself to yell!

Edward Gray

Sweet Emma Moreland of yonder town
Met me walking on yonder way.
"And have you lost your heart?" she said;
"And are you married yet, Edward Gray?"

Sweet Emma Moreland spoke to me:
Bitterly weeping I turn'd away:
"Sweet Emma Moreland, love no more
Can touch the heart of Edward
Gray.

'Ellen Adair she loved me well Against her father's and mother's will:
To-day I sat for an hour and wept
By Ellen's grave, on the windy hill.

"Sly she was, and I thought her cold;
Thought her proud, and fled over
the sea.
Filled I was with folly and spite.
When Ellen Adair was dying for me.

"Cruel, cruel the words I said!
Cruelly came they back today:
'You're too slight and fickle,' I said,
'To trouble the heart of Edward
Gray.'

'There I put my face in the grass—
Whisper'd, Listen to my despair:
I repent me of all I did:
Speak a little, Ellen Adair!'

'Then I took a pencil, and wrote
On the moss-y stone, as I lay:

'Here lies the body of Ellen Adair;
And here the heart of Edward
Gray.'

'Love may come, and love may go,
And fly like a bird from tree to tree:
But I will love no more, no more,
Till Ellen Adair comes back to me.'

'Bitterly I wept over the stone:
Bitterly weeping I turned away:
There lies the body of Ellen Adair!
And there the heart of Edward
Gray!'

Discretion

If I should say just
What I think of you,
I wonder how much flattered
You would be?
I wonder how much flattered
I should feel
If you should say just
What you think of me?

We pay each other
Many compliments,
Always polite, as we Meet, day by day.
How would it be
If both of us should know
The things both of us think,
But never say?

Perhaps it's just as well
That we should hide
Our secret thoughts.
As well bred people do,
And I know not just
What you think of me,
And you not know
Just what I think of you.

The Lake of the Dismal Swamp

They made her a grave too cold and damp
For a soul so warm and true:
And she's gone to the Lake of the Dismal Swamp,
Where, all night long, by a firefly lamp,
She paddles her white canoe.

And her firefly lamp I soon shall see,
And her paddle I soon shall hear:
Long and loving our life shall be,
And I'll hide the maid in a cypress
tree,
When the footstep of Death is near.

Away to the Dismal Swamp he speeds:
His path was ragged and sore—
Through tangled jungles, beds of reeds,
Through many a fen where the serpent feeds
And man never trod before.

And when on the earth he sank to sleep,
If slumber his eyelids knew,
He lay where the deadly vine doth weep
Its venomous tear, and nightly steep,
The flesh with blistering dew.

And near him the she-wolf stirred the brake,
And the copper-snake breathed in his ear;
Till, starting, he cried, from his dream awake,
"O, when shall I see the dusky lake,
And the white canoe of my dear?"

He saw the lake, and a meteor bright
Quick over its surface played;
"Welcome," he said, "my dear one's light,"
And the dim shore echoed, for many a night,
The name of the death-cold maid.

Till he hollowed a boat of the birchen bark,
Which carried him off from shore;
Far, far he followed the meteor spark;
The wind was high, and the clouds were dark,
And the boat returned no more.

But oft, from the Indian hunter's camp,
This lover and maid so true
Are seen, at the hour of midnight
damp,
To cross the lake by a firefly lamp,
And paddle their white canoe.

SHORTER LETTERS AND MORE LETTERS

Dear Members and Editor: I think, like Ann Tenna, that it seems to me that shorter letters would give more courage to the ones that cannot compose letters so well. I think if the letters were limited to a given number of words, it would be much better. And then maybe some of the folks that think they cannot compete with many of the regulars, will not feel so backward about it. Let others voice their ideas. All of the letters are very interesting, the long ones and the short ones. I read them all. I enjoyed the one week before last, that QUID NUNC sent in. I looked for the rest of it, but did not see it in this last week. I hope to see more of it, as it was very interesting.

I am sending in a few limericks that I think are good.

There once was a lady from Tiger
Who smiled as she rode on a tiger;
They came back from the ride
With the lady inside
And the smile on the face of the tiger.

There was once a fellow named Crane
Who went out to fish in the rain;
He said, "If they bite
I will stay here all night."
For he carried his "bait" in a cane.

I am very fond of reading old epitaphs. I have quite a collection. Will some of the members send some in?

Best wishes to all.

Oct. 3—Club No. 5 meets in Buckingham Memorial.

TWO WEEKS IN THE "LAND OF THE SKY" CONTINUED

Mr. Editor and Social Corner Readers: We were up at the first dawn of light, hoping to see the shortening shadows fall back to the base of the mountains as the sun came up over the peak of the smokies. We were disappointed for the mountains were enwraped in the illusory mist, always touching the evasive clouds. The peaks of the Great Smoky mountains are like some ideal that has bartered for the isolations of a higher atmosphere the values of a warm valley below.

Upon the first sight of our guide we hear this morning salutation, "I reckon ye air up afore the mist clares the top of the old bald. No use er startin out while ye can't see whar ye air goin."

Soon breakfast was announced and we were asked to sample some of Mr. Kid's 8 years old, corn whisky which helped to sharpen our appetites for a substantial breakfast of bacon, eggs, hot corn bread, soda biscuits with honey washed down with very black coffee.

"I reckon the fog will burn off jist as soon as the sun peeks through yender gap. It ll be time to start then I rekon."

We were at an elevation of 2,000 feet, and soon the bank of fog began to rise, so we could see the valley below us with its fields of growing crops, mostly corn for the distiller. The fog is very white, and looks like a heavy steam arising from a monstrous cauldron, not in one solid sheet, but in puffs here and there as if it came from several scattered kettles. In a few minutes our guide came with the horses from the stable.

"I rekon hit air time tew start, as afore we git our packs together the peak of old bald will be er lookin' at us."

He commenced to examine each horse's feet to see if their shoes were tight and well corked. Then he tightened up each saddle girth. "Hit air safer so the saddles won't turn, an yeou won't find yourself bottom side up, as hit wor." The saddles for mountain climbing are made high in front and back, least you become unseated, as you ascend or descent the most precipitous places.

All things adjusted, we made a start following a wagon road for several miles, twisting and turning at various angles to escape steep and long ascents, going many miles to gain a rise of a 1,000 feet.

At noon we had reached an elevation of 4,000 feet by the barometer and within sight of the cabin of one Robert Perkins, a noted moonshiner. As we emerged from behind a high ledge into an opening, we see him standin in the cabin door with his trusty rifle in hand and hear, "Stop thar, who mount ye be?" Our guide gives him some sign and he shouts, "All right Jim, drive in, light an hitch. Who mount ye be gidin neow into our mountings?" "These air frum the north and air mighty pert fellers. Jim Luitrell sent 'em fur me tew show 'em our mountings. This air Bob Perkins men."

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Perkins: fine view you have from here." "Yes I rekon hit air."

After this formal introduction, our names are given to Perkins. "Can ye give us a smack tew eat? We hain't got nothin', only fur supper in case we air caught on old Gregory Bald in a mist, otherwise I rekon ye can keep we'uns and horses tew nite, should we'uns want."

"Yes Jim we can put you'uns up in good shape, that ye know Jim. I never yit turned ye out to hear the howlin' of the pesky wolfs, and have yer horses scart outer their wits, With that old she bar and cubs, er prowlin' round to know whether yer bundles have honey er sugar; as I don't want her stirr shute her as her cubs furnish us with meat frum time tew time, when the deer don't cum up into the clarin'."

"Say Jerimah, hain't ye got dinner about ready fur our company? Jim Trew and fellers frum the north."

"Yes afore shortly them air pa'tridge will be er steaming on the boards. The pone air a browning nicely, so fix yer selfs, and sit and I'll dew my best tew git the coffee er bilin. Shud had milk tew put in tew hit, but that durned old beaster, (cow) kicked hit over just as I let go the last tit."

Apple Jack was served before the meal: we went lightly for a drink, as we were told that we had yet a very rough and steep part of the climbing before we reached the pinnacle.

Dinner over, we cast our eyes over a most delightful scene: for miles we saw the mountains and valleys nestled together, having the appearance of the mighty waves of the ocean.

We stepped out onto an overhanging cliff more than a hundred feet high above the road we came, to view the scene above, around and below. Our eyes feasted on a most inspiring scene. Far away and across Cades cove we looked down upon the Chilhowiee and smaller mountains, hamlets of cabins and the occasional smoke, as it puffed up from some moonshiners place of business.

The horses had eaten their corn; we adjusted our saddles, put an extra hitch around our freight and we were soon on our way. As we waved our hands to our mountain friends, we heard some one shout, "Say Jim, keep well tew the right after leaving the clarin5, fur the storm tother nite made a big gully fur morne 10 feet deep jist to the end uv the road." Yes, and here was the end of the road, and the Perkins cabin was the last on it.

From here we take the bridle path, winding about in a serpentine manner, single file most of the way. Now we make almost a perpendicular ascent near the edge of a high cliff, then again for a few rods on almost level ground. We stop occasionally for the horses to take breath and for us to look back below into what seemed an almost bottomless pit, and to take many long drawn breaths of the rarified mountain air. The trees of this elevation become stunted and more angular. Soon we pass all larger growth, and the crooked rhododendron and mountain laurel predominate; soon they disappear. We are now 5,000 feet above the sea, and still going up. Shelly rocks over which the horses' hoofs clatter, are the paving over which we go. Hard footing on this; now we strike a smooth ledge, worn as if polished by the sliding of other stones over it. The horses creep along as if on ice. If our saddles keep their place we will soon be at the top of Gregory Bald. Up again like a steep roof, we zig zag here and there to take the advantage of the rocky steep. Bald is the right name, for not a vestage of anything green or alive is to be seen, except as we look down, down upon the scene below. We are now 5,540 feet up and only 320 feet below the crest of Gregory Bald, but it will be come time before we reach the pinnacle. The way becomes less steep, but to avoid ledges and cliffs we must detour, as no path has been blazed to shorten the distance, on account of the treachery of the crumbling rock. At last we rest on top of the bald summit of the mountain and on an irregular plateau of perhaps 100 feet across either way.

By the guide's barometer, we are 5,860 feet above the wash of the tide, and more than 5,000 feet above the valley below.

Here we stand on the dividing line between Tennessee and North Carolina, with one foot in Tennessee and North Carolina, with one foot in Tennessee and the other in the "old North state," and in the heart of the great Appalachian chain of mountains from whose tops we look with reverential fear upon the sublime works of the Creator.

QUID NUNC

A FINE FLOWER SHOW

Dear Social Cornerites: It is cold this morning but I am glad that the frost held off until after our flower show. It was the finest I ever saw and we certainly did have a wonderful time. There were all colors and kinds.

Mrs. Danielson had 100 different ones and they were very nice.

One dear old lady of 82 dug up the ground, set out her rahlias and attended to them all herself and we much give her credit for her wonderful display, both for her dahlias and potted plants, but the prettiest one for me were her beautiful tea roses.

Next came C. Smith's grand display. He is a man of 80 but far younger in appearance than his years. His flowers were beautiful. He had some rare and costly ones and certainly worked hard over them all summer but the rain hurt them some.

A. Patten had a cotton plant in bloom and potted palms that were fine. He also had an attractive display of mounted butterflies and oil paintings. There was a beautiful one of Yellowstone park. Many others contributed much to the success of the show.

The ladies had some beautiful fancy work for sale and the little girls had some of their own, and it was fine.

Mr. Smith was in charge of this whole display and he knows how to do things up in good shape. Deacon Claud Moran had charge of the vegetables and he knows how to arrange them and they made a good showing. The fine chowder was the work of Deacon Brooks and his son, Harold. It was pronounced perfect.

Some one wrote last week about the old fashioned husking bees. Next week I'll tell you of one I went to many years ago and I never forgot it.

GINGERBREAD.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: It doesnt seem as though the summer has gone, and fall is here once more with its "fairs" and short days. Soon the trees will put forth their foliage of many colors and we won't miss the time till we are visited by "Jack Frost"; then he will lay low all our beautiful flowers.

As we use quite a little gingerbread at our home, I wish to tell the sisters about it. If gingerbread is not already a favorite in your family, try it and make it so. Gingerbread is easy to make and easy to eat. It is inexpensive and healthful. It satisfies the desire for dessert without overloading the stomach with over-rich pastry. Use more molasses we are often told. Americans use far too much sugar, then suffer the consequences in diseases of the stomach and kidneys. Here is the recipe my mother always used, and it is an old fashioned one, and we think it the best ever. In a warm mixing bowl place one-half cup of any kind of shortening. I always use butter when I have it plentiful—lard is equally as good. One cup of brown sugar, two eggs, one-half cup of good molasses, one teaspoon each ginger and cinnamon (I don't use quite as much, but this is the called for amount) and one cup of flour. Beat very hard for a couple of minutes, using a slotted spoon, or a Dover eggbeater. Add one more cup of flour, sifted, with one teaspoon of soda and a little salt; beat again for one minute. This will be rather stiff at first. Last add one-half cup of boiling water and beat again. The final batter should be a little thinner. Bake in a moderate oven. The cake is very light, tender and delicious. This gingerbread may be served warm, or cold. (I like it cold best), with a nice mild cheese and make you forget the absence of pie or pudding for dessert. May also be served cold with ice cream. It is very good used with the sauce I make for suet pudding and delicious when served with whipped cream.

Variety in baking also makes a welcome change. Cover the bottom of the baking with sliced tart apples before pouring in the batter if the gingerbread is to be used warm, (not so good when used cold). You can also split marshmallows and drop on top of the batter just before placing it in the oven. It can also be baked in two pans if desired and the layers put together with strawberry jam or orange marmalade. It also makes a nice strawberry shortcake if fresh berries are used. Topped off with whipped cream will give it the finishing touch.

All good wishes to sick and shut-in sisters, and hope they are feeling better now, the air is so much clearer and cooler.

INDICATIONS OF WINTER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Once again we are to meet in the Buckingham for our social time. Our summer is over and the cold winter will soon be here. Jack Frost has already shown us what he intends to do.

His cold breath came near and near, time he will surely bite harder. There was not much harm done here, only the tops of some of my dahlias were nipped a little. We have been having some very fine weather for the past week or so. I hope the rest of this week will be fine for our fair. It seems too bad to have bad weather when so many have labored to have the fair a success. I do not know as I shall go, as I am very busy, but hope others can who enjoy going and meeting old time friends.

Much success and prosperity for all the clubs for the coming year. Best wishes to all.

HARVESTING

Dear Corner Editor and Friends: The summer has gone and the fall harvesting is here once more. I am trying to do my share and hope the frost will hold off until we can get a't the crops in. The summer has been very neet for growing things, but the grass surely does grow aplenty. It is hard work now but when the snow banks come we can rest. Good luck to all is the wish of

FALL HOUSECLEANING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I must not neglect the Corner so I am sending in a short letter. Summer is gone and fall housecleaning is here again. My, don't hubby like these balmy days! He says he won't know where he is going to sleep, but I told him if the ber was down the floor would hold him.

Now is the time to take off slips for winter blooming plants. Kind regards to all.

KITTY LOU'S SPONGE CAKE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Do you realize that September is on the wane? Its changes in the atmosphere suggest our changes in living from electric fans to electric heaters, and our tastes also suffer changes, for where we preferred ice cream we are looking now for hot coffee, and in place of finding us on the piazza you will find us seated in the snug-minded kitchen!

I have had quite a few requests for my sponge cake recipe. Of course, much depends on the baking, and as for sponge cake the use of a heat-regulated oven or a portable oven thermometer solves this problem. By the use of one or the other, it is possible to heat the oven to the desired temperature and to maintain this temperature throughout the entire baking period.

I have my favorite recipe which is easily made and is always light and fluffy and delectable in texture. To make the cake, measure and combine 1 1-4 cups of sugar an done cup of water. Place over a slow heat, and stir until the suger is dissolved. Then continue simmering, without stirring, until the syrup reaches 238 degrees F. or threads when tested with a fork. Meanwhile separate the yolks and whites of six eggs. Beat the egg-whites until they are stiff enough to hold their shape when the bowl is inverted. When the syrup has reached the desired teemperature, pour it over the beaten egg-whites very gradually, beating constantly. Continue beating until the mixture is quite cool. Next beat the six egg-yolks until they are thick and lemon-colored and to them add 1-2 teaspoon of vanilla. Beat well, then fold in the egg-white mixture thoroughly. As the next step is to measure the flour, use one cup of pastry flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt and one teaspoon of cream tartar. Fold the flour mixture into the egg mixture and continue folding both mixtures until they are thoroughly combined. Grease a loaf cake pan very light, dredge with flour, and be sure there is no superfluous cake flour left in the pan. Place in oven which has been heated to 320 degrees F. and bake for one hour at this constant temperature. Never examine the cake until the baking period is over. At the end of the baking period instead of removing the sponge cake from the pan immediately, turn it upside down on a cake cooler, which allows a circulation of air under the cake. Allow the cake to remain in this position until it has shrunken sufficiently from the cake pan and then lift off the pan. Just sift suger over the top.

Often one would like a smaller cake. Separate two eggs and beat the yolks until light, add gradually 1-2 cup sifted sugar and 1-8 teaspoon of cream of tartar dissolved in one teaspoon of cold water. Beat again until very light, add the grated rind of 1-4 of a lemon or orange. Meanwhile measure and sift 1-2 cup of pastry flour; beat the two egg-whites until stiff so that the bowl can be inverted; add the sifted flour and beaten egg-whites alternately to the egg-yolk mixture. Pour into a lightly greased and floured pan and bake at 340 degrees F. for 40 minutes.

Ann Tenna: So glad you made me awaken to the fact that my letters were too long. Hereafter one recipe, if you will promise to get out all the other short letters you spoke or wrote about.

KITTY LOU.

JENNIE ANSWERS QUESTION

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: At this time I will try to answer the question that A Reader has assigned to me: "Why do men laugh at woman's lack of business ability, and yet sneer or rather look down on the woman who shows she has some?" First of all, "there are many men of many minds, like birds of many kinds." The women of today are proving their business ability by the men (who can see, unselfishly, and without conceit) that employ their capable services and are not the ones who scorn or laugh at her success.

The alert business man realizes that many women prove their efficiency in responsibility and leadership and are upheld in their long continued positions. This class of men sustain and do not ignore a woman's true worth. This is not to say that all women have the ability as successful business managers. Perhaps this may be the class that the conceited man may frown upon. On the other hand, there are many men who lack ability in exercising even good judgment, much less financial leadership. There are the jealous men who do observe that some women in the business world are equal to themselves, but prefer first place, because they are men, and selfish. No honest, conscientious man will scorn a reliable, trustworthy, capable woman just because she is a woman. To illustrate my point of "many men of many minds," also which might fit in with the subject given me, I refer to an amusing story I heard not long ago. There were three men standing on a street corner, discussing domestic problems. First man said: "My wife and I are so congenial we agree in everything; we call ourselves as one." The second man said: "Not so in my house; me wife has her ideas, I have mines; she does as she pleases, and I do the same. We count ourselves as two." It was the third man's turn to speak, so he briefly contributed: "Well, my wife and I count ten." "How's that?" exclaimed the other two in great surprise. "Why, she's one (1) and I'm nothing (0)."

This subject could be carried much further, and has many branches. It has generally become considered that the man, who is husband and father is the head of the household, also the wife and mother, holds her important place in the home; from other viewpoints, I believe in the justice of equal rights, on a financial basis.

That taxation without representation has been eliminated goes to show the progress of our day and country. It appeals to me the duty of every eligible woman of age to be made a voterand have a voice in the decision which will soon be presented to us.

Best wishes to all.

JENNIE (Club No. 1).

AUNT SARAH RESPONDS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I think it time I sent in a letter, as I am afraid my name will be crossed out.

Aunty No. 1: Was sorry could not go to your picnic. Expected to until the night before. I haven't been to any of the corner picnics this summer.

I enjoy reading about the different topics I have had some lovely rides this summer. I go to Hartford often. Went to Elizabeth park when the roses were in bloom; also went two weeks ago. The late flowers are wonderful.

Sunday I went down through Franklin and Norwich to New London, back the Hartford road to Colchester, then a cross road home. So many pretty fall flowers were along the road to enjoy; on some of the trees the leaves were red and golden. Autumn is such a pretty season.

Mary Frances: Do you still live in house back of church? I always look that way and think what you told me.

Nemo: I never saw the flax present you wrote about but I have some flax my grandmother raised to make her household linen which is over 100 years old. Did you see any of the flax? I also have a woolen sheet and a blue and white bedspread she carded and spun, colored the wool and wove, and it is over 100 years old.

I wonder how many have one of the old samplers our grandmothers worked?

I have one with the names and births, also deaths, of the family. Some of the dates of birth are 1789, 1802, 1807. Lovely flowers are worked around the sampler.

Kitty Lou: I enjoy your letters very much.

Theoda: I often go by your home but never have seen anyone out.

Golden Glow: How are you? Often think of you.

With best wishes for the Corner.

AUNT SARAH (Club No. 5).

A VISIT TO STORRS

To the Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: It is some time since I have written, so as I have something to write about I am going to try to write something interesting.

I took a trip the other day which I enjoyed very much. After passing through Willimantic and Mansfield, up Spring hill, we arrived at Storrs, where the college is situated. There are nice buildings there, but this time the flowers were very attractive; quantities of gladiolus of all colors, pink, yellow, red, dark blue or purple, and such large blossoms, they were beautiful. Then we went to the dahlias, some as large as saucers, and beautiful, perfect blossoms, brilliant colors, white, pink, various shades of red from bright red to garnet so dark they were almost black, and such lovely shades of yellow! I do not know the varieties, but they were the most beautiful dahlias I ever saw.

There were zinnias of all shades of red and pink, quantities of them, roses both budded and in bloom, foliage plants, dark red and red centers with light edges. One bed had plants arranged so they formed the letters C. A. C. One especially odd bed was blue. I do not know the name of the flower. Some beds were edged with cigar plant, which was very pretty. There is a small artificial pond with pond lilies, white, pink and blue, with several goldfish darting here and there through the lilies. We were granted permission to go through the greenhouse, so after looking at the beds of asters, geraniums and others we went to the greenhouse, where we saw beds where there were slips just started; different varieties of ferns and others. I did not know what they were. Some rooms were filled with blossoms—glaxanias with such delicate colors, cactus of all varieties, begonias of all colors and many flowers of which I did not know the names. One peculiar leafed plant, green edged with red, center looking almost as if painted. Water hyacinth which grows in water, has a lovely blossom, and one plant I am sure was a century plant. One room was filled with chrysanthemums, which of course were not in bloom, besides many blossoms which were lovely in color and formation. It was like a flower show. A short distance from the college is the new church and community house. The church is built of brick and has a weathervane mounted with a rooster; it being locked, we could not go inside, but the community house was open and we went through that. There are two floors. On the first are different rooms suitable for suppers or rest rooms. One had a bookcase of books and a nice kitchen with all the equipment. Upstairs was an auditorium with piano, a stage with curtains, and a smaller room with small chairs looked like a primary Sunday school room. I should have mentioned the fireplaces and big arm chairs downstairs, all making it seem very homelike.

Returning home, I felt I had enjoyed the day very much, and am thankful Connecticut has such a college, and wish more of our boys and girls could attend it.

Hoping this is not too long a letter, I will close.

SISTER BARBAR.

WAYS TO USE APPLES.

Dear Sisters: Apples are with us once more. Try these:

Apple Schmarren: Make a thin batter in proportion, one tablespoon of pastry flour, to two tablespoons of milk, a pinch of salt and a well beaten egg. Slice into this batter one good sized apple. Put into a frying pan one teaspoon of clear lard, heat it and pour in the batter. Fry a nice brown on each side and serve with powdered sugar.

Apples Stuffed with Oatmeal: Prepare oatmeal as usual the day before. Pare and core, making large cavities in the centre of 6 large apples and cook in a liquid made of one quart of water and 1 1-3 cups of sugar and a strip of orange peel. Turn apples frequently to cook evenly. When done lift onto a platted and fill the cavities with oatmeal. Boil down the sugar and water until the consistency of syrup and pour over the filled apples, or serve with sugar and cream. This is the most delicious dish imaginable.

GUESS WHO.

RED ROSE'S BROWNIES

Dear Editor and Sisters: As many have asked for my recipe for brownies, I will take this way as the easiest way of getting it to them:

Brownies: Cream together two eggs, one cup of sugar, 1-2 cup of melted butter and two tablespoons of cocoa or one square of melted chocolate and 1-2 teaspoon of vanilla. Add 1-2 cup of bread flour or one cup of pastry flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder and pinch of salt. Beat well and then stir in 1-2 cup of chopped walnuts. Pour into buttered tins to about 3-8 of an inch thickness and bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes, or until top springs back when depressed with the finger.

If any of the sisters know how to grow a sweet potato in water, will they please put it in the Corner? Then I can see it. I have seen them growing and they are very pretty and I thought I would like to have one, as they are very pretty in the winter months.

RED ROSE.

TO CLEAN A BREAD BOX

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: Just a few lines this beautiful morning. It looks and feels like fall and, best of all, the sun shines. I have been potting a few of my choicest plants, for fear of Jack Frost, who is scheduled to appear about this time every year. A few more days and we go back to the good old standard time.

I mustn't forget to thank Nanna for remembering me on my recent birthday; also Aries, L. T. H., Martha Veazie, Tate and Prinit. I had a pleasant talk with Last Rose of Summer this morning. Glad to know she is feeling much better.

Aries: I am going to write you a letter soon. Some way I miss your letters and didn't know you had injured your arm.

To clean the bread box thoroughly about half a cup of soda ash, commonly called sal-soda, is a good agent to use. A good way is to take one pound of soda ash and one quart of water. Allow it to boil until the soda is dissolved. Let it cool and bottle so that it can be kept constantly on hand for cleaning the bread box. The box should be kept in a dry, well ventilated place where a good supply of dry air may pass around it.

ANN TENNA.

LONGER EVENINGS SHOULD MEAN MORE LETTERS.

Dear Social Corner Members: The maple trees are putting on their fall dress of golden colors, just to remind us there is another New England winter on the way. It will also bring long evenings, a good time for Corner members to write letters on many topics. Those who have been in California and Florida can see a great change in the weather to New England during the past summer. At one time it was like going to bed in the valley and waking up in the mountains.

Nonesopretty: While you did not see me in the Corner I never miss reading all the letters from the Corner members. Was sorry the base drum annoyed you while attending the fiddlers' convention at Clayville, R. I.

Balsam Fir, Papa's Boy and Crimson Rambler: Your letters and cards have been received. Thanks.

Sympathy to all who are shut in these nice fall days.

A USE FOR EVERYTHING.

Folks of our Social Corner: I am still here, but just tattling about nothing.

A nice lady gave me a box of most everything including silk pieces and yarn, also five long white aprons with handmade lace on the bottom and some fine embroidery. Cutting off the strings and band I made five pillow cases by overcasting the two outer edges together and closing the plain end. I washed them and put a very little starch in the last water. Now I put the spread over the night pillows and the new pillows and cases on the top, but they come off nights. I am still old, and foolish but have some ideas and vanity dies hard. It is a tough element to kill.

I am feeling fine just now as I had a dandy dinner. It was a storeroom cleaner stew. I cubed what work was left in boiled dinner kettle and put in two slices of raw work, three medium onions, three carrots, small, cut lengthwise, quart of cubed raw potatoes, one green pepper with seeds taken out and cut fine two large ripe tomatoes with most of the seeds removed. Then for the last seven minutes I scored and cut from the cob big evergreen corn.

These last few days I am satisfied for I've had renewed life and vim. I am wearing a pin of our next president. No, I won't tell. I have voted several years and I get one more vote. Ladies and gentlemen, do your duty.

LAVENDER'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dear Social Cornerites: Was as disappointed when I read Saturday's Bulletin and found no letter telling of Lavender's birthday party. I was so pleased I could go. The morning was not very pleasant, but as we were to be entertained in a hall, why rain would not matter.

My daughter carried me up. When we drove up to the place Lavender was seated on the veranda with about twenty of the sisters. They were chatting and having a sociable time.

Lavender greeted us with that wonderful smile of hers and extended the hand of good fellowship.

She looked darling. Her gown was soft lavender embroidered with purple. She was both regal and gentle. The veranda was decorated with lavender and white baskets, tied with yellow and lavender bows.

Then we entered the hall to remove our wraps. Really, the place was a bower of beauty. Flowers and green decorated the side walls, while huge bouquets were on the tables. There were gladiolus, asters, dahlias, bachelor buttons, baltonias, purple daisies and many other flowers.

They were in gold and lavender bowls, and the tables were all set in spotless white.

At one table was the birthday cake. It was the largest I have ever seen. The icing was yellow and the wording in lavender.

Everything that the loving hands of her daughter Sadie could possibly do had been done.

We then took our seats on the veranda and had the pleasure of seeing the guests arrive. They came by auto, on foot and in carriages.

Soon a large auto with a great bunch of flowers and yellow bow drove up, and a chauffeur in livery got out and opened the door. A lady and gentleman alighted, who proved to be Lavender's son and wife of Hartford. Later her youngest daughter and husband arrived; also another son. How happy their mother was to have them all with her.

Then the dinner bell rang and we marched into the dining room. I was fortunate in being seated at the birthday table. Rev. Mr. Pearce asked the blessing, and then we were served the most delicious succotash (Altars furnished it), and also salads, relishes, all kinds of cakes and pies and sandwiches. Then the birthday cake candles were lighted. Soon the cake was cut and served. Great dishes of candy were also passed to each one.

Then Lavender, seated in an easy chair, and with her dear family in a circle about her, opened her gifts, which were many and varied. She also received $52 in money.

Her oldest son, Charles (who I understand is a newspaper and advertising man) was called on to make a few remarks. He spoke of his mother as having been, and still is, a wonderful mother, said she always had that smile on her face and had always been so good to all of her family.

At times his emotion almost overcame him, and I am sure we all felt a thickness in our own throats and a dimness in our eyes as he was speaking.

Truly, I thought that Bible verse most fitting: "Her children shall rise up and call her blessed."

Rev. Mr. Pearce then spoke and I know his remarks were amusing, as all laughed heartily as what was said.

Little Sister also drew many smiles with her recitation. Many others also spoke. As I am hard of hearing, I cannot tell what was said.

All too soon came the time to say good-bye, and what certainly was a day to be long remembered was over and Lavender's 80th birthday had become history.

We were also fortunate in having met E. C. Peck of "Shipmuck Trail series" at the party. He was very entertaining and pleasant.

Bay State very kindly brought us home in her car, a sisterly act that was greatly appreciated.

Alfara, Tuny Ann, Too Late, Effie M., Wisteria, White Face, and others helped with the dinner and entertainment, and we extend them our sincere appreciation and thanks.

One of the ladies at the camp ground cut all the flowers in her garden and gave them to help with the decorations.

LENTILS

Dear Readers of the Corner: A long time ago Sheila Hibber had a Sunday school teacher who told her that the "mess of pottage" for which Esau sold his birthright was a dish of lentils. I do not know whether this is common knowledge among Sunday school teachers or whether that one had some inside facts at her disposal, but that settled lentils for her, and Esau, too, for that matter, until she was in France in 1917 and ate lentils about seven times a week, conservatively speaking.

Did you ever eat lentil soup? Did you ever eat lentils a la maitre d'hotel? I thought not! Well, until you have, don't judge Esau too harshly as a poor business man. I have no idea what the birthright in question was, but if the "pottage" was lentil soup, then the other man had a perfectly sound talking proposition right there, even though lentils are but 15 cents a pound—and a pound goes a long way.

Here is the recipe for that tasty soup. It is very appetizing:

Lentil Soup: Two cups of lentils, two quarts of beef stock, two ounces of raw ham, two small young carrots, one onion two branches of parsley, one-half of a bay leaf, one branch of celery, one-half cup of rich cream, one teaspoon of sugar, salt and pepper.

Method: Wash and pick over the lentils, let soak over night, drain and put them in saucepan with stock, ham, carrots, onions, celery, bay leaf, parsley, salt and pepper. Simmer for two hours, remove the ham and vegetables, press the lentils through a sieve, put back on stove with cream, sugar, salt and pepper. Heat to the boiling point and serve hot.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL RENEWS LEASE OF FERRY TO SHEEHAN AND GRANDALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28—The city council this evening voted to lease the ferry between New London and Groton to Sheehan and Crandall, who have operated the boat during the past year, at a rental of $6,000. The proposal to grant the lease created discussion, with the result that there was one vote against the lease, that vote coming from Councilor Twomey. Mayor May would not attend the meeting as he refused to issue the call. On a motion to grant the lease, Councilor Twomey spoke in opposition to entering into such an arrangement as has existed. He favored giving the boat to anyone who would agree to operate it without cost to the city for a period of five years, saying that the benefits derived did not compensate for the expense. He also pointed out that the condition that confronted the city was a burden placed upon it by the state and suggested that the members of the general assembly from this city at the coming session in January should seek to gain relief for New London from maintaining the ferry line. He said the state should assume some of the burden it had created.

Councilor Scott recalled that an effort was made by the city to secure the action by the state which Councilor Twomey suggested and said that the state would not assume a portion of the expense of maintaining the ferry. The position taken by the legislature being that the state has provided a bridge for vehicles and pedestrians and that the duty of the state ended there.

Councilor Whiton pointed out that while he held something of the ideas expressed by Councilor Twomey, he believed the ferry should be sustained as it prevented the boosting of fare rates by the bus lines operating between the two towns and gave the users of the ferry an alternative as to coming to or going from the two towns. The matter of the cost of maintenance was one that he had considered, but he concluded that it was a justified expense.

Selectman C. B. Whaley of Groton said Groton wanted the ferry and he believed that New London was benefitted by the operation of the boat. One merchant in New London had spoken to him this evening, as he was on the way to the meeting, to say that he hoped the ferry lease would be continued. Groton was willing, he said, to pay its share of the expense of operating the ferry. He personally was of the opinion that the ferry was a great convenience to people on both sides of the river.

An amendment to the lease was suggested by Councilor Scott—that a clause be inserted in the lease giving the free use of the ferry house on the New London side of the river to yacht clubs during the summer season. With the understanding that such an amendment should be added, the lease was ratified by a vote of Messrs Murray, Scott, Chappell and Whiton. Councilor Twomey voted against it.

The city manager asked for the transfer of about $28,000 from various funds to other funds and the council voted such action, but over the protest of Councilor Twomey, who disapproved of taking money that was appropriated for a specific purpose and using it for any other purpose. The city manager explained that the transfer was made necessary by extraordinary expenditures for various departments and said this was the only way the expense could be met and the budget be balanced. Councilor Twomey asked particularly as to the expenditures at Hillside home and said the money appropriated there for maintenance should not be expended upon the building. He stood alone in objecting to the transfer of the moneys.

A contract for gasoline for the coming year was awarded Charles C. Carroll.

At the next meeting of the board of school visitors the recently elected members, Ezekiel Spitz and Attorney Arthur T. Keefe will be present. At yesterday's meeting it was voted to have the city make up the difference between the pension that Miss Anna M. Sullivan, retired teacher, gets from the state and what she would have received under the city pension system.

The annual lawn party, fostered by the Learned Mission, will be held tomorrow afternoon on the lawn of the Savings Bank of New London in North Bank street. A feature will be an exhibition of handwork done by the children.

A belt on an ice-making machine in Harrigan Bros. market, Bank street was the cause this morning of sending in a still alarm. The Allen Hook and Ladder company answered the call and as soon as entrance was gained to the establishment discovered the cause of the smoke which was noticed rolling through the crack under the front door. The motor had over-heated and the fly-wheel, becoming warm, caused a volume of smoke to be generated from friction with the belt.

William B. Lornos of Niantic was arrested this afternoon by local police as a result of a request from the Noank authorities. The charge is non-support.

Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, a resident of 31 Post Hill place, reported to the police this morning that his automobile had been damaged by a hit-and-run driver. Rev. Mr. Kerridge stated that he parked his auto on Church street and while beside the curb it was struck by an automobile carrying Connecticut markers, N-7847. Inquiry at the state motor vehicle department revealed that the colliding auto is registered in the name of S. M. Perry, U. S. S. Ericcson, state pier.

William B. Waterman, proprietor of the Ford sales station, on Main street, reported to the police last night the theft of a Ford car. Mr. Waterman said that he parked the auto in front of his place of business about 7 o'clock and when he returned there at 11 o'clock the car was missing. The state police at Centerbrook and Groton and the police of Norwich, Westerly, Middletown, New Haven and Hartford were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen auto.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Camilla Horn, the 19 year old German actress who is playing the chief feminine role opposite John Barrymore in the United Artists picture, Tempest, the current attraction at the Broadway theatre, could speak only three words in English when she arrived in Hollywood a few months ago.

Those three words were: "I love you," and she provided many a laugh during her first few days on the United Artists lot by speaking them to everyone to whom she was introduced. Her interpreter explained to strangers that Miss Horn didn't intend that the expression should be taken literally, but that the vivacious young German film star wished Americans to know that she appreciated her opportunity to work in this country.

Camilla took English lessons every spare minute of her time and within a few weeks she was able to converse with Americans. A teacher and her interpreter were with her constantly, and the moment she finished a scene she could be found in a secluded spot on the set studying and reciting her English lessons.

This striking blonde beauty rose from extra girl in the Ufa studios in Berlin to leading woman for Emil Jannings and some of the most popular European stars. Camilla is perhaps best known in America for her role of "Marguerite" in "Faust," opposite Jannings.

John W. Considine, Jr., head of Feature Productions, Inc., largest of the United Artists groups, and supervisor of Tempest, a romantic story of modern Russia, saw her in German pictures and started negotiations which resulted in her being placed under long-term contract by United Artists.

Barrymore considers her one of the greatest finds in years and believes she will prove a sensation in American pictures.

Among the noted supporting players in Temptess, which was directed by Sam Taylor, are Louis Wolheim, George Fawcett, Ullrich Haupt, Boris de Fas, Lena Malena, and Albert Conti.

Breed Theatre.

A laughter romance on which metropolitan reviewers have placed the stamp of approval, "The Play Girl" is to be the feature release to the Breed theatre for three days commencing Sunday. This is a Fox Films production starring the comedienne and popular player, Madge Bellamy, in the title role.

The story deals with the life of a little shop girl tired of work and hungry for beautiful clothes and amusement. Not an uncommon failing, and for that reason an ideal theme for a photodrama. But instead of the usual tragic, sordid picture this theme usually calls forth, Arthur Rosson, the director, has made it a happy romance of youth, starred with laughter.

In the opening sequences Miss Bellamy is shown losing her position as a salesgirl because she exercises her ready wit on her choleric employer, something that has led to disaster in real life more than it has in pictures. Out of a job, she meets a man-about-town who invites her to one of his parties, where she meets another men of an entirely different type.

Very soon she must make her choice between riding in limousines and taking strolls through the park. She chooses the machine and rides to the verge of disaster from which she is saved by the poor man who at last is able to prove to her, as between luxury and dishonor, and a modest home and a husband there can be but one choice for a girl.

Johnny Mack Brown plays the poor man in love with Miss Bellamy, and Walter McGrail, the rich one, also in love, but not sufficiently so to want to marry her. A cast of screen favorites support Miss Bellamy in what is said to be one of the most delightful comedy dramas of the season.

RHODE ISLAND FIDDLER WINS IN OLD TIME CONTEST AT COUNTY FAIR

Prof. Lon G. Wood of Hope, R. I., fiddled his way to the championship of eastern Connecticut and western Rhode Island at the New London County fair here Friday afternoon over 12 competitors in the old-time fiddlers' contest which made a big drawing card for the fair. More than one who stood in the crowd that listened to the gray-haired wielders of the bow was heard to say: "This is what I came to the fair for—to hear these old tunes." And they got their wish, for the old-timers played the old-time tunes, marking the cadence with a tapping foot for Pop Goes the Weasel, Turkey in the Straw, the Irish Washerwoman, Nigger in a Fit, Dixie, Suwanee River, Wearing of the Green and a number of other tunes the names of which were unfamiliar to the present generation.

Some of the fiddlers stood, some sat. Some tucked their fiddles up under their chins, others held them against their chests. Some had piano accompaniment, some went it alone, and one introduced a novelty by a harmonica arrangement which he played at the same time as he fiddled. Some were over 80—all had to be 50 or over—and one was so deaf that he had to have his fiddle tuned for him, before he started. But they all had a good time and so did the audience which grouped outside the entrance of the dance hall from the door of which the old fiddlers played.

Herbert R. Branche, one of the vice-presidents of the fair who had organized the contest, was chairman for the afternoon, introducing the contestants one after the other with a few apt words. The judges were Prof. Ed Tinkham of Hanover, Charles S. Eaton of this city and Augustus L. Mowry of Johnston, R. I. W. F. Sheldon, postmaster of Moosup, was the timekeeper who saw that each contestant was confined to five minutes. Uncle Joe Shippee of Plainfield, who has won a fiddling championship, was slated to be a judge but he was induced to compete and received a big hand when he was introduced by Chairman Branche.

The fiddlers were brought forward for their turns in alphabetical order which made their appearance run as follows: Henry Bodern, Arctic, R. I.; George W. Green, Moosup; Nathaniel Hopkins, 83, Hope, R. I.; Prof. James McCauley, Hopedale, Mass., winner of the Henry Ford cup for the championship of the North Atlantic states; Asher Reed, Rockville; Prof. H. W. Pray, Ballouville; George W. Rathbun, Jewett City; J. A. Randall, Yantic; Prof. William A. Spink, Chepachet, R. I.; Prof. Fred Spencer, Uncasville; Uncle Joe Shippee, Plainfield; Prof. Lon G. Wood, Hope, R. I.; H. A. Wheeler, Norwich, and Prof. William Wightman, Norwich Town, a well known old soldier who is 81 years old.

Eye glistened with enjoyment, feet tapped in sympathy and there was enthusiastic applause for every performer.

The piano accompaniments were by Mrs. Arthur C. Greene, of Washington, R. I., by Mrs. Opperman, a daughter of Uncle Joe Shippee, and by Mrs. Spencer of Uncasville.

While awaiting the judges' decision, C. L. Perkins of Hanover entertained the crowd with clever selections on his tin whistle and Mrs. E. E. Eldredge of New London gave violin selections.

The judges announced the prizes as follows: First, $20, Prof. Lon Wood; second, $15, Prof. William A. Spink; third, $10, Uncle Joe Shippee; fourth, $5, Prof. James McCauley.

OTIS LIBRARY SHOWS 119,971 ANNUAL CIRCULATION

The annual report of Mrs. Rosina S. Hamilton, librarian of the Otis library, for the year ending August 31st, shows that the total circulation of books for the year was 119,971. During the year 1,836 new books were added to the library shelves. Of these 192 were by gift, 56 by state grant and 1,638 by purchase. With regard to the circulation the librarian says in part in her report:

Only four times since 1893 when town appropriations began, has the circulation been larger. The increase in the juvenile books is very noticeable, and goes to show what an important part of our library this department is, although we have no adequate provision for it.

Too many of our citizens are unaware of the wealth of material on almost any subject, which is in the library ready to their hands. We will be glad at any time to receive suggestions as to new books that are of interest. The demand for books on psychology and sociological problems has been much larger than usual, and the books must be modern to be popular with the general reader. We shall try to supply the best and newest of these as of all others.

A new cement sidewalk has been laid around the entire library property, and the woodwork on the building has been newly painted, which has greatly improved its appearance. Three new book display cases have been added to the furniture of the main room, and new chairs have taken the place of the old ones in the children's department.

Many gifts of books and subscriptions to magazines, have been received and are gratefully acknowledged. Our thanks are also extended to the local press for valuable space in which to bring before the public such notices of new books and other items as are of general interest.

There were 30 letters received, 28 of which were opposed, one in favor and one non-committal.

Mayor Robbins and Edmund W Perkins were appointed a sub-committee to draw up a tentative report, which will be subject to acceptance by the entire committee at a meeting to be held on Oct. 10.

CHAS. B. SCHULTZ KILLED BY MAN HE BEFRIENDED

Concerning the fine traits and unusual career of Charles B. Schultz, suddenly shot at Gardner Lake, last month by William Canow in a moment of temporary derangement, one who has investigated the circumstances surrounding the tragedy writes The Bulletin:

Charles B. Schultz, who met his death Aug. 16, was the son of Eliza Elbers and Martin Schultz, and was born in Hamburg, Germany, August 18, 1872. He was educated in the public school and at the age of fourteen was apprenticed to learn the trade of tanner. It was customary at that time in Germany to finish one's apprenticeship or schooling with a wander year. The period of the travel depended upon the student's interest and tenacity, and the travel was intended as a trial to show what was in the young man. Completing his apprenticeship, young Schultz bade farewell to his family, and set out on foot to visit the tanneries of Germany. When he came to a tannery, he gave the knock and the password, and the master of the tannery welcomed him in, and called the apprentices to meet him, and he stayed and worked with them till he learned the methods of their particular line. When ready to go on his way, the master gave him a gift of money for his help, the apprentices gave him tokens of friendship, and they all wished him Godspeed. On the road were other young students who like himself were working their way from city to city, and asking for nothing for which they did not pay. When night came, if he could reach a monastery, he knocked at the door, and the monks welcomed him, just as in the picture that Bunyan has drawn of the Christian's arrival at the Palace Beautiful. Wherever he put up he lent a hand, and by degrees gained experience in handling every kind of leather. A year passed and an unconquerable longing for home came over him. He had just finished a three months' course in a tannery in southern Germany, and had his pay in full. He started for home, reached home, stood on the threshold, saw the loved faces, and was off without a pause. It took him three weeks, walking all day and part of the nights, to gain that sight of home. He did not again desist from his travels till two years later when having visited the tanneries of Germany, Austria, and Hungary, he reached the Italian border.

February, 5, 1898, he was united in marriage with Margaret Kordes, the daughter of Loucie Schroeder and Matrius Kordes, of Uetersen in Holstein, to whom he had become betrothed six years earlier. He was employed in the large factory of Eshwege; all the work was done by hand. After the birth of his first child, he came home with bad news. Machinery was being installed; one-half of the workers were discharged; he was being retained, but he would now have a machine. His brother Wilhelm, at the age of fourteen had come to the United States, and was prospering in Jersey City. His wife's brother had settled in Charleston, S. C. The young tanner said to his wife, "Girl, if you feel about my working at a machine the way I feel you will say as I say, let us go to America, and make a start in a new country!" She answered, "It is for me to stand by you, my husband." His wife's parents offered him a house, if he would remain in Germany, but he felt that if it was a disgrace to take up another trade than his own, it was a greater disgrace to let his wife's parents help support him.

They came to America, Feb. 10, 1900. Mr. Schultz found work at once in Astoria as a tanner of fine white kid gloves, and later was offered a position as inspector for the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western railway, and was employed as an inspector in Hoboken, and in Harrison, N. J., until 1912, when he became caretaker of the Hoboken Academy, one of the best known private schools in New Jersey.

But the young mother and he knew many sad hard years. Her brother who had taken a position with the Erie railway was killed in an accident, and the news of her mother's sudden death in Germany came the same day. Her father died, and because of the war they could get no word to their home. Mr. Schultz had a heavy sickness and the physician told him that he could not live in the city.

In 1914, Mr. Schultz bought the La Count farm, at Gardner Lake, Conn. The buildings were in a dilapidated condition and the mowing lots were overgrown with brush. Through six summers, Mr. Schultz and his family came to the farm at the close of school and stayed till fall. In 1920, Mr. Schultz resigned at the New Jersey academy and came to the lake to live, retaining his health.

As a child in Hamburg, Mr. Schultz had known an orphaned lad named William Canow. The Canow relatives were well to do, and an uncle lived in New York city, and was engaged in buying horses for the English government and in shipping them to London. The uncle made a place for Canow in London in connection with his business, but the young man was not happy, and got passage as a helper on an ocean liner to New York. His conscientiousness and agreeable manner won attention, and he was made a steward, and served as a steward till he obtained a position as waiter in a good restaurant in Jersey City. He continued to act as a waiter until he gathered a small competence. He then opened a shop, and sold sporting goods and bicycle supplies; he repaired bicycles and was a good locksmith. His business grew, and he took in a partner.

But he had a shock, and his head was never right. He could not hold onto figures, and became quickly overwrought. He believed that his partner was taking advantage of him and sold out offhand, without considering the price. Then came an attack of mental disturbance, but he was himself again almost at once.

In his unsettled state and poor health, a place was made for him at the lake, where he did cabinet work in the winter, and ran the small store in the summer, living in a room in the rear of his store. He had one or two sharp attacks of mental derangement, Mr. Schultz did not fear him, and Mr. Canow never came to the Schultz door at meal time that a plate was not laid for him, and that he was not made welcome. He was appreciative of the hospitality, and when he had a novelty in the way of candy in the trade, he came to the Schultz door with a remembrance for the family.

Charles B. Schultz was a generous neighbor, and good friend, a beloved husband and father. He became a member of Copestone lodge, No. 147, F. and A. M., at Kearney, N. J., April 3, 1913, and was transferred to Oxoboxo lodge, in Montville. He was a member also of the Order of the Eastern Star, Worcester chapter, lodge No. 94. He is survived by his wife, and his two daughters, Mrs. Joseph M. Adelizzi and Mrs. Charles Huntington Sweet, and by four sisters and four brothers. His tragic death is a loss to the community and township.

THREE DIVISION HEADS FOR MERCHANTS INSTITUTE

The organization plans for the Merchants Institute in this city received impetus Friday when Chairman James L. Case announced the appointment of Max Hanover, John Lynton and Earl Taggart as division heads. The Merchants Institute will run during the week of Oct. 15 to 19 inclusive. A general meeting of all the salespeople in the stores has been arranged for each morning between the hours of 8.00 and 9.00 o'clock. These meetings will be addressed by J. W. Griest, the manager of the Retail Merchants Institute of Chicago. A noon luncheon will be held each day when Mr. Griest will speak to the merchants and department managers. The organization now being created by Mr. Case will be known as the "Better Business Boosters" and the three division heads mentioned above will head up the "bears," the "bulls" and the "beavers", in a competitive race for securing the large attendance.

POETRY

A Night in Camp

The beauteous moon, swift-sailing o'er the sky,
Unfolds upon the earth a silvery veil;
The snowy clouds in silence pass her by,
Bathed in her gentle light, so soft and pale.
Upon the rippling surface of the lake
The streaming moonbeams dance in silent glee;
Their laugh, the flashing that the waves make;
Their song, the joyous rustle of the tree.

Around about the darksome forest stands,
Each tree with arms extended toward the sky,
As if to seize with outstretched, eager hands,
That milk-white gem from out its place on high.
The fitful wind, disporting thru the trees,
The whippoorwill's long-drawn and mournful cry,
The hooting owl, the cricket's chirps—all these Soothe the tired camper, like a lullaby.

There by the grassy bank of gleaming lake,
The snow-white tents like ghostly watchers stand;
Their rustling sides the dreamy stillness breaks,
The firelight sheds a glow on every hand;
Sudden, a shadow steals across the scene,
The timid moon, behind a cloud has gone,
The camp-fire flickers, tries to light the green—
Leaps up, falls back—expires—the camp sleeps on.

—Dorothy E. V. Phelps, in Detroit News.

Compass

West of the Pinos Altos hills
The Burro Mountains lie,
West of the Burro Mountains,
The desert and the sky.

South of the Pinos Altos hills
The Santa Rita mines,
The smoke curls of the mill town
Weaving cloud designs.

North of the Pinos Altos hills,
Fields with poppies gay,
Where the tiny cedars scent the breeze
And yuccas sway.

East of the Pinos Altos hills,
The new days glow,
And what is east of the sunrise,
Only the high hawks know.

—Lucy Sturges, in The Measure.

Redwood trees, imported from California and planted in the Grays Harbor district of western Washington 14 years ago by one of the large logging concerns of the Pacific northwest have proved a pronounced success according to company officials. As a result, plans are under way to transform large areas of cut-over lands in the Grays Harbor region into redwood forests. In the 14 years a redwood tree has attained a diameter of 18 inches, showing more rapid growth than that of any other variety of tree planted at the same time.

Colored sand placed by the deft hand of W. S. O'Brien, of Los Angeles, in a large-mouthed bottle produces an ensemble much like the work of a painter. He has made a sand mosaic showing Abraham Lincoln done in black and white sand the American flag in red, white and blue, and the motto, "With malice toward none and charity to all" in other shades. Fifty-two separate colors of sand are in the Lincoln mosaic. The sand is used in its natural state, perfectly dry and only the finest particles go into the bottle, being put in place with a tiny spoon.
